800 LIVES REPORTED LOST

Steamer Empress of Ireland Sunk by Collier Storstad in Gulf of St. Lawrence This Morning--400 of 1200 Passengers Rescued

QUEBEC, May 29.—The Canadian Pacific railway steamer Empress of Ireland with more than 1200 persons aboard sank in the gulf of St. Lawrence early today soon after a collision 30 miles off Father Point with the collier Storstad. Four hundred survivors from the lost steamer were landed several hours later at Rimouski by rescue steamers, leaving more than 800 persons unaccounted for and probably lost. The collision occurred at 1.15 in the morning during a dense fog. The Empress of Ireland's wireless sent out a few "S. O. S." signals, enough to send the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail steamer Lady Evelyn to the rescue and then her messages ceased. It was afterwards learned that the big passenger steamer sank ten minutes after the collision. The steamer was in charge of Captain Kendall, who won renown as the man who first detected Crippen, the murderer on the steamer Montfort.

Later a message received at Montreal by the Canadian Pacific offices from Rimouski said that "all the passengers had been picked up by the boats of the Lady Evelyn and Eureka." A similar message was received by Le Patrie, a French newspaper from a Rimouski correspondent. He said that 100 survivors had been landed and that the Lady Evelyn and Eureka were going back to pick up the remainder of the passengers who were in boats.

The foregoing information does not agree with previous dispatches in the matter of loss of life. From the wording of the Canadian Pacific message it could not be determined whether "all the passengers" meant all those on board the Empress of Ireland or simply all those who were able to make the lifeboats.

STEAMER RAMMED AND SANK WITHIN 10 MINUTES—CAPTAIN SAVED

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 29.—The Marconi company's operator here gives the following account of the sinking of the steamer Empress of Ireland:

"The Empress of Ireland was rammed this morning at 1.45 by the collier Storstad 20 miles out of Father Point. The Empress sank within ten minutes. The 'S.O.S.' signal sent out was received at Father Point and the government steamers Eureka and Lady Evelyn were despatched to the distressed vessel's assistance. The Empress of Ireland listed and was unable to get many of the boats out.

"Captain Kendall was saved, being picked up on some wreckage by No. 3 lifeboat 30 minutes after his ship had foundered. Both wireless operators, assistant pursers, chief engineers and chief steward were saved. The chief officer and purser are among the missing."

LATEST MESSAGE RECEIVED AT MONTREAL REPORTS ALL PASSENGERS SAVED

MONTREAL, May 29.—A message received by the local passenger department of the Canadian railroad supposedly from Rimouski expresses the belief that all the passengers on the Empress of Ireland have been saved.

AN UNKNOWN SUICIDE JUMPED FROM BRIDGE

Vaulted Over Rail of Centralville Bridge and Succumbed to Swift Current of River — Many Witnessed the Fatal Plunge

An unknown man committed suicide shortly before 7.30 o'clock this morning by jumping from the railing on the west side of the Centralville bridge, while several persons who were on their way to work watched him strike the water and then attempt to swim to shore, but the current proved too swift and after struggling for about five minutes he disappeared and was not seen again.

None of the many persons who saw the man leap from the bridge into the cold water could give a very good description of him. It is said that he appeared to be about 27 years of age, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. In what direction he came onto the bridge is not known. One of the first to discover the man in the water stated that he climbed onto the top of the railing and jumped into the stream with all of his clothing on, including a derby hat. When he struck the water he undoubtedly changed his mind about committing the rash deed and made an attempt to reach the shore. Although he was apparently a good swimmer the stream was very swift and the young man was carried under the bridge and sank with several people watching him unable to assist him to shore. The matter was reported to the police, but up till noon no one had made any inquiries about the man.

The swift stream will probably carry the body several hundred yards down the river and it will be difficult to recover it.

GRAND JURY PROBE

WITNESSES STILL BEFORE THE JURY AT THE COURT HOUSE IN GORHAM STREET

The grand jury probe into municipal affairs was resumed at the court house in Gorham street this morning. Former Alderman Andrew E. Barrett was one of the witness. Mr. Barrett was called yesterday afternoon but upon arriving at the court house was told that he would not be required until today. Other witnesses today included Alderman Brown and City Auditor Paige. Grand jury witnesses, of course, are not telling what happens inside the jury room walls, but the impression obtains that District Attorney Corcoran has planned a thorough investigation of the charges alleging that members of the municipal council exceeded their appropriations in 1912-13. It is barely possible that the investigation may be completed today and in that event a report might be expected within two weeks.

MAN REPORTED MISSING DISAPPEARED RECENTLY

His Friends Anxious to Learn His Whereabouts — Fear That He is Mentally Deranged — River Banks Searched

After leaving home at 3 o'clock last Saturday morning while his parents slept, David Supremant of 87 Cushing street, aged 22 years, has not returned and his parents and other relatives are anxious to learn of his whereabouts as it is feared that he might die of starvation, not being able to work. Since the sudden disappearance, Detective Drury of The Sun building, who is working on the case, has learned that the young man spent a few days in West Centralville, near the banks of the Merrimack river, but no further clue can be found.

About two years ago, while working in one of the local mills, Supremant was struck on the head by a freight elevator while looking down into the well and since that time he has been unable to work, and at times showed signs of being temporarily deranged, although he has seldom left his home in Cushing street.

Last Friday night he retired at the usual hour and, it is said, about 3 o'clock the next morning rose and left the house dressed in a black suit. It is not believed that he wore any hat and his parents are in doubt as to whether or not he wore shoes or outside shirt. The young man is five feet and five inches tall and quite heavily built. His complexion is dark and his hair was cut very short.

A resident of Lakeview avenue states that Sunday morning about 5 o'clock he saw Supremant lying on the grass near the Aiken street bridge with a coat pulled over his head, but at the time he did not know of his disappearance and thought nothing of it. Detective Drury has also learned that on Tuesday the young man was seen in the same section walking from tree to tree, and at times would sit in the shade for several minutes and then would get up and go to another shady spot. A report from the Navy Yard states that a man answering the description of Supremant was seen out there Wednesday but nothing more has been heard of him.

The parents of the missing man state that he often acted as if in a melancholy mood and never would answer anyone who addressed him on the street or in a house. He had no money when he went away Saturday morning and it is not believed that he would go searching for work or food.

The banks of the Merrimack river have been searched by Detective Drury in the hope of securing some clue as to his whereabouts but all efforts have been futile and any information about the young man will be gladly received by Mr. Drury at his office in The Sun building.

DEATH FOLLOWS HAZING

CADET AT ST. JOHN'S MILITARY COLLEGE SHOT WHILE TRYING TO DISCIPLINE FRESHMEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 29.—William R. Bowles of Hurlestown, Md., a cadet at St. John's Military college here, died yesterday afternoon from a bullet wound which terminated a hazing melee at the college Monday. The five freshmen who were in the room from which the bullet came were ordered [illegible]

Cadets George H. Weaver of Auburn, N. Y., and Henry L. Wallace of [illegible] [illegible] The other three are out of town, but will be arrested as soon as they return to the college. They are Fernald Marbury, Baltimore; Reginald Jones of Cambridge, Md., and John V. Nolle of Preston, Md.

Monday night several seniors went to a room where five freshmen had congregated with the purpose, it is said, of correcting them for some alleged misdoings. Finding the door locked the juniors demanded admittance, which was refused by the freshmen.

The juniors then began kicking on the door and threatened to break it down. A shot was fired and Bowles, who had hold of the door, was struck. The bullet, it is said, passed through the door panel.

The government body of the college last night began a sweeping investigation of all the circumstances of the affair, as well as the hazing system at the college.

OILING THE LOCAL STREETS

AUTOMOBILE SPRINKLER WILL OUST HORSE DRAWN VEHICLE—NOW IN OPERATION

The oiling automobile of the American Car Sprinkler was put in operation in Lowell yesterday afternoon. The new arrival will do away with practically all of the horse drawn sprinkling carts. Yesterday afternoon about 2000 gallons of the oil were spread over several streets in the lower Belvidere district, the start being made on [illegible] street and continuing through Alder street and Bartlett street. The sprinkler in the rear of the machine is nine feet in width, divided into two sections. The machine is capable of spreading [illegible] gallons a day. One gallon of oil is supposed to cover four yards of roadway, and the cost to the city per yard is three cents for oil and the use of the sprinkling apparatus. The cost is about the same as for water sprinkling, but the big difference is that one application of oil a year is sufficient. Commissioner Morse believes that the abutters will not object to paying for the oil in place of water. The sprinkler is in operation in Belvidere today.

THE SPELLBINDER

"We may forget the singer, but the song will never die."

And by the same token, long after "Joe" Smith shall have passed out of the shadow of earthly "Truth" into the light of the eternal, his famous remark, to wit: "Some laws are more honored in the breach than in the observance," shall continue to echo down the corridors of time, proving their truth as they echo along.

What are some of these laws?

For instance there's section 27 of the city charter entitled "Publicity for Contracts." Section 27 reads in part as follows:

"Neither the municipal council nor the school committee shall make or pass any order, resolution or vote appropriating money in excess of $500, or making or authorizing the making of any contract involving the liability on the part of the city in excess of $500, unless the same is proposed in writing and notice is given before its passage, except an order, resolution or vote for the immediate preservation of public peace, health or safety which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by a four-fifths vote, etc."

Then there is section 26, entitled: "Criminal Offense to Participate in Contracts" which reads in part as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for a member of the municipal council or school committee, or for any officer or employe of the city, directly or indirectly to make a contract with the city, or to receive any commission, discount, bonus, gift, contribution or reward from, or any share in the profits of any person or corporation making or performing such a contract."

Charlie's Automobile

Commissioner Charlie Morse, who heretofore like Richard of old, would have given his kingdom for a fairly good horse, now wants an auto and wants it P. D. Q. for this week he introduced an order with the emergency clause attached calling for $1500 for an automobile. He got the necessary four-fifths vote and Friday finds the auto practically purchased, for on Thursday Purchasing Agent Foye stated that he was going to purchase a Jeffrey machine without the formality of advertising for bids. The Jeffrey costs $1500, and is perhaps the only car that can be bought for that exact amount, which would indicate that Charlie had the Jeffrey in mind when he introduced his hurry order.

Therefore it would appear that the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety demands the purchase forthwith of a Jeffrey automobile for the commissioner of streets and the question arises, if the public peace, health or safety is in such a precarious condition, what will become of it while the commissioner is learning to operate the new machine? He can't get a chauffeur's license until he can show the agent of the state highway commission that he can run it, and the agent will not be here until next Friday at the earliest. But that reminds me, that all things turn out for the best. [illegible] Commissioner Morse was going to "can" [illegible] Putnam as a needless ornament of the department. Through the influence largely, of a local clergyman he was not "canned." How fortunate after all, for Nowell can run the new automobile as soon as it becomes city property and the public peace, health or safety of the city will not be jeopardized. One of the main objects of the committee of 50 in framing the present charter was to have publicity and competition in all city contracts and some of the opponents of the charter used, as an argument against it the claim that this proposition was a move to give the newspapers a lot of advertising. The framers of the new charter [illegible] [illegible] believed that they would be given an opportunity [illegible] a substantial amount. But [illegible] Joe Smith [illegible]

Vocational School Insurance

One of the first matters called to the attention of Former Mayor O'Donnell, former chairman of the school board, John J. Farrington, when the mayor entered upon his executive duties, was the fact that there were valuable machinery and other equipment in the vocational school on which there was no insurance. Mayor O'Donnell [illegible] at the time that if the manufacturing concerns were generous enough to provide the city with valuable machinery without cost, the city should at least show its appreciation by having such property insured and he immediately placed insurance on the [illegible] [illegible] Moody and the Merrill schools [illegible] [illegible] additional equipment [illegible] installed. The former mayor [illegible] insurance placed on the [illegible] [illegible] system in the police station for the first time in the history of the city. Today Mayor Murphy and the [illegible] are wrangling over placing [illegible] on other valuable equipment of the vocational school, the premium for which will cost the city for the remainder of the year, the [illegible] sum of $21. As the vocational [illegible] grows it will need more [illegible] as new inventions in [illegible] that line come into vogue the school to [illegible] up to the times will also need them. The city will not be obliged to purchase [illegible] as long as the manufacturers are willing to loan or contribute them, but if the city is not going to protect [illegible] [illegible] after getting them [illegible] cannot expect the manufacturers to "come across" in the future. This is certainly an economical administration.

City Hall Time Clocks

There has been a feeling of [illegible] unrest at city hall since it was published in the papers on Wednesday that City Collector Parker of Boston had recommended to Mayor Curley that time clocks be installed at city hall [illegible] of increasing the efficiency and reducing the expense of the department. On several occasions in the short time that he has been chief executive, Mayor Murphy has seemed to be impressed with the idea that [illegible] [illegible] Boston should [illegible] Lowell. He took his [illegible] from the Boston police [illegible] Later upon reading [illegible] that Mayor Curley had saved money by buying the city's coal [illegible] and unaware of the fact that the city of Lowell had been saving money in similar manner for years, His Honor sent word to the heads of departments to send in their estimates [illegible] and got credit for something [illegible] Purchasing Agent Foye had a word to say on the [illegible] now that Mayor Curley has decided to adopt the time clock recommendation for Boston the clerks at the local municipal building are filled with fear lest His Honor continue his policy of following Boston ideas and establish these clocks in Lowell. Since Commissioner Brown handed them the tip recently, the tardy clerks have been making an entrance via the Moody street door which is remote from the mayor's office, but if the time clocks are installed the "stage" entrance will lose its popularity. Simultaneously with the adoption of the time clocks, local jewelers may look for a boom in the alarm clock business.

In a Predicament

May 21, 1914.

Editor of Lowell Sun:

Dear Sir:

The mayor and chief of police have caused to be published their exchange of communications on the attendance of police officers at fires, calling attention to the fact that it is their duty to attend at second or general alarms, reprimanding those who neglected to attend a recent fire and telling them that they would let them off this time, but assuring them that if it happened again, they would be punished by suspension.

Now it has happened again, and as they are aware who the offenders are, they will be in a little [illegible] embarrassed, because the men who failed to appear at the Woolworth fire are not the men they are anxious to punish, and it will be interesting to watch what those gentlemen will do. They are surely in an awkward predicament.

Yours truly,
[illegible]

The above was written by a well known citizen and tax-payer [illegible] by any member of the police department.

The Power of Example

Great is the power of example. [illegible] Murphy was also present on the [illegible] [illegible] but [illegible] deference to the colonel [illegible] of the fire department [illegible] peared without the [illegible] fire, the fireman's coat and [illegible] boots. If there is any money available I would suggest that [illegible] be made to supply [illegible] and the coats for use by the members of the municipal council [illegible] fires. In the event of an alarm [illegible] money perhaps some [illegible] citizen will [illegible] [illegible] Sometimes [illegible] The generally starts [illegible] movements with the [illegible] one dollar may come [illegible]

Textile School Bill is Modified to Apply to One Year—Other Measures of Interest to Teachers

The committee on ways and means of the house of representatives to whom was referred the resolve to provide for the maintenance of the Lowell Textile school, report that the same ought to pass, but not as originally submitted.

The original proposition was $60,000 for a period of ten years, as filed by the textile school authorities and reported by the committee on education. The new draft as submitted by the ways and means committee reads as follows:

RESOLVE

To Provide for the Maintenance of the Lowell Textile School.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the commonwealth, from the ordinary revenue, to the trustees of the Lowell textile school, the sum of forty-five thousand dollars, to be expended under the direction of the corporation for the maintenance of said school from July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and for additional equipment of said school the further sum of fifteen thousand dollars. The city of Lowell is hereby authorized and directed to raise by taxation and pay to said trustees such sum of money, not exceeding ten thousand dollars, as may be necessary to provide for evening instruction in said school for residents of Lowell.

Exclude School Superintendents

It was stated this morning that an attempt would be made to amend the act relative to the tenure of teachers and superintendents of public schools by eliminating the superintendents of schools referred to in section three, part two, as follows: "A superintendent employed to serve at the discretion of the school committee shall suffer no decrease in salary, without his consent, until at least one year after the school committee has voted to reduce the salary of the superintendent of schools."

Section two of the act provides that the school committee may dismiss any teacher or superintendent from employment by a two-thirds vote of the whole committee and the amendment, if passed, will make it one-half instead of two-thirds vote.

Non-Tidal Section of Merrimack

Under a legislative act, now pending a third reading in the house, provision is made for the care and supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river. This bill provides substantially that all supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river shall be vested in the state board of harbor and land commissioners. This board is empowered to make all necessary surveys, examinations, investigations and to perform such work as may be believed advisable for the protection of the river. Further power vested in the state board by this bill is for authority to grant wharf and pier locations.

Old Marriage Licenses

Any persons having old, unused marriage licenses about the house are in danger of being fined under a new law which goes into effect today.

Under the new law any clergyman who marries a couple whose marriage license was issued more than six months before the date of marriage, is liable to a fine.

The law also provides that holders of marriage licenses that have been issued for more than six months are liable also to a fine. Those who take out marriage licenses and do not use them must return the licenses to the place from which they were issued.

SOME KNOWN FACTS ABOUT RHEUMATISM

There are many things that are still unknown about rheumatism. The treatment of it is still far from satisfactory. Doctors realize this but nobody is more fully aware of it than the sufferers themselves.

A tendency to rheumatism once established, the pain often returns with every change of weather, showing that the poison is still in the blood awaiting favorable conditions to become active and cause trouble.

One fact is known and acknowledged by all medical writers and that is the rapid thinning of the blood when the rheumatic poison invades it. Building up the blood is the best remedy for rheumatism as the enriched blood is able to overcome or throw off the poisons of the disease. For this reason rheumatic sufferers should be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in the treatment of this painful disease.

A book, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free on request by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. It contains directions regarding diet, baths and hygiene for rheumatic patients.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists everywhere.

Continued

tor of the C. M. A. C. who was "considered" for the position by "Former 'Mayor'" Brown, in 15-0-5, just before the latter appointed David Parthenais. While a recent comer from Nashua, Editor Louis A. Biron of L'Etoile might fit, and in the spirit of fairness the committee might also consider H. O. Girard of Le Supplement, Joseph Payette and Arthur Lavoie, president and secretary of the "delivering" committee might take the place if some one would suggest their names. Then there are E. S. Desmarais, Charles Bourret and Joe Harvey, all possessing the rare qualifications of being plumbers and there's Frank Ricard, who withdrew his candidacy for commissioner, sacrificing his own ambition in the interest of Dr. Mignault. There's plenty of good timber from which the committee may make a selection despite the fact that they may have to go some to reach the high standard of qualification set forth by Mr. Drapeau in his endorsement of Tommy Goyette.

Now, they tell me that Commissioner Brown has found a way to get back into the good graces of the French-American voters by getting a club license for the Club Citoyens-Americains through his friend, Commissioner Hanson.

Another Term For Mayor Murphy

When Mayor Murphy's admirers are not talking him up for congress they are suggesting that he run for a second term, and it is proposed by some of them to circulate papers at the proper time for a popular request that he run again. These papers, it is said, will be circulated right and every voter will be called upon to sign his own name. Private Secretary Cull is an ardent supporter of the second term proposition despite the mayor's modesty regarding his own tenure of office. The secretary is in a position to know the amount of work and study that the office of mayor necessitates and undoubtedly believes that with the experience of two years behind him, His Honor will be of even greater value to the citizens and taxpayers than he is at present, if retained in office for two years more. The secretary also, profiting by his own experience of two years, can give greater service if retained for another term. Of course there are many who do not understand and who will resent such a proposition, saying that if it was wrong for the former mayor to have two terms it is equally wrong to give the present mayor more than one. But it is only after a man gets into office that he can appreciate the value and importance of settled conditions. A man running for office on a one term platform may have the best intentions in the world for he doesn't know any better. After he has been in office for a while and thoroughly understands the position he holds, he begins to see that the one term policy is a grievous mistake and feels that in justice to the people he represents he must confess his mistake and in the interest of all continue in office as long as possible. By circulating papers asking him to try again his friends relieve him of any embarrassment as the result of his mistake. The public should not be harsh toward an officeholder who, through inexperience, makes a mistake as to the value of continuity in office. Take the case of Commissioner Hanson. After six years' experience he came to the conclusion that the city's interests would be best conserved by his retention in office rather than by the upsetting of conditions which would result from the election of an inexperienced man. The public owes Mr. Hanson a debt of gratitude for consenting to serve for another long period. Of course he had six years in which to think the matter over while His Honor has only two, but then some men, especially lawyers with trained minds, think more quickly than others.

Grand Jury at City Hall

The grand jury visited city hall last Monday and thus far none has been able to figure out what the purpose of its visit might have been. Some aver that it went there to see if the building had been left by the past administration; others thought perhaps it wanted to get a peek at that paint bill in the commissioner of streets' office; some suspected that the purpose of its trip was to see if Jim Dunfey got in on time in the morning, while still others are of the opinion that it wanted to get a line on the appearance of the purchasing agent's horse. Whatever its purpose might have been, it was present. One of the jurors got quite talkative with a reporter until he discovered the latter's identity and intimated that the jury was out to "get" someone. That's the rub. The attention of the grand jury originally was called to the alleged violation of the charter by the commissioner of streets but since then and up to the present certain influences at city hall and elsewhere have been exerting themselves to have all of last year's government indicted, though it is not probable that they had any particular desire to "get" Commissioner Donnelly. Former District Attorney Higgins "ducked" the issue. A little incident that occurred during the visit of the probers to the municipal building that undoubtedly had no particular significance but which caused much comment among the excited habitues of the hall happened shortly after District Attorney Corcoran and his party entered. Commissioner Brown upon recognizing the district attorney approached him and proffered his hand. At the same moment City Solicitor Hennessy, who is an old friend of the district attorney, stuck out his hand. The district attorney accepted Sir Joseph's hand, turning his back to the commissioner, as it were, and immediately the tongues began to wag.

Candidates for Commissioner

With the thermometer at 88 in the shade, as it was when this was written, one feels compelled to offer an apology for talking about a campaign that doesn't materialize until next fall but as already there are two full-fledged candidates in the field and several "prospects," I must say something lest someone gets the opinion that I hadn't heard the news. Ex-Representative Marchand is a candidate for the municipal council and he doesn't care who knows it. John J. Dalton, the well known singer, has succumbed to the importunities of his friends and has allowed the use of his name as a candidate. If someone should ask [illegible] to run there is little doubt that he would be unkind enough to refuse. There may be something back of Mr. Marchand's early announcement. For some time Representative Henri Achin has shown a preference for a public office that doesn't entail so much car riding. Henri is perfectly willing to give his services to his country, state, or city, but if the public has no objection he would rather supply them locally having been running back and forth to Boston for a few years. With several French candidates in the field that overworked "delivering" committee of 15 will have to get busy again and select the right ones to be the candidates. Ex-Representative Marchand appreciates the fact that the early bird gathereth the worm, and hence his flat-footed candidacy, while Representative Marchand is still awaiting the psychological moment. Commissioner Brown will be a candidate again and already has been looking to his fences. Commissioner Donnelly has not stated whether or not he will be a candidate, most likely he will be. His candidacy, however, will have no effect on that of Mr. Dalton, who, his close friends state, will be a candidate in any event. If the voters who supported Mayor Murphy on the one term proposition still adhere to their policy of last fall, things will not look bright for Commissioners Donnelly and Brown, who have served one term of one year and one of two years, but there is a strong element of the [illegible] in that one term talk.

Hickey on Deck

An unduly alarmed citizen has written The Sun to complain that Mayor Murphy has appointed a relative to succeed Supt. Thomas Connors, at the city woodyard. If he has, the relative is working for his health for his name does not appear on the city payroll. At the present time Mr. Hickey, the hard working assistant to the former superintendent, appears to be sawing wood and saying nothing, all by his lonesome as it were, though he is thinking deeply that it would be only fair and in accordance with the rule of all big corporations that he be promoted to the superintendent's position and have the mayor's relative or whoever may enter the department take the subordinate position, despite the fact that a departure from this rule was made in the selection of a sealer of weights and measures. The objection to a man's employment because he is the relative of the mayor or any other commissioner doesn't seem entirely fair. In this particular case the fact that the alleged appointee is a relative of the mayor doesn't impair his ability to saw and split wood and drive a horse. John D. Rockefeller's son probably could chop wood when not teaching Sunday school, if circumstances ever made it necessary for him to do so.

Committee on Claims

It has been announced that the municipal council has voted money with which to liquidate certain claims against the city, recommended by itself, acting as a committee on claims. Among the claims awarded are John J. Mahoney, $150, and Friend Bros., $100, the latter amount in two awards, one being charged against the water department. Mahoney lost an eye, while Friend Bros. lost a plate glass window. The award of $100 for a plate glass window is undoubtedly a fair one for plate glass costs a lot of money and Friend Bros are entitled to whatever the loss sustained might be and they are far too big and too honorable a concern to attempt to put anything over on the city. But if a plate glass window is worth $100, it would seem that a human eye should be worth considerably more, even if the city is hard pressed for money.

All Up for Shedd Park

The friends of Shedd park are as tickled over the election of Tom McKay to the park commission as are the friends of Ireland over the passage of the home rule bill, for Mr. McKay resides across the street from Shedd park and it is expected he will start something at once in the interest of the development of the Oaklands breathing spot. Tom Beane, the "defeated candidate," was the most surprised man in Lowell when he read of his candidacy in The Sun. It seems that John Greene, of oil and olio fame, who is a staunch admirer of Mr. Beane, planned a little surprise for Tom, intending to have him elected without his knowledge. He visited a majority of the members of the municipal council and informed them of Tom's candidacy, and, as was seen by the papers a day or two ago, they did the rest.

An English Miller

—a hundred years ago—thought he would gain trade and a name if he could give people WHITE BREAD instead of dark, the only kind anybody had ever known before that.

So he removed the bran from flour! This made the flour white and pretty, and people took to WHITE BREAD.

But what really happened when the miller threw out the bran-coat? The flour was robbed of practically all the MINERAL SALTS of the grain—the particular elements of most vital need for preserving normal balance of nerve and brain.

Scientists now know that this lack in white flour and products made from it is responsible to a great degree for a host of present day ills, such as nervous prostration, constipation, kidney trouble, brain fag, and so on.

"The souls we loved are still alive,
The names we loved are Freedom's boast;
O clasp these glorious truths, and strive
To realize what Freedom cost."

Tomorrow when you stand by and see the grizzled veterans of the Civil war moving along in parade you will find that their division of the whole pageant is the smallest numerically for as the years have gone by their ranks have fast grown thinner and only a few now remain. In order to give an idea of the truth of this statement I am republishing the roster of the Memorial day parade of quarter of a century ago. Some of the men whose names appear as present on that occasion you will see in line tomorrow, notable among them being Capt. Geo. E. A New Back for an Old One—How a Lowell Resident Made a Bad Back Strong

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Lowell citizen.

Mrs. Ellen Burke, 133 Shaw street, Lowell, says: "My back used to bother me constantly. I suffered from sharp pains through my loins and I was also subject to dizzy spells. I had rheumatic twinges in my right shoulder and my limbs used to be crippled up. The kidney secretions were annoying. I finally got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I was relieved in a few days, and four boxes cured me."

NEW BUILDING OPERATIONS

Building enterprises are starting up in real estate at the present writing, particularly on houses and alterations. The builders feel that there will be a boom within a short time, for it is said that a large number of depositors at the Traders' National bank had planned to erect new homes this summer but inasmuch as their money was tied up at the bank they had not gone on with their plans. It is felt now that over a million dollars is being put into circulation with the paying off at the bank, that business will take a great leap.

The real estate dealers are also expecting a boost in their business. One man told the writer that he had a number of sales [illegible] closed when the news of the closing of the Traders bank reached his clients and that most of them were depositors at the said bank, and accordingly the sales were not made. He knows now that the parties will finish the business they started before the closing of the bank.

Building Operations

[illegible] Charles Karelas have started work on removing their building located in the rear of 147 [illegible] street. The building will be moved back about 11 feet on the same lot. A new foundation will be built and the lot formerly occupied by the building will be leveled off and beautified for the present, probably at a later date the owners will erect a modern building.

The barn of Mrs. Maude A. Hosford at 6? Westford street is being remodeled into an addition to the dwelling house adjoining. Two sleeping rooms and a bath room will be installed therein and the roof will be raised.

Work has been started on alterations in the Centralville church building on Merrimack street. The front of the store now occupied by the Alpine Shoe store will be remodeled and the [illegible] changed over. The windows will be narrowed and the interior of the place will be refurnished.

A gang of men are now busy doing general repairs at the old Belvidere [illegible] hall on Howe street. The [illegible] is now owned by John A. Simpson. The alterations will consist of [illegible] together the two buildings under one roof, roof the brick mill and construct a new cement floor in the basement. These changes will keep Mr. Simpson's men busy for some time.

Alfred T. Oakes has started work on the erection of a dwelling house at [illegible] street. The new house will contain seven rooms with pantry and bath and will be 24 by 34 and will be equipped with a steam heating system. This is the first of five houses which he is to build there.

An addition to the lumber storage shed of the Davis & Sargent Lumber Co. in the rear of 647 Middlesex street is being made and several men are busy on the job. The addition will be of wood construction and will be 25 by 25 feet.

The same company is also building another addition to its lumber storage shed in the rear of 657 Middlesex street. This addition will also be of wood and will be 8 by 60 feet.

James R. Trevors is building a piazza, 7 by 12 feet, to his building at 55 White street.

As announced exclusively in The Sun's building news a few weeks ago, Daniel Sakelarios, the young man who purchased several dwelling houses in the vicinity of Market and Dummer streets, is making extensive changes to his property. At that time it was announced in The Sun that Mr. Sakelarios would demolish the brick structure at the corner of Worthen and Market streets and erect in its stead a modern tenement house with stores. This week he called at the office of the superintendent of public buildings and took out a permit for this work, and operations will be rushed along. As soon as the new building is finished, Mr. Sakelarios will tear down the other old buildings and start work on modern dwelling houses.

Andre Belanger has taken a five-year lease on the property located at the corner of Merrimack and Decatur streets, owned by Ephrem Pelletier, and in a few days he will start work on remodeling the place. Mr. Belanger will build a store extending to the sidewalk, and it is possible that he will do considerable work in the interior of the building, which is now being used as a lodging house.

Avila Sawyer has signed the final papers for the purchase of the Hall property in Moody street near the corner of Spalding street. The property consists of a two-tenement house, a stable and a large tract of land. In the fall Mr. Sawyer will probably change over the two-tenement house into a three-tenement building and also build a six-tenement house on the spare land.

Pierre Gregoire of this city, who for many years has conducted with his wife a large millinery store in Merrimack street, has started the building of a number of summer cottages at Mountain Rock, and before the summer is over Mr. Gregoire intends to have a half dozen or more finely finished houses in that district. One of the cottages is completed and is a beauty. It contains four rooms and the interior finish is of hardwood. The other cottages will be four, five and six-room buildings. There is a great demand for summer homes in that district and if Mr. Gregoire finds it a profitable investment it is probable he will erect several more next year for he is the owner of a very large tract of land in that vicinity.

PRIEST VERY ILL

Rev. Fr. Donahoe of St. Peter's at Hospital in Boston

The people of St. Peter's parish and indeed many others in all parts of the city will regret to learn that Rev. Charles A. Donahoe, the able, energetic and popular young priest who succeeded Rev. Fr. Burns recently as head of the Holy Name society is dangerously ill at the Carney hospital with a serious brain trouble. Rev. Fr. Donahoe was stricken last Tuesday at his home in Cambridge and was taken from there immediately to the Carney hospital where he lies in a precarious condition. Reports from Dr. Thomas J. Leen, who is attending him, were not optimistic this morning, and though all who knew the magnetic clergyman are hoping for the best, the outlook is not reassuring. This morning at the early mass, Rev. Dr. Kelliher, the pastor of St. Peter's asked the prayers of the congregation for Fr. Donahoe's speedy recovery or happy death.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. William Everett Adams of Chelmsford and Miss Ethel Helena Scoble took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Scoble, in Chelmsford last evening. The occasion also marked the anniversary of the birth of the bride, and the wedding was largely attended by relatives and friends of the happy couple. The clergyman was Rev. E. A. Robinson, who was assisted by Rev. L. L. Greene. The ushers were David E. Scoble and Adelbert B. Adams, brothers of the bride and bridegroom, respectively. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the middle west and upon their return on Oct. 1 will make their home in Chelmsford.

Didn't Break Its Neck

The old Sun has the following on underground wires:

"At a meeting of the directors of the New England Telegraph and Telephone company Wednesday a sum sufficient to construct the underground system in Lowell was set apart for that purpose. The management say that they will soon commence construction, and Lowell aerial telephone wires inside the central district will soon be a thing of the past. It is not probable that the company will break its neck hurrying the wires underground."

The Sun, as ever, was right. The telephone company didn't break its neck and ere the wires got underground the overworked editor of The Sun had ground out editorials in volumes on the danger of the overhead wires while it had become the popular custom when a fire started from an origin that wasn't certain to attribute it to electric wires. But the wires in the down town district finally went under where they at present repose.

Dr. Reilly's Benefit

Lowell has never been at a loss for good singers, male or female, and a quarter of a century ago the late Dr. William B. Reilly, a tenor who made his mark in grand opera was at the height of his popularity, in this city. The old Sun gives us the following account of a benefit performance in honor of the doctor which was presented by local talent:

"At Huntington hall, Wednesday evening, Dr. William B. Reilly, Lowell's best tenor, was given a complimentary benefit. A comfortably well-filled house listened to the music of the opera, 'Billie Taylor,' and gave expression to its appreciation of the performance by frequent outbursts of applause. Dr. James Reilly of Boston held the baton over the orchestra and he succeeded in making the chorus, soloists and musicians work in perfect harmony, an unusual happening at amateur performances. The singing was remarkably correct and the acting was all that could be expected. Miss Mary E. Brady, the 'Phoebe' of the opera, was careful in her acting and sang the difficult music with great spirit. Miss Katie L. Gallacher's 'Arabella' was well done in every particular. Miss Sarah T. McCaffery made a comely and sweet voiced 'Susan.' Jr. Reilly as 'Billie Taylor' was perfect. Michael J. O'Connell as 'Captain Flapper' showed off to the best possible advantage. Jos. G. Duffy drew considerable melody and not a little fun out of the character of 'Christopher Crabb.' Frank J. Doherty as 'Den Barnacle' and Thomas A. McCaffery as 'Eliza' did the comedy business in fine form, and sang their solos smoothly. Zeph R. Pinault as 'Sir Mincing Lane' was well up with the other actors. The chorus was strong and positive and the performance as a whole was very good, and reflects credit on every person connected with it."

Mary E. Brady of 25 years ago is now Mrs. Peter Kelly of Los Angeles, Cal., where her husband who in those days was a clerk for J. L. Chalifoux, is now a leading merchant. No Lowell persons who visit the City of Angels should miss looking up Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, for the many who already have been their guests give glowing accounts of their hospitality and the latch-string is always out for anyone from the Spindle City. Miss Katie L. Gallagher is now Mrs. Israel H. Sternberg, wife of the inimitable "Ikey," formerly of the Lowell News, and president, vice president and secretary of the famous "Shut club" of days gone by. He would also have been the treasurer, but the club was so constituted that it didn't need one, its motto being "ways without means." Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg from the day of their marriage have been one of the happiest, merriest and most hospitable couples ever joined in matrimony. Together they share each other's joys and sorrows, but not their avoirdupois, for "Stern" is "non-fat" at 115, while Mrs. Sternberg is—well, buxom. Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg are now residents of Revere, Mass., where "Stern" holds down a responsible position with the Suburban Heat, Light and Power Co. They are frequent visitors to Lowell. Columns might be written about the annals of the "Shut club," but it was not only a limited corporation, but also a secret society. Joe Duffy is a well-known printer, now of Boston, who formerly was employed on the old News and who lived in Tewksbury and subsequently in the Oaklands, while Zeph. Pinault, who before entering into business for himself at the corner of Central and Middle streets, was employed at Talbot's. He is now in business in New Bedford.

The Musical McCaffreys

If you should ever meet anyone named McCaffery hailing from Belvidere, make a bet that he or she can sing and nine times out of ten you'll win. Miss Sarah McCaffery who 25 years ago made a very youthful "Susan" is now Mrs. Terrence F. Cox and is frequently heard in solos at the Immaculate Conception church. "Tom" McCaffery is her brother and "Tom" is right there with the voice as yet, though he is now a resident of the state of New Jersey, having been here on a visit only a short time ago. Tom and Mrs. Cox are cousins of the late Margaret McCaffery who was one of Lowell's leading singers up to the time of her death and also cousins of Dan McCaffery, who after leaving Lowell sang himself into popularity in Lawrence, where he now holds down the job of city store-keeper. Whenever Commissioner Paul Hannegan of the down-river city gets down-hearted he sends for Dan to sing to him and his troubles immediately vanish. Dan in his younger days was with the Boston Opera company and played a prominent part in the original production of the Irish opera, "Shamus O'Brien." It is seldom that one runs across a first-class quartet made up of sisters and brothers, but the McCaffreys of Lowell had such an organization and it had the goods. The members were Miss Margaret McCaffery, soprano; Miss Katie McCaffery, contralto; Mr. Dan McCaffery, tenor and Mr. John McCaffery, baritone.

The Clerk Gets His

The Sun of a quarter of a century ago had the following little story:

"In the early days of Gen Benj. F. Butler's practice, he was required to give some legal notice in a suit in which he was engaged. The judge asked him to name the newspaper in which he desired to have the advertisement inserted. Butler was at that time an ardent northern democrat, and the Lowell Advertiser, a journal entirely ignored by most of the community, was the only organ of his party in the judicial district.

"In what paper?" asked the clerk, contemptuously, when told to insert the notice in the Advertiser. "I don't know such a paper."

"May it please your honor," Butler replied, "I trust the clerk will not interfere with the proceedings he attempting to tell us what he doesn't know, because if he does, we might as well adjourn until after the day of judgment."

A Butler Story

Speaking of Gen. Butler brings to my mind the time when he defended Mr. John H. Harrington, the proprietor of The Sun, in the famous Morrison libel suit. I have heard Mr. Harrington tell the story several times, but this is the first time it has been printed. It shows as one phase of Butler's character and his adroitness as a lawyer, as well as his well known admiration for a little dash of fighting blood in any man, be he client, friend or adversary. This story, I have no doubt, would have been printed before but for Mr. Harrington's well known aversion to printing anything about himself in his own paper, and perhaps when he sees this in print I may lose my job, but I will take the chance, for the story is really too good to keep.

It seems that the late John Henry Morrison, a prominent and successful lawyer, who was very sensitive to criticism, took exception to something that appeared in The Sun, and immediately brought suit against the proprietor of the paper, placing the ad damnum at the enormous sum of $100,000. This was the first serious libel suit brought against Mr. Harrington, and he proceeded without delay to secure the services of

THE GREAT AND ONLY

Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who at that time was unquestionably the most conspicuous and brilliant member of the Massachusetts bar.

Sheriff Henry G. Cushing was then in office and served the writ through one of his deputies, placing a keeper in charge of The Sun plant with instructions to let nothing out of the premises. The law, which has since been amended, did not in those days afford a publisher fifteen days in which to file bonds, and Mr. Morrison purposely made the attachment on a Friday with the obvious intention of preventing The Sun from being issued and distributed on the following day, which was its regular publication day, the Sun being then a weekly.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, Mr. Harrington felt that he would make no mistake in meeting this crafty move by employing Gen. Butler, who had more tricks up his sleeve than all the sheriffs and lawyers in this section of the country. The general was at home when Mr. Harrington called and, as was his custom, he began chewing the end of an unlighted cigar while Mr. Harrington told the particulars of the case. He would take the cigar out of his mouth every little while to ask a question, and then shake his head, close his eyes and begin chewing vigorously on the diminishing cigar. When he got the entire matter fixed in his mind, he turned to Mr. Harrington and said: "That article is not libellous, if it is true. You say it is true, but the burden is upon you to prove that it is true. Can you prove it?"

"I can," said John H.

"But you know it costs money to go into court and prove anything," said Ben. "Now, what do you want me to do? Will I fix this thing up and make the best settlement possible, or will I go ahead and fight it?"

Of course everyone knew that Butler's fees were enormous. It was not a question of dollars but thousands of dollars to retain the services of Ben Butler at that time. Mr. Harrington knew this and knew that he probably would have a handsome bill to pay before Ben Butler would be through with the case, but, nevertheless, he turned to Butler and said: "General, I know that I never libelled Mr. Morrison. I printed only the truth about that case, and I did it for a good purpose. He is taking me at an unfair advantage and trying to stop the publication of my paper from pure spite, and Sheriff Cushing is helping him because he is sore over The Sun's exposure of county ring methods and its opposition to his re-election. I don't want you to settle the case, general. I

WANT YOU TO FIGHT IT,

and I want you to fight it to the limit, and what is more, I want you to fight Cushing and Morrison to a standstill; and when you get the last drop of blood in both of their bodies, send me your bill and I will pay it, if I can."

Mr. Harrington in his excitement gave the arm of the general's chair a whack with his fist as he finished and the general, pulling the cigar from his mouth, lifted his heels and stamped them on the floor and shouted: "Good for you, my boy, good for you. If you will only fight them like that, they will soon let you alone. Now I will take that case with a great deal of pleasure, and if I don't make Morrison and Cushing eat a peck of dirt before this case is over you may conclude that Ben Butler has lost his cunning."

He shook hands with Mr. Harrington and said he would send junior counsel to take care of preliminary matters next morning, but he would be at his house any time the following day if needed.

That evening Charles Howe Esq. was selected as junior counsel and he made several offers to provide a satisfactory bond to dissolve the attachment, but Morrison would not listen to it. He was determined to stop one issue of the paper at any cost, and Cushing stood by him like a brother.

The next day the press started about noon on the edition and the keeper tried to stop it and in doing so nearly lost his life. He finally made up his mind to allow the workmen to print the papers, provided they didn't remove any of them from the premises, and there he sat until the entire edition was printed and ready for the carriers.

Meanwhile The Sun was overdue on the streets and Morrison was chuckling and telling his friends that there would be no Sun that day.

Mr. Harrington, seeing that the situation was desperate, drove to Butler's house and told him of his dilemma.

"Well" said Ben, "you have, as I understand it, a composing room on one side of the building and your press-room is on the other side. Dividing these two rooms is a public corridor which all the tenants of the building use." The building in question was the old Card Co. building in Shattuck street and the corridor was neutral ground between the two departments, and practically the same as if it were out-of-doors.

"Now," said the general, with a cunning twinkle in his eye, "don't you think you could induce that keeper to step into the corridor for a moment and if he does, don't you think you have a man strong enough to lock the press-room door and hold it there until you get the edition out of the window?"

"I think I can do it," said Mr. Harrington.

"Be sure you don't lay hands upon the officer of the law, for then you would be liable for a criminal assault; but if he goes out voluntarily," said the general, with another sly wink, "he will have to make another attachment in order to get in again."

"I understand you thoroughly," said John H., as he jumped into the buggy and was driven to The Sun press-room on Shattuck street at breakneck speed.

Rushing through the corridor and opening the door of the press-room, Mr. Harrington shouted in a loud voice to the keeper: "Are you going to allow people to steal my type in the other room? Are you not responsible for the safety of my property in the composing room as well as in the press-room?"

With a look of terror on his face, the keeper left the press-room and rushed across the corridor into the composing room to catch the imaginary thieves.

Quick as a flash John H. jumped through the press-room door and locked it, putting two sturdy men up against it with instructions to "hold the fort."

When the keeper found he was fooled he returned and knocked at the door, commanding that he be admitted in the name of the law, but he was politely requested by the pressmen on the inside to go to a place where newspapers cannot be printed on account of the heat.

Meanwhile the edition of The Sun was being sent down the back stairs and through the window, over the passageway, where the newsboys received their papers and started through the city to deliver them about an hour behind time.

The first boy was instructed to present a copy to Mr. Morrison and another one to Sheriff Cushing, with Mr. Harrington's compliments, and when they received the papers they were in hot consultation with the humiliated keeper, whose hair was standing up with excitement over the tongue-lashing which Morrison and Cushing were giving him for his asinine stupidity.

A return trip in the carriage to Butler's house resulted in

in which the general joined, and laughed louder than anyone present. The Sun was out and it was an easy task to adjust the matter of bonds the following week.

Butler then prepared to start proceedings against Sheriff Cushing and his bondsmen, declaring he would hold them responsible for all loss or damage sustained through the unwarranted proceedings of the previous Saturday, and he vowed he would have Morrison up for disbarment before he got through with the case.

Butler maintained from the first that the article was not libellous, if the facts were as represented by The Sun and he furthermore insisted that he would have no difficulty in disproving any presumption of malice against the proprietor of the paper. The only mal-

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

During a long debate in the legislature last Wednesday it was said that recently at Albany Governor Glynn of New York declared the workmen's compensation act of Massachusetts to be the best in the country. This is a high tribute coming from such a source, especially when it is considered that the workmen's compensation act of this state is scarcely out of the experimental stage. The debate in the legislature followed the introduction of a bill which provided that an employer of labor might file a bond with the industrial accident board to meet any of his obligations under the workmen's compensation act without doing business through an insurance company. The bill would mean a great advantage to employers of labor but evidently the legislators considered that it would be a dangerous innovation, for after detailed and intelligent discussion it was rejected. At first sight it is not apparent that the bill would interfere with the rights of either employers or employed, yet its rejection at the present time was wise, for the tendency to amend laws and to supplement them with new provisions before the old have been fully tested, is hardly commendable, though the Massachusetts legislature frequently [illegible] in this direction.

In one form or another compensation acts either have been or are being adopted by all progressive states. The Eccles mine disaster has been the means of drawing national attention to the workingmen's compensation act adopted by West Virginia a little over a year ago and put into effect last October. Under this act the state will pay $2200 a month during the coming year to those made widows and orphans by the Eccles mine tragedy. Each widow will receive $20 per month and each child under fifteen will receive $5 a month. The state has also borne the cost of funeral expenses. West Virginia is one of the five states having state managed compensation systems; its fund is managed by the public service commission and maintained by assessments upon employers, contributions from workmen and subsidies from the state to cover the administration cost. All other industries are included as well as mining.

In all, 23 states have clearly defined compensation acts at the present time, and seven or eight others have them in one form or another. Still others are agitating them with every prospect of speedy success. Their provisions vary necessarily owing to different labor conditions in different localities, for a law affecting those who work in mines for instance would scarcely be applicable to those who work in the textile industries. Wherever such acts have been accepted and placed on the statute books they have been the source of benefit to workmen and to the state, though undoubtedly in individual cases they do not work as satisfactorily as did the old system of private compensation. Viewing the matter in a broad light anything which would impair the efficiency of the Massachusetts act should be frowned on by the legislature until the principle of the law is too well established to be hurt by innovation or amendment.

lee in the case he declared was on the side of Morrison and the sheriff, both of whom he charged with being in collusion, not for the purpose of obtaining damages, but for wreaking vengeance upon the publisher of The Sun, by attempting to stop the circulation of his paper in a needless manner."

The sureties offered by Mr. Harrington were signed by some of the wealthiest and most responsible business men in the city and were amply sufficient to satisfy any reasonable plaintiff, and would undoubtedly have been approved if Butler saw fit to present them to any superior court justice in chambers or even at the judge's house, which is often done by lawyers in an emergency. But the general didn't want to do this, preferring to allow Morrison and Cushing to go the limit, even to the extent of stopping the circulation of that edition, in order that he might have them on the defensive and be able to dictate his own terms, in case the question of settlement or the amount of damages should ever come up. The fact that the edition came out in spite of them left both plaintiff and the sheriff in just as bad a predicament as if they had succeeded in stopping it, and it is plain that Butler by this piece of strategy killed two birds with one stone and became master of the situation.

The sureties on the bonds represented property aggregating over half a million dollars and the fact that they were not accepted, Butler declared, would be sufficient not only to imperil Morrison's standing as an attorney, but would result in the removal of Cushing from office. On this point the general was very emphatic and as a result Morrison became alarmed and retained a prominent attorney who, in consultation with Gen. Butler, was reminded of the fact that property under attachment was in the custody of the sheriff, and if there was any liability of it being destroyed or reduced in value while in his possession he and his bondsmen would be responsible. Butler cited a case where an officer attached a quantity of hides in a vat at a tannery and kept them in the vat under attachment until they were destroyed. This officer was held liable for the value of the hides regardless of the merits of the case, and in the final accounting he and his bondsmen were obliged to make good to the tanner who was subjected to this of attachment.

To attach a lot of newspapers and hold them for even two hours after the usual time of publication, would destroy the value of the edition. They were worth nothing then, but the price of old paper, whereas if distributed on time they would be worth five cents apiece, which was the price of The Sun in those days. Had they allowed the papers to be sold and held the money subject to the order of the court, they would have had the law on their side. But they had no right to hold the papers, particularly as they had all the machinery, type, presses, tools, engravings, etc., under attachment, which were worth many times the value of the papers. The intent to work needless and irreparable damage to Mr. Harrington and his paper was too glaring to be denied.

This alarmed the sheriff and his bondsmen and they, together with Morrison, decided that they had made a mistake and overtures for a settlement came, not from the defendant's side, but from the plaintiff. The result was that Mr. Morrison withdrew the suit, paid the costs and wrote a letter to Mr. Harrington in which he stated that he was satisfied that there was no intention on the part of the proprietor of The Sun to injure him, and if there was any malice it came from some of his employes who, according to Mr. Morrison, had not been on very friendly terms with him.

In short they had to eat their neck of dirt as Butler predicted they would do and in consideration of the humiliating gastronomic performance, Butler suspended hostilities against both Morrison and the sheriff. It was a glorious victory for The Sun, but the question in Mr. Harrington's mind was how much was it going to cost him. Hiring Ben Butler was no child's play and Mr. Harrington knew it. In due time he wrote a letter to the general, asking for an appointment to consider the question of counsel fees, etc. The general replied that he would meet him at his house in Belvidere a few evenings later, and accordingly with some trepidation and a mental calculation of the size of his insignificant bank account John H. took his way to the heights of Belvidere and was invited to await the general in the sitting-room.

The old warrior came in with a smile on his face and commanded the trembling publisher of The Sun to be seated. After congratulating him on the glorious ending of the bloodless battle, Butler settled himself in his chair and indicated that he was ready to hear what his visitor had to say.

"I came, general," said Mr. Harrington, "to learn how much I owe you for your services."

"Well," said the general, "that's very proper. Of course you understand I usually get a pretty fair-sized fee for a case of this sort."

"I know it," said the anxious publisher, as his tongue stuck in his throat and thoughts of a mortgage loan on his plant were flitting through his brain. "I know that very well, general, but I would like to know the worst as soon as possible."

The general looked at him for awhile and said: "I have made up my mind just what I am going to charge you." (Another chill in the region of the publisher's heart and a slowing of the editorial pulse.)

"Very well, general, what is it?" the visitor gasped.

"Well," said Ben, with a squint at John H. that added to his terror, "you remember I asked you if you wanted that case settled?"

"I do," said Mr. Harrington.

"To settle a case like that would cost a certain sum of money, but do you remember when I asked you if I would settle it or fight, you said: 'General, I want you to fight to a finish, and I want you to get the last drop of blood in those fellows' bodies, and when you get it I will pay the bill, if I can?'"

"I remember that very well," said Mr. Harrington.

"Well," said Old Ben, "when you said that I liked it so well, and

and your spirit so well, Mr. Harrington, that I then and there determined that I would not charge you a cent, and that I would see you through to the end without a nickle for my services."

This was too much for the young publisher of The Sun. A big lump came up in his throat that nearly choked him, and it was fully a minute before he could speak.

"General, do you mean that?" he said with his handkerchief up to his eyes.

"I mean every word of it," said the old war horse with a smile, that Mr. Harrington declared made his wrinkled face look handsome. "You don't owe me a cent and I am glad to be of service to a young man with your pluck, and if you continue to stand up when you know you are right and fight for what you believe to be right, you will come out on top."

"Now," said he, handing Mr. Harrington a letter, "I want you to go up to see Col. Dimon, who is agent of the cartridge works, and take this letter to him, and he will tell you what it means."

After an exchange of courtesies and an assurance from the old general that he might call upon him in any emergency, Mr. Harrington, with a light heart, took his departure and the next day handed the letter to Col. Dimon. When the colonel opened and read it, he smiled and said: "Do you know what this letter contains?"

Mr. Harrington said he did not.

"Well it is an order from Gen. Butler for me to give you a portion of the printing of the labels and advertising work of the United States Cartridge Co., such of it as you can do at a reasonable and satisfactory price."

This second manifestation of the old general's kindness had a great effect on Mr. Harrington. The result was that for many years afterwards, and as long as he continued to run a job printing plant, a liberal share of the work of the U. S. Cartridge company was done in the Sun job office for which he received many thousand dollars.

Mr. Harrington had frequent occasion in after years to consult with the general on legal as well as political matters, but the grand old man would never permit him to pay a cent for his services.

Butler died in Washington and his remains were carried to Lowell. At the urgent request of the city government and citizens in every walk of life his family permitted the remains to be taken to old Huntington hall, where they lay in state with a military guard of honor day and night until the day of the public funeral. People came in droves to view the remains, and were obliged to get in line and pass by the bier and through a side door as rapidly as possible. It might have been noticed by some of the attendants that one man came down the line many times before the body was finally taken from the hall, and he delayed so long each time to look at the face of the dead general that the guards requested him to move along that others might see. They didn't know that he had a reason, neither did they know as he passed out the side door why he put his handkerchief up to his eyes just as he did that night in the general's house.

UNIMPORTANT CHANGES

AT OPENING—LIST BORE FAMILIAR HOLIDAY ASPECT—CLOSE IRREGULARLY

NEW YORK, May 28.—Unimportant variations were the rule in the early stock market dealings today. The leaders were mildly reactionary and General Motors yielded two points of its recent advance. Dealings were in exceedingly light volume and the list as a whole bore the familiar anteholiday aspect. There seemed to be some disappointment at the lack of more definite details regarding the Mexican negotiations, this feeling finding reflection in London, where Americans were mostly lower.

The Missouri Pacific situation assumed a more favorable phase in the course of the day when it became known that fully two-thirds of the holders of the $25,000,000 notes maturing June 1 had virtually assented to the extension plan. The convertible bonds were up 1½ and the stock a point. In the general market, where the dullness was unchanged, leading issues were on a parity or slightly better than at yesterday's close. A few specialties were up a point or more. London sold about 10,000 shares here, mainly Harrimans.

The market closed irregular. The dull and uneventful day was partly relieved in the later dealings after publication of President Wilson address to the manufacturers in which he bespoke their cooperation an da desire to spoke their cooperation and a desire to qualified, however, by his expressed determination to carry out his anti-trust program.

"PULL WEST VIRGINIA OUT OF MUD" SLOGAN OF 50,000 WHO WORK ON ROADS

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 28.—"Pull West Virginia out of the mud," was the slogan of 50,000 or more men who today observed Good Roads day by working on public highways throughout the state. Governor Hatfield, all state officers and scores of county officers went out with pick and shovel. Women provided food for the workers.

WOMAN MAY DIE

FALL RIVER, May 28.—While preparing the noon day meal, Mrs. Mary Harrington, aged 70, had her clothing ignited from a burning pan of grease. With her clothing in flames, she ran down a flight of stairs, her screams attracting the attention of Rev. Timothy P. Sweeney, pastor of St. Louis' church, who rushed to the woman's assistance and extinguished the flames. The aged woman was frightfully burned and her condition is critical.

KING ALFONSO ACKNOWLEGES RETURN BY WELLESLEY GIRL—STOLEN FROM LIBRARY

BOSTON, May 28.—The return by Miss Helen J. Sanborn of Wellesley college of a beautiful Spanish manuscript, believed to have been stolen from the Columbian library of Seville, and which Miss Sanborn purchased some years ago in Amsterdam, was formally acknowledged by King Alfonso in a letter made public today. Miss Sanborn said that in looking over the manuscript known as the "Codex Varia" she found the seal of the Columbian library. Feeling that she ought to return so valuable a work, especially as the library was founded by Ferdinand Columbus, a son of the discoverer of America, she sent it to Miss Susan Huntington, director of the International Institute for Girls at Madrid, who subsequently forwarded it to King Alfonso.

ELOQUENT TRIBUTE PAID TO LATE JUDGE PRATT

The old court room of the court house on the hill in Gorham street, the room in which he presided a year ago, was the scene this afternoon of a touching and impressive memorial service to the late and lamented Judge Nathan D. Pratt. On the bench last occupied by him in the capacity of judge, in this city, was an old-fashioned vase filled with his favorite flower, the old-fashioned pink peony.

Last year, almost immediately after the death of Judge Pratt, members of the Lowell Bar association, under their President, William H. Bent, Esq. appointed a committee of seven to arrange for a memorial service. This service was to have been held on Friday of last week, but it was found that Judge Callahan, who was appointed as Judge Pratt's successor could not be present, and it was decided to postpone the service.

The service this afternoon was attended by the three judges sitting at the May term of the superior court—Judges Sanderson, Hall and Callahan.

A memorial address was read by William H. Bent, Esq., president of the Lowell Bar association, and other members of the committee paid tributes to the memory of their late colleague.

Those present at the memorial service, included Judge Charles S. Lilley, Judge John J. Pickman, F. E. Dunbar, Esq., F. N. Wier, Esq., Judge Frederick S. Fisher, and J. J. Kerwin, Esq., members of the committee.

Judges Sanderson, Hall and Callahan entered the old court room at 2.05 o'clock and two minutes later William H. Bent, Esq., began the reading of the memorial address.

Besides those already mentioned there were present several other members of the bar, including William H. Wilson, Larkin T. Trull, Fisher H. Pearson, William Regan, James F. Owens, Frank Goldman, John J. Devine, Judge Pratt's law partner, William W. Duncan and others.

After others had paid their tributes, Judge Sanderson spoke briefly and eloquently of the man in whose honor the memorial services were being held. He spoke highly of Judge Pratt, as lawyer, judge, citizen and friend, and said that the young lawyer of today would do well indeed to emulate as far as possible the example set by Judge Pratt.

The resolutions as offered by Mr. Bent in behalf of the Lowell bar association, Judge Sanderson said would be spread upon the records of the court and at 3.15 o'clock Judge Sanderson said: "The court will now adjourn out of respect for the memory of Judge Pratt.

SANBORN CASE

Mrs. Blanche Sanborn, of this city, wife of Dr. Edwin F. Sanborn, of Somerville has petitioned the court for separate support and the case went to trial at the divorce session of the supreme court this morning before Justice Hall of Fall River.

Mrs. Sanborn, whose maiden name was Smith, in her testimony told the court her husband objected to her frequent visits to her parents' home in this city, and also that she did not get all the necessaries of life. Several other witnesses were also heard in favor of the petitioner.

Dr. Sanborn when called to testify in his own behalf said he is 64 years of age and his wife 34. He said he was married to Blanche Smith in Lowell in 1909 and then told how his wife remained at his house but a few days at a time, then coming to Lowell for weeks. He said he purchased an automobile for her and told the court his wife had all the luxuries and necessaries of life desired. He said he was willing to take his wife back to his home in Somerville, but was not willing to take care of all her family. He said he still loves his wife and a first class home awaits her return at Somerville. Other witnesses testified to the sobriety and good character of the doctor, as well as to the upkeep of his home.

Lawyer Wilson of this city appeared for the petitioner, while A. V. Mann of Boston appeared for the respondent.

Three Courts in Session

Inasmuch as the presiding judges at the three sessions of superior court, Justice Sanderson, Justice Hall and Justice Callahan attended the memorial in honor of the late Judge Nathan D. Pratt, which was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the three courts adjourned at 1 o'clock until tomorrow morning.

In the civil session of the court, Justice Callahan presiding, the case of Catharena vs. the Union National bank of this city, an action of contract for the conversion of a check to the amount of $500, was resumed this morning and several witnesses were heard for the defense. The case will be given to the jury tomorrow.

In the jury waived session Justice Sanderson was busy all forenoon hearing divorce cases, likewise Justice Hall in the divorce session which is being held in the probate court room. Several decrees nisi were granted in both courts yesterday and this morning, but the list will not be ready until the latter part of the week.

HARRY MOZLEY ELECTED

UNANIMOUSLY CHOSEN DELEGATE TO I. T. U. CONVENTION IN PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The election of officers of Lowell Typographical union, No. 330, held yesterday furnished some surprises, for in several cases officers seeking a re-election were turned down by the electorate. President Wm. J. Pendergast was defeated for re-election by John V. Donoghue, the latter getting a ... some vote, out-distancing his competitor by a wide margin. For vice president, C. Percy Foster defeated the present incumbent, Charles E. Sheldon by 19 votes. Secretary-Treasurer F. A. Spead, Secretary Gabriel Audom and Joseph Gobin sergeant-at-arms, were elected without opposition, while ex-President Harry Mozley, one of the most popular members and the chairman of the committee in charge of the convention of the N. E. T. U., was unanimously elected delegate to the I. T. U. convention in Providence, R. I., an honor that has seldom come to few members in the history of the union. For delegates to the New England convention Messrs. John V. Donoghue and D. A. Lambert were easily the winners, with Thomas J. Durkin and Jas. Sutton as alternates. To the allied printing trades council, Messrs. W. Edward Turnbull, Joseph S. Mitchell and Edward T. Draper were elected out of a field of six. President Wm. J. Pendergast was unanimously elected alternate to the I. T. U. convention in Providence, R. I.

The bearers were Michael O'Loughlin, Patrick Joseph Lavit, Thomas Reynolds, Michael O'Connell, Richard Hudson and John Reynolds. Plan for Disposing of Idaho and Mississippi to Foreign Power, Said to be Greece

WASHINGTON, May 28.—A plan for disposing of the battleships Idaho and Mississippi to a foreign power for just what the United States paid for their construction was laid before the senate naval affairs committee today by Senator Daniels.

Greece is understood to be negotiating for the Mississippi and the Idaho The United States has never before sold battleships to a foreign power, although it has condemned them and afterward sold them without armament.

The ships have been in commission since 1908. The Mississippi cost $5,832,000, and the Idaho $5,894,000. Secretary Daniels asked for an amendment to the naval bill permitting the sale and providing that the money be used in the construction of one dreadnaught in addition to the two dreadnaughts already provided in the bill as it passed the house. Secretary Daniels explained to the committee that while he expected to get about $12,000,000 for the two ships, he would be able to make up the $14,000,000 needed for a dreadnaught by economy in other lines.

Mr. Daniels told the committee that while the Idaho and Mississippi were efficient ships for harbor defence, they were not modern enough to go into line of battle. While the name of the nation negotiating for the purchase was kept closely guarded, it was said Greece is anxious to put her navy more nearly on a tooting with Turkey, which recently bought a new dreadnaught built for Brazil in an English shipyard. Mr. Daniels' proposal met with the approval of a majority of the committee and an amendment embodying the plan was prepared for presentation to the senate.

"HURRAH FOR LIBERTY"

SHOUTED FRENCH MILITANT IN COURT FOR SMASHING WINDOWS —SHE GOT IT—NIT

LONDON, May 28.—A French militant suffragette, who was arrested for smashing three windows at the national gallery, today created a scene when she was brought before the magistrate at Bow street police court. She continually shouted in French, "Hooray for liberty!" and "Hurray for Christabel Pankhurst!"

The prisoner refused to give her name and told the magistrate she did not want to hear anything. She kept up a voluble declamation in French, unaccompanied by much gesticulation, throughout the proceedings. She was remanded in custody for a further hearing. When arrested the woman was carrying a box filled with flints, one of which she had used on the windows of the national gallery.

Filene's

One of Many Ways in Which This Store is DIFFERENT

WHEN you come to Boston and make a tour of Filene's you will note many visible differences between this and other stores. You will note, for example, the interior streets, on either side of which are beautifully trimmed show windows. You will note the convenient grouping of merchandise—this, that and the other particular article of apparel for this, that or the other member of the family being found in a little world of its own.

Then you will note a difference in the service. That has been reduced to a science here, where the selling staffs are a great family, each working for the good of the whole establishment.

This service goes so far as to provide a bureau of expert women shoppers whose sole duty is to look after the comforts of our store visitors, whether such comforts pertain to actual shopping or procuring theatre tickets, sending of telegrams, transmission of telephone messages and so forth.

These are all visible services. But back of them is the greatest service of all —the serving of right merchandise at right prices at the right time. To fully realize this you must put the matter to full test.

Just now the usual store abounds in the unseasonable. You hear much of "bargains" in merchandise pertaining to the season gone. In Filene's bargains as good or better are to be found at every turn, but they pertain to the season upon which we are just entering—the Summer.

Therein is the "secret" of Filene success.

COOPER ADMITS MURDER

Upton Man Made Clean Breast of How He Killed Bradish to the Judge and Jury Today

WORCESTER, Mass., May 28—Daniel J. Cooper of Upton, who has been on trial in superior court since Monday on a charge of first degree murder of Alfred G. Bradish in Upton on October 4, 1913, made a clean breast of how he killed Bradish to judge and jury today. Cooper claimed the rival attentions paid to Mrs. Emma L. Babcom, a neighbor by both men led up to the murder and the story he told of his own relations with the woman is unprintable. Cooper said he fired the shots that killed Bradish in self-defense. He said that on the morning of the murder he saw Mrs. Babcom go into her garden and he slipped over to see her, keeping out of sight of his own home and the Babcom home. He said he and Mrs. Babcom went into the Babcom barn and a little while later he went back to his own home.

"Up to this time," said Cooper, "I hadn't seen Bradish that day, but I looked across and saw Bradish at the Babcom's back door about 2.30. I went in and got my revolver and went out to the cart path leading from the Babcom house which Bradish or anyone else would naturally take. I met him face to face near the wall."

Cooper then described the conversation he had with Bradish. It was in substance that Bradish charged him with intimacy with Mrs. Babcom and threatened to kill him if he did not stay away from her.

"I told him I hadn't had anything to do with her," said Cooper, "but he came toward me and before I thought I pulled my revolver and fired. He was within about two feet of me with his fist drawn back. I fired once leaving him. Then he turned and ran and I kept firing. I fired three times and then he fell. I waited a little and then walked down to the body. Then I went to the house." He left the body until Sunday morning, when he got up about four o'clock and dragged it into the swamp and buried it, returning to his home and getting into bed with his wife and child. On Monday he went to work in the Draper shop in Hopedale and worked for about three weeks up to the time he was arrested.

Assessors shall annually, in May or June, make a list of persons living within their respective limits liable to enrollment, and place a certified copy thereof in the hands of the clerks of their respective cities and towns, who shall place it on file with the records of such city or town, and annually, in May, June or July, transmit returns of the militia thus enrolled to the adjutant-general.

Former New Haven Head Testifies in Suit Against Metropolitan Steamship Company

NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 28.—Depositions for the defense in the suit of Miss Jennie R. Morse, sister of Charles W. Morse, on behalf of the minority stockholders, against the Metropolitan Steamship company of New Jersey in an effort to obtain a receiver for the company were taken here today. The hearing was a resumption of that held in New York yesterday. The witnesses subpoenaed were former President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, E. D. Robbins, former general counsel, Augustus May, treasurer; A. E. Clark, secretary and J. M. Tomlinson, general auditor of the company.

The hearing was before Jesse E. Salmon, commissioner and master in chancery of New Jersey. There were present as counsel for Mr. Mellen, J. W. H. Crim; and for the plaintiffs, Martin W. Littleton, chief counsel and Owen T. Brown, E. Gill Wyle and Conover English. The various interests of the defense were represented by members of several law firms in New York and New Jersey, among them being M. E. Joiner and W. M. Ward for the Pacific Coast Navigation company and F. J. Faulkes and Douglas Nichols for the steamship company.

Mr. Mellen and Mr. Robbins arrived early. The late arrival of several attorneys delayed opening the hearing.

Mr. Mellen was the first witness. He was seated at the head of a long table, around which sat a dozen attorneys.

Mr. Crim stated to Commissioner Salmon that he would represent Mr. Mellen so far as he needed personal counsel but he did not believe Mr. Mellen would need assistance.

"This is my own counsel," remarked Mr. Mellen and the lawyers laughed. Mr. Mellen stated he [illegible] of the New Haven [illegible] years.

TERRIBLE ITCHING HUMOR ON FACE

Pimples Like Small Blisters. Kept from Sleep. Suffering Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Sterl[illegible], Mich. "My humor commenced first with a small spot of little white pimples with red surface. The pimples looked like small blisters. They disturbed me after retiring and kept me from going to sleep. The spot spread to quite a good size and being on my face it began to annoy me. The suffering from its itching was terrible. It caused disfigurement.

"I tried a remedy which did not help. It was less than a month after it broke out that I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used to put the Cuticura Ointment on when going to bed and use the Cuticura Soap. The help they were done me was seen right from the start and soon my skin was all smooth. I was cured." (Signed) W. H. Bonwell, May 20, 1913.

"Why should I use Cuticura Soap? There is nothing the matter with my skin and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate, emollient and medicinal properties have rendered it [illegible] for this purpose, while its [illegible] purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Four examiners of the interstate commerce commission arrived at the offices of J. P. The results of the examination are to be secret until submitted to the commission. Members of the firm received the examiners cordially. PRAISE A. B. C. MEDIATION

HAPPY OMEN FOR THE CAUSE OF WORLD PEACE, SAY SPEAKERS AT LAKE MOHONK

LAKE MOHONK, May 28.—Andrew D. White, who was president of the American delegation of the first Hague conference, expressed the opinion today that the difficulties between the United States and Mexico could have been settled more easily by taking advantage of the machinery provided by the Hague tribunals. In an address before the 20th annual Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration, Mr. White said:

"While we support our present administration at Washington in its effort at mediation now going on, we cannot but think that if a commission of inquiry in accordance with the proposal of the first Hague conference had taken up and reported the result of an examination of the offenses which brought on the present difficulty between our country and Mexico, the whole difficulty now so portentous might long since have been ended."

At the same time, Mr. White united with other prominent peace advocates here in declaring that the A. B. C. mediation was a happy omen for the cause of world peace.

The third Hague conference was the topic discussed at today's session. In addition to Mr. White the speakers were: Edwin A. Harriman, lecturer in the Yale law school; Elihu C. Stowell, professor of international law in Columbia university and secretary of the American delegation at the London naval conference; Henry B. F. MacFarland of Washington, former president of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia, and Chammond Kennedy of Washington, an attorney and authority on international law.

ON REPAIR OF STREETS

CITY MUST CONSULT THE HIGHWAY COMMISSION ON CERTAIN WORK

Before Commissioner Charles J. Morse proceeds with the proposed macadam work for the year it might be well for the commissioner to read up on the new municipal finance law which gives the state highway commission supervision over macadam work ordered by the city government. Under the interpretation of this act by the state commission, that body must also pass upon the streets where it is proposed to lay macadam.

Under this new act loans for macadam work are permitted only on condition that specifications are thus approved by the state commission. The officials of the state commission insist that it is essential that they should know where the macadam is to be laid.

They lay stress on the point that the law was framed so that money could not be borrowed except for permanent work and improvements. For that reason it would be inadvisable for the commission to allow macadam to be laid on streets where traffic was too heavy and for perhaps different causes it could not be considered permanent. Names of streets to be macadamized must be submitted to the state board as soon as passed by the city council.

THAW LEAVES CONCORD

GOES TO GORHAM, WHERE HE WILL MAKE HIS HEADQUARTERS DURING SUMMER

CONCORD, N. H., May 28.—Harry K. Thaw, who has been a resident of Concord since Sept. 18, 1913, bade the city goodbye this noon. Accompanied by his custodians, Sheriff Holman A. Pike and Deputy Clark D. Stevens, and by his secretary, H. J. Rice, Thaw left on the 11.55 train for Gorham, where he will make his headquarters at a hotel in the White mountains. The fact of his departure was not generally known and there was no crowd gathered to bid him farewell. Thaw anticipates much pleasure in exploring the White Mountain country this summer. Whatever the final decision by the United States supreme court in his case it is not probable that he will return to Concord for any extended stay.

VERY LARGE FOREST FIRE

SQUARE MILE OF WOODLAND SWEPT OVER AT MASHPEE, MASS. HELP FROM OTHER TOWNS

MASHPEE, Mass., May 28.—A northwest gale helped to spread an unusually large forest fire in this town today. It has burned nearly a square mile of woodland, mostly pitch pine, and scrub oak, had been swept over, and the fire was heading for Cotuit. Help was summoned from Bourne, Sandwich, Barnstable and Falmouth, as the local fire fighting facilities were meagre.

VIOLATION OF ANTI-TRUST LAW

WASHINGTON, May 28.—A resolution asking the attorney-general to inform the senate if the combination of railroad lines comprising the New York Central system is in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law was introduced today by Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska. On objection by Senator Reed, it went over until tomorrow.

The resolution also asked the attorney-general if his department contemplates any action for the dissolution of such a combination. It also asks that the New York Central be forced to sell the Lake Shore and other railroad companies and steamship companies controls four competing lines of transportation between Chicago and Buffalo and two competing lines between New York and Boston.

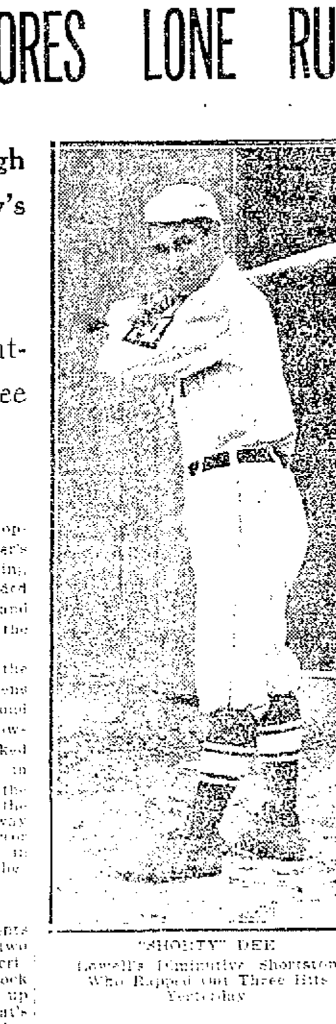
PORTLAND SCORES LONE RUN

But it Was Enough to Win Yesterday's Pitching Duel

"Shorty" Dee the Batting Star With Three Hits



"SHORTY" DEE
Lowell's Diminutive Shortstop Who Rapped Out Three Hits Yesterday

Inability to connect for hits at opportune times cost Lowell a pitcher's battle yesterday afternoon at Spalding park when Hugh Duffy's men provided the attraction. "Texas" Lohman and Williams, a big southpaw, were the mound performers.

Portland scored the only run of the game in the first inning when Clemens singled to short centre, went to second on Burns' sacrifice and scored on Dowell's single to left. Both teams looked like scores several times later on in the contest but on each occasion the twirlers tightened up and retired the side. It was a good game all the way through. But one misplay, an error by Lonergan on Kelly's grounder in the 6th, marred the fielding of either team.

First Inning

Portland as usual led off. Clements after getting in the hole for two strikes singled to centre. Burns sacrificed him to second. Bennie Bowcock was called out on strikes and put up a holler on the third strike but that's all there was to it. Dowell placed a Texas leaguer to left centre scoring Clements. Dowell then stole second. Greenhalge throwing high. Lonergan foul-lied to Greenhalge, retiring the side. One run.

For Lowell Dee started with a bunt down the first base line that he made into a hit. DeGroff sacrificed him to second. Burke hit to Williams and Dee was caught on the way to third. Dee cavorted up and down the line with four Portland players passing the ball with him until Burke got to second. Then Dee went out. The Portland players continued their tactics of yesterday baiting the umpire from the bench and Bannon announced that the next man that opened up would be put out of the grounds. His announcement was greeted with jeers from the Portland bench. Stimpson flied to Lonergan. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Second Inning

Portland went out in order. Hickman hit to Burke, who made a swell play, knocking the ball down one hand and making a beautiful throw to first. Merrill died out to Stimpson. Hayden hit an easy grounder to Lohman and died at first. No runs. For Lowell, it was one, two, three. Greenhalge sent a hot one to Lonergan and was out at first. Matthews and Kelly were both victims of Bowcock's arm on grounders to second. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Third Inning

After Dee had taken Williams' fly in short left and Clemens had grounded out to Kelly, Burns doubled to left centre. Bowcock dropped a single to short left. Stimpson fielding the ball on the first bound, holding Burns on third. Bowcock, before Lohman had a chance to deliver the ball, stole second. Dowell made DeGroff go some with an fly to right near the foul lines but Rube was on the job. No runs. For Lowell, Burke tried a bunt but was thrown out, Williams to Dowell. Lohman hit the ball on the nose but Bowcock was there with the nanny catch. Dee went out, Lonergan to Dowell. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Fourth Inning

Lonergan went out on a grounder, Smith to Dowell. Dee threw out Hickman at first. Merrill went out Lohman to Kelly. No runs. For Lowell, DeGroff grounded out, Bowcock to Dowell. Williams in a fit of wildness passed Burke. Stimpson singled to short left, Burke going to second. DeGroff scored up on a passed ball by Hayden. Greenhalge and Matthews both sent line drives to Merrill. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Fifth Inning

Hayden, with three and two on him doubled to left field. Williams struck out. Hayden went to third on Clemens' infield out, Burke to Kelly. Burns closed the inning with a fly to Stimpson in short left. No runs.

For Lowell Kelly hit an inside ball on the handle to Lonergan and got first on Lonergan's error, the first misplay of the game. Smith popped up an easy fly to Bowcock. Kelly was caught off first by Williams and run down the line and was put out. Lohman sent up a high fly that the wind carried foul and Hayden caught it. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Sixth Inning

Bowcock, the first man up in the sixth, sent a single into left between Burke and Dee. Dowell sacrificed him to second, Kelly taking the grounder and Smith covering the bag. Bowcock went to third on Lonergan's infield out, Dee to Kelly. Hickman smashed a hard grounder to Kelly for the third out. No runs. For Lowell, Dee sent a single to left centre. DeGroff made a single to centre, Dee going to second. Burke sacrificed both men along on a bunt to Hickman. Stimpson hit to Williams and Dee was out at the plate. Dee attempted to slide under Hayden and both men rolled in a heap. Bannon ruled him out; DeGroff went to third. Stimpson attempted to get to second and was caught between the bases and went out. Rube not attempting to complete the play. It was certainly one b-u-m play. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Seventh Inning

Merrill hit a long drive to right for two bases. Hayden flied to Stimpson in deep left. Williams flied out to Matthews in deep centre. Matthews' quick return holding the runner on second. Clemens went out on a grounder to Dee, Shorty's throw just getting the former outfielder at first. No runs.

Greenhalge opened the lucky seventh with a grounder to Hickman and was out at first. Matthews hit the first ball pitched to left centre for a single. Burns took Kelly's fly in short right centre. Matthews stole second. Smith closed the inning with a grounder to Williams. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Eighth Inning

Burns met Lohman's fast one for a single to right. A fast double play shut off Portland's chances to score. Bowcock hit to Lohman; Burns was forced at second on Lohman's peg to Dee and Bowcock was thrown out at first on a close play. Dowell was easy for Lohman and Kelly. No runs.

Lohman struck out. Dee got his third hit of the game when he singled to right-centre. DeGroff sent up a high foul-fly near the grandstand which Hayden made a nice catch of. Dee attempted to go to second after the ball was caught but he was the victim of Hayden's throw to Bowcock.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Ninth Inning

Bannon called Lonergan out on his grounder to Kelly amid yells of protest from the Portland bench.

Burke ran up in front of the plate and took Hickman's fly. Merrill grounded out, Smith to Kelly. No runs.

Burns made a nice catch of Burke's fly over second.

Stimpson singled to right.

Greenhalge flied out to Burns.

According to Mr. Dillon, a member of the Boston park commission, this city had a display of tulips earlier than any other city in Massachusetts, this spring, and Mr. Dillon came up from Boston to look over the display. The bulbs have all been taken up by employes of the park department and will be saved for planting this fall.

Permanent grading on the westerly side of the South common is going on daily Row, and, with the arrival of a carpet of grass, this portion of the common will present an unusually attractive appearance. A gravel walk has been constructed running from Summer street to a point opposite the entrance to Hood's laboratory in Thorndike street. Much difficulty has been experienced in keeping people from walking on the newly graded part and it has been necessary to wire off a portion of it.

The dancers at the pavilion at Lakeview last evening had the rare experience of dancing for two hours practically in the dark. The high tension system, which supplies the power for the incandescent electric lights, became short-circuited early in the evening. What is technically known as the "booster" was called into play, but this furnished only enough power for the electric cars and no surplus for lighting the dance hall. A few lanterns were secured and lighted. These were placed upon the stage for the benefit of the orchestra, while the dancers whirled in the waltz and tango in the semi-darkness.

About fifty friends of Miss Delia [illegible] met at the home of Miss Laura Tucker, 36 Orleans street, last evening and pleasantly surprised the former with a linen shower. She received many useful pieces of linen. Although greatly surprised, she responded in a fitting manner. Solos were rendered by the Misses Bessie Monorszynski, Rosalie Lalorie and Ella Corkey. Misses Janet Campbell and Catherine Conlon played a piano and violin duet; and Misses Mary Gordon and Helen Rochette were very pleasing in humorous readings. Miss Tucker served dainty refreshments.

TODAY ENDS BIG SALE

NOT ANOTHER CHANCE TO GET REFERENCE WORK AFTER CLOSING TODAY

The reopening sale of People's Cyclopedia this week has been as great a success as was the original distribution last week, and the J. L. Chalifoux Co. has been thronged with customers eager to get this wonderful set before the sale ends at closing time today.

There's no time to lose now, for the supply is rapidly diminishing and no more sets can be had after these are gone. So it's "good-bye" to the offer after today.

People's Cyclopedia is the most useful set of books on earth. It consists of five octavo volumes, bound in English cloth, magnificently illustrated throughout and regularly sells for $12. Today $1.98 will get the complete set. Surely this is an unusual book bargain.

See the announcement elsewhere in this issue and present the coupon at the store of the J. L. Chalifoux Co.

35 OFFICERS EXECUTED

FEDERALS CAPTURED BY CONSTITUTIONALISTS AT TEPIC WERE SHOT TO DEATH

NOGALES, Ariz., May 29.—Thirty-five federal officers captured by the constitutionalists at the city of Tepic were executed May 21, according to a message received here yesterday from Gen. Alvaro Obregon, the constitutionalist commander.

Gen. Obregon's message says that Rear Admiral Howard, the American naval commander on the Pacific coast, telegraphed to the German consul at Tepic to intercede for the lives of the federals "for the sake of humanity," but Obregon answered that the execution of the officers was necessary to prevent them making trouble in the future.

The federals were taken to the cemetery and shot in squads.

1000 LIVES LOST

Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Ireland, Carrying 1300 Persons, Sank in St. Lawrence River After Being Rammed by Collier

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 29.---The twin screw Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland, carrying nearly 1300 persons, passengers and crew, sank in the darkness before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river near here, with a loss of perhaps 1000 lives. Early estimates of the dead varied from 678 to more than 1100.

The vessel, bound from Quebec for Liverpool with 77 first, 206 second and 504 third class passengers, was cut wide open by the collier Storstad and sank within 20 minutes in 19 fathoms of water. Of those saved the majority appeared to be members of the crew or from the steerage. Many were badly injured and 22 died after being picked up.

Crash at 2 O'Clock

The crash occurred about 2 o'clock this morning off Father Point, Que., a village brought into prominence when Dr. Crippen, the London murderer, was caught. The collier, bound for Quebec, struck the Empress of Ireland on the port side about the middle of the ship. She literally tore her way back almost to the liner's screws, leaving a rent through which the water poured in such a deluge that she sank before many of the passengers were aware of what had happened.

880 Survivors Picked Up

Brief wireless calls for help, sent out by the Marconi operator, were heard by the pilot boat Eureka here 10 miles from the scene, and the Eureka, followed by the Lady Evelyn, a mail tender, put on forced steam and made all speed for the spot. It was these two boats that found afloat what few lifeboats that were launched from the stricken ship and picked up the survivors they contained. Three hundred and thirty-nine were saved by the Lady Evelyn and 66 by the Eureka. Among those saved was Capt. H. G. Kendall of the Empress.

Noted English Lawyer Perished

Most of the first class passengers apparently perished. Among those in the first cabin were Sir Henry Seton Karr, a noted English lawyer and big game hunter, and Laurence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, and his wife, Mabel Hackney, of a party of 140 Salvation Army members on board only 50 were rescued. They had left Quebec yesterday bound for the army's international conference in London.

Survivors In Night Clothes

So quick did the Empress sink that those passengers fortunate enough to get into the lifeboats found themselves garbed only in their nightclothes. No baggage was saved. The condition of the survivors was pitiable. Some had broken arms and legs and all had suffered terribly. Le Jeune Hu, a prominent lawyer from Montreal, saved himself by clinging to a raft. When the rescue ships docked here the station platform was converted into a hospital and the townspeople, bringing food and clothing, united in a common effort to aid the sufferers. Twelve bodies with faces covered lay side by side on the wharf. They had made the lifeboats only to be fatally hurt.

Bodies and Wreckage

Wreckage strews the St. Lawrence for many hundred yards near the spot where the Empress sank. The sun shone brightly during the forenoon and though the water is still icy, the temperature today was not low enough to increase the suffering of the survivors.

The vast majority of the saved were members of the ship's crew. Early estimates here indicated that not more than 50 passengers were saved. Besides Captain Kendall, the first and second engineers and the ship's surgeon were rescued.

Captain Kendall Overcome

The captain was too overcome to give at first any extended account of the disaster. He had sent a wireless to his line after the vessel was struck, saying "Ship gone."

The residents of Rimouski, numbering only 3000, came silently to the dock where the dead and exhausted living were being landed and under the direction of the mayor, H. R. Fiset, gave aid wherever possible. Every doctor in the town was on the scene and many of the injured were taken to private homes. From cedar chests and closets the townsfolk brought garments of all descriptions for those who had lost their belongings. Two headquarters were established at the wharf and at the station of the intercolonial railway. At the station those injured and not removed to homes were cared for.

The rescue boats Eureka and Lady Evelyn found everything on the spot where the Empress sank a scene not unsimilar to that which greeted the liners which rushed to the Titanic's aid.

They found the ship sunk and the surface of the water fortunately calm dotted with lifeboats and littered with floating debris.

In the lifeboats were huddled the survivors, dazed and moaning, some of them dying of injuries sustained in the rush of leaving the sinking steamer.

Hysterical Accounts

Few could give anything but incoherent, almost hysterical accounts of what had happened. J. L. Black and Mrs. Black of Ottawa said they had jumped together into the river. They had been roused by the shock of the collision and unable to get into a lifeboat had made the leap. They were picked up by a boat from the Lady Evelyn. Another survivor was Mrs. Patten of Sherbrooke Que.

Every effort is being made to secure correct lists of the rescued.

STEAMER EMPRESS OF IRELAND RAMMED BY COLLIER STORSTAD

QUEBEC, May 29.—The Canadian Pacific railway steamer Empress of Ireland with more than 1200 persons aboard sank in the gulf of St. Lawrence early today soon after a collision 30 miles off Father Point with the collier Storstad. Four hundred survivors from the lost steamer were landed several hours later at Rimouski by rescue steamers, leaving more than 800 persons unaccounted for and probably lost. The collision occurred at 1.45 in the morning during a dense fog. The Empress of Ireland's wireless sent out a few "S. O. S." signals, enough to send the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail steamer Lady Evelyn to the rescue and then her messages ceased. It was afterwards learned that the big passenger steamer sank ten minutes after the collision. The steamer was in charge of Captain Kendall, who won renown as the man who first detected Crippen, the murderer on the steamer Montfort.

Collier Also Went Down

The collier Storstad, earlier reports said, also sank soon after the accident. She was a steamer of 6028 tons, commanded by Captain Anderson and plied between Sydney, Que., and Montreal. Her crew numbered about 50 men.

The Empress of Ireland, in command of Lieutenant Kendall, Royal Navy reserve, sailed from Quebec at 4.20 yesterday afternoon for Liverpool. There were 77 first, 206 second and 504 third class passengers, which with the crew made over 1200 souls on board. Among the names on her passenger list is Sir Henry Steton-Kerr, a barrister, whose travels and big game shooting have taken him into many corners of the world.

First news of disaster reached Quebec shortly before three o'clock this morning. It came from the Marconi station at Fathers Point to the marine department agent here and announced that the Empress of Ireland had collided with an unknown ship 30 miles east of Father Point and was sinking. The Marconi station had heard the "S. O. S." signals of distress and reported that the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail tender Evelyn which were at Father Point had been despatched to the rescue. The wireless people reported that they had been in communication with the Empress of Ireland but a short time when the messages suddenly ceased. This led to fears that the steamer had sunk and this afterward proved true.

Nearly an hour after the first messages were received Father Point reported that it was the Hanover of the North German Lloyd line which had been in collision with the Empress of Ireland and that probably both steamers had been lost. This added gravely to the disaster as the Hanover was known to have over 1300 immigrants aboard bound from Rotterdam for this port.

More Than 800 Missing

The report about the Hanover, however, fortunately proved to be an error and at Father Point it was announced that it was learned that it was the collier Storstad that collided with the Empress of Ireland and that both vessels had gone down soon after the collision.

At six o'clock this morning reports that survivors were being landed at Rimouski were received here. It was stated that the Eureka and the Lady Evelyn had landed 350 persons but that more than 800 were probably drowned.

Vessel of 14,141 Tons

The Empress of Ireland was a twin screw vessel of 14,191 tons. She was

THREE DROWNED

Steamer Wash Upsets Craft With Stalled Engine in East River

NEW YORK, May 29.—Three persons were drowned late yesterday when the 25-foot motor boat Adell, on her way down the East river from East Elmhurst, L. I. to Rockaway beach, became stalled because of engine trouble and overturned as the wash from a passing steamer threw the craft against a scow near midstream.

Those drowned were William B. Munro, a heating contractor, in business here; his wife, Emma, and Mrs. Walter Munro, his brother's wife, of Worcester. Eugene Schlichten of Brooklyn, owner of the motor boat, was rescued. The bodies of William Munro and his wife were recovered. Mrs. Walter Munro's body had not been found at a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Munro were visiting Mr. Munro at East Elmhurst, but Mr. Munro did not accompany the boating party yesterday, which was on its way to Rockaway beach for dinner.

DEATH FOLLOWS HAZING

CADET AT ST. JOHN'S MILITARY COLLEGE SHOT WHILE TRYING TO DISCIPLINE FRESHMEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 29.—William R. Cowles of Middletown, Md., a cadet at St. John's Military college here died yesterday afternoon from a bullet wound which terminated a hazing melee at the college Monday. The two freshmen who were in the room from which the bullet came were ordered re-arrested.

Cadets George H. Weaver of Auburn, N. Y., and Henry L. Valdes of Havana, Cuba, were locked up. The other three are out of town but will be arrested as soon as they return to the college. They are Kendall Marbury, Baltimore; Reginald Jones of Cambridge, Md., and John W. Noble of Preston, Md.

Monday night several juniors went to a room where five freshmen had congregated, with the purpose, it is said, of correcting them for some alleged misdoings. Finding the door locked the juniors demanded admittance, which was refused by the freshmen.

The juniors then began kicking on the door and threatened to break it down. A shot was fired and Cowles, who had hold of the door, was struck. The bullet, it is said, passed through the door panel.

The government body of the college last night began a sweeping investigation of all the circumstances of the affair as well as the hazing system at the college.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The regular meeting of Highland council, Royal Arcanum was held last evening in its meeting rooms in Highland hall with Regent Lorin Fuller in the chair. Routine business was transacted and one application for membership was received and referred to the proper authority. A feature of the evening was the presentation of a gold gavel to Highland council from the grand council, it being a prize offered by the latter and won by the local council. The presentation speech was made by Grand Guide Fred E. Jones. After the business session whist was played by the members and ladies and the following were awarded suitable prizes: Ladies, Miss Lena Johnston, first; and Mrs. B. E. Cole, second; gents, B. E. Cole, first and A. H. Jean, second.

At the regular meeting of Echo lodge, N. E. O. After the meeting there were piano solos by Frances Burns and Ella McNabb; recitation by Lillian Kennedy, and a song by Ella McNabb. Refreshments were served, the committee in charge being Mary E. Curtin, Agnes C. Porter and Katherine L. Curtin.

OILING THE LOCAL STREETS

AUTOMOBILE SPRINKLER WILL OUST HORSE DRAWN VEHICLE—NOW IN OPERATION

The oiling automobile of the American Car Sprinkler was put in operation in Lowell yesterday afternoon. The new arrival will do away with practically all of the horse drawn sprinkling carts. Yesterday afternoon about 2000 gallons of the oil were spread over several streets in the lower Belvidere district, the start being made in Stackpole street, and continuing through Alder street and Bartlett street. The sprinkler in the rear of the machine is nine feet in width, divided into two sections. The machine is capable of spreading 6000 gallons a day. One gallon of oil is supposed to cover four yards of roadway, and the cost to the city per yard is three cents, for oil and the use of the sprinkling apparatus. The cost is about the same as for water sprinkling, but the big difference is that one application of oil a year is sufficient. Commissioner Morse believes that the abutters will not object to paying for the oil in place of water. The sprinkler is in operation in Belvidere today.

Follow the crowd to A. O. H. tonight.

THE SPELLBINDER

"We may forget the singer, but the song will never die."

And by the same token, long after "Joe" Smith shall have passed out of the shadow of earthly "Truth" into the light of the eternal, his famous remark, to wit: "Some laws are more respected in the breach than in the observance," shall continue to echo down the corridors of time, proving their truth as they echo along.

What are some of these laws?

For instance there's section 27 of the city charter entitled: "Publicity for Contracts." Section 27 reads in part as follows:

"Neither the municipal council nor the school committee shall make or pass any order, resolution or vote appropriating money in excess of $500, or making or authorizing the making of any contract involving the liability on the part of the city in excess of $500, unless the same is proposed in writing and notice is given before its passage, except an order, resolution or vote for the immediate preservation of public peace, health or safety which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by a four-fifths vote, etc."

Then there is section 36, entitled: "Criminal Offence to Participate in Contracts," which reads in part as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for a member of the municipal council, or school committee, or for any officer or employe of the city, directly or indirectly to make a contract with the city, or to receive any commission, discount, bonus, gift, contribution or reward from, or any share in the profits of any person or corporation making or performing such a contract."

Charlie's Automobile

Commissioner Charlie Morse, who heretofore like Richard of old, would have given his kingdom for a fairly good horse, now wants an auto and wants it P. D. Q.; for this week he introduced an order with the emergency clause attached calling for $1500 for an automobile. He got the necessary four-fifths vote and Friday finds the auto practically purchased, for on Thursday Purchasing Agent Foye stated that he was going to purchase a Jeffrey machine without the formality of advertising for bids. The Jeffrey costs $1500, and is perhaps the only car that can be bought for that exact amount, which would indicate that Charlie had the Jeffrey in mind when he introduced his hurry order.

Therefore it would appear that the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety demands the purchase forthwith of a Jeffrey automobile for the commissioner of streets and the question arises, if the public peace, health or safety is in such a precarious condition, what will become of it while the commissioner is learning to operate the new machine? He can't get a chauffeur's license until he can show the agent of the state highway commission that he can run it, and the agent will not be here until next Friday at the earliest. But that reminds me, that all things turn out for the best. Early in the year Commissioner Morse was going to "can" Supt. Putnam as a needless ornament of the department. Through the influence largely, of a local clergyman he was not "canned." How fortunate after all, for Newell can run the new automobile as soon as it becomes city property and the public peace, health or safety of the city will not be jeopardized. One of the main objects of the committee of 60 in framing the present charter was to have publicity and competition in all city contracts and some of the opponents of the charter used as an argument against it the claim that this proposition was a move to give the newspapers a lot of advertising. Business men hailed the new charter with delight for they believed that they would be given an opportunity to bid on all purchases of substantial amount. But as Joe Smith remarked—

Do you recall the awful fuss that was made whenever an automobile was purchased for the city during the past administration. If anything like the above had been put over by the O'Donnell regime the Courier-Citizen and the present mayor's official organ would froth at the mouth until it would be necessary to send for Dr. Pasteur.

Vocational School Insurance

One of the first matters called to the attention of Former Mayor O'Donnell by former chairman of the school board, John J. Farrington, when the mayor entered upon his executive duties, was the fact that there were valuable machinery and other equipment in the vocational school on which there was no insurance. Mayor O'Donnell stated at the time that if the manufacturing concerns were generous enough to provide the city with valuable machinery without cost, the city should at least show its appreciation by having such property insured and he immediately placed insurance on the equipment of the old Bartlett, old Moody and the Morrill schools, increasing it as additional equipment was installed. The former mayor also had insurance placed on the valuable Gamewell system in the police station for the first time in the history of the city. Today Mayor Murphy and the school board are wrangling over placing insurance on other valuable equipment of the vocational school, the premium for which will cost the city, for the remainder of the year, the alarming sum of $21. As the vocational school grows it will need more machinery and as new inventions in that line come into vogue the school to be up to the times will also need them. The city will not be obliged to purchase these as long as the manufacturers are willing to loan or contribute them. But if the city is not going to protect its gifts and loans after getting them, it cannot expect the manufacturers to "come across" in the future. This is certainly an economical administration.

City Hall Time Clocks

There has been a feeling of deepest unrest at city hall since it was published in the papers on Wednesday, that City Solicitor Parker of Boston had recommended to Mayor Curley that time clocks be installed at city hall as one means of increasing the efficiency and reducing the expense of his department. On several occasions in the short time that he has been chief executive, Mayor Murphy has seemed to be impressed with the idea that anything trademarked Boston should go in Lowell. He took his fuel board idea from the Boston police department, later upon reading in the papers that Mayor Curley had saved money by buying the city's coal in one lump, and unaware of the fact that the city of Lowell had been saving money in similar manner for years, His Honor sent word to the heads of departments to send in their estimates at once and got credit for something. The Purchasing Agent Foye had no word to say on the matter. And now that Mayor Curley has decided to adopt the time clock recommendation for Boston the clerks at the local municipal building are filled with fear lest His Honor continue his policy of following Boston ideas and establish these clocks in Lowell. Since Commissioner Brown handed them the tip recently, the tardy clerks have been making an entrance via the Moody street door which is remote from the mayor's office, but if the time clocks are installed the "stage" entrance will lose its popularity. Simultaneously with the adoption of the time clocks, local jewelers may look for a boom in the alarm clock business.

May 24, 1914.

Editor of Lowell Sun:

Dear Sir—

The mayor and chief of police have caused to be published their exchange of communications on the attendance of police officers at fires; calling attention to the fact that it is their duty to attend at second or general alarms, reprimanding those who neglected to attend a recent fire and telling them that they would let them off this time, but assuring them that if it happened again, they would be punished by suspension.

Now it has happened again, and as they are aware who the offenders are, they will be a little might embarrassed, because the men who failed to appear at the Woolworth fire are not the men they are anxious to punish, and it will be interesting to watch what those purifiers will do. They are surely in an awkward predicament.

Yours truly,
Sun Reader."

The above was written by a well known citizen and tax-payer and not by any member of the police department.

The Power of Example

Great is the power of example. When the two alarms of fire were rung in late Saturday night, Col. Carmichael came all the way down town from his home in Rolfe street, as the from his home in Rolfe street, and without rubber boots saw a good job done on the Woolworth fire. Mayor Murphy was also present on this occasion, but this time out of deference to the colonel as head of the fire department he appeared without the insignia of office, the firemen's coat and rubber boots. If there is any money available I would suggest that an appropriation be made to supply rubber boots and fire coats for use by the members of the municipal council in case of big fires. In the event of an absence of money perhaps some public spirited citizen will start a subscription to defray the expense. Solomon Reibitschek, who generally starts all such good movements with the contribution of one dollar, may come across.

Former Mayor O'Donnell was at a public gathering one night during his administration and in the progress of the exercises a well known physician rushed up to him with countenance ablaze with excitement, and exclaimed: "Mr. Mayor, two alarms of fire have just rung in for a fire at Brooks. What are you going to do?"

"Telephone up to the fire chief and tell him I said to put it out," responded the former mayor.

Deputy Sheriffs Busy

"To what base uses we may yet return, Horatio."

Deputy Sheriff Martin Conway of this city assisted in a raid upon the celebrated Amherst club at North Reading recently.

Happily, however, Martin was looking for liquor and not for tango dancers and thus he will be spared the exertion of giving an exhibition in court a la Clark and Swanwick. But wouldn't it be a spectacle for the gods to see Martin [illegible]?

Our able and energetic district attorney, Mr. Corcoran, some time must have heard the slogan "Equal rights for all; special privileges to none," for he has been raiding some hotels through the county by means of his deputy sheriffs. The coming of the district attorney, the grand jury and the county commissioners to Lowell simultaneously on Monday was nothing unusual but after they had gone away the following story echoed through the corridors of the court house. An innkeeper in a small town some miles from Lowell has been "doing a little business" without the formality of a liquor license with impunity, and apparently immunity, for some few years being a close friend of a high county official who it is said had assured him that everything would be all right and that if anything should happen he would be warned rather than molested. A short time ago a couple of innocent-looking gentlemen appeared at the inn and made a purchase and then informed the proprietor that they were deputy sheriffs and had come from the district attorney's office to investigate the place in search of violations of the law. The proprietor in great alarm, hot-footed to the telephone and called up his friend, the county official. The latter made haste to the inn and bade the deputy sheriffs chase themselves or words to that effect impressing upon them that he was some shucks in the beautiful county of Middlesex and that his friend was "right" and not to be molested. But the deputy-sheriffs were not to be chased and it is understood they made a complaint against the offending innkeeper. Then the county official went to the district attorney or his assistant, presumably at Lowell last Monday, to demand an explanation; and he got it right off the bat; and the court will do the rest. Times have changed in good old Middlesex since, by the contradictory power of the Bull Moose, the democrats have gained the ascendancy in certain quarters.

Will He Resign?

While license commissioners, like another class of officials, seldom die and never resign, there is a report about town to the effect that License Commissioner Hanson may soon resign, possibly to give Commissioner Brown an opportunity to make good his promise to vote for a French-American candidate for the position and therefore the French American "delivering" committee of 15, which while it delivered the vote to Mayor Murphy last fall failed to deliver Mr. Manseau from the embarrassment of an empty honor last week, should not be down-hearted as there is yet a chance. It would be well, however, for the committee to dig up some new candidates inasmuch as Messrs. Parthenais, Manseau and Goyette failed to impress even Commissioner Brown whose love for the French-American voter some time ago was unbounded. Rumor hath it that Elie H. Laporte will be the lucky man to carry the banner but then there is his father, Damase H. Laporte, the "Mayor of Little Canada," to be considered. Speaking of "mayors," the Centralville social club would probably come forth with Edmond Traversy, the "Mayor of Centralville" as a likely candidate in the event of Mr. Hanson's resignation and then there is Henri Barry, the popular jani-

NEW $10,000,000 PLANT

UNITED STATES STEEL CORP. TO BUILD IN CANADA—IT SEEKS TO CONTROL PRODUCTS IN DOMINION

MONTREAL, May 29.—The United States Steel Corp. will erect a $10,000,000 plant in Canada at the earliest possible moment, was the statement made here yesterday by a representative of the United States Steel Corp.

The corporation has already laid aside a reserve fund amounting to $10,000,000, and it is only a question of where the plant will be located. The action by the company was only decided upon at a very recent date, and as a result of the recent tariff legislation passed at the present session of the Canadian parliament.

The plant to be erected will easily be the most costly and modern in every respect of any steel plant in Canada. The ambition of the corporation seems to be to gain the same control of steel products in Canada as they now have in the United States.

BOY OF 11 DROWNED

BOSTON, May 29.—James Morson, 11 years old, whose parents live at the rear of 185 Bennington street, East Boston, was drowned in a pond back of the Meade Morrison company's plant at Orleans and Prescott streets, East Boston, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Harry Perllmuter, 6 years old, of 326 Bremen street, East Boston, who also fell in, was rescued and revived after first aid remedies had been applied nearly an hour and a half. They slipped off rafts on which they had been paddling.

ALL CLOGGED UP? HERE'S QUICK RELIEF

A Simple Remedy to Correct Constipation Before it Becomes Chronic

MR. H. W. FENSTERMAKER

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary. A much better and more permanent result can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact among the greatest endorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mr. H. W. Fenstermaker, Siegfried, Pa. He says he has had wonderful results from the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, that, in fact, he has never found a remedy so good, and he is glad to recommend it. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant-tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington st., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Textile School Bill is Modified to Apply to One Year—Other Measures of Interest to Teachers

The committee on ways and means of the house of representatives to whom was referred the resolve to provide for the maintenance of the Lowell Textile school, report that the same ought to pass, but not as originally submitted.

The original proposition was $60,000 for a period of ten years, as filed by the textile school authorities and reported by the committee on education. The new draft as submitted by the ways and means committee reads as follows:

RESOLVE

To Provide for the Maintenance of the Lowell Textile School.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the commonwealth, from the ordinary revenue, to the trustees of the Lowell textile school, the sum of forty-five thousand dollars, to be expended under the direction of the corporation for the maintenance of said school from July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and for additional equipment of said school the further sum of fifteen thousand dollars. The city of Lowell is hereby authorized and directed to raise by taxation and pay to said trustees such sum of money, not exceeding ten thousand dollars, as may be necessary to provide for evening instruction in said school for residents of Lowell.

Exclude School Superintendents

It was stated this morning that an attempt would be made to amend the act relative to the tenure of teachers and superintendents of public schools by eliminating the superintendents of schools referred to in section three, part two, as follows: "A superintendent employed to serve at the discretion of the school committee shall suffer no decrease in salary, without his consent, until at least one year after the school committee has voted to reduce the salary of the superintendent of schools."

Section two of the act provides that the school committee may dismiss any teacher or superintendent from employment by a two-thirds vote of the whole committee and the amendment, if passed, will make it one-half instead of two-thirds vote.

Non-Tidal Section of Merrimack

Under a legislative act, now pending a third reading in the house, provision is made for the care and supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river. This bill provides substantially that all supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river shall be vested in the state board of harbor and land commissioners. This board is empowered to make all necessary surveys, examinations, investigations and to perform such work as may be believed advisable for the protection of the river. Further power vested in the state board by this bill is for authority to grant wharf and pier locations.

Old Marriage Licenses

Any persons having old, unused marriage licenses about the house are in danger of being fined under a new law which goes into effect today.

Under the new law any clergyman who marries a couple whose marriage license was issued more than six months before the date of marriage, is liable to a fine.

The law also provides that holders of marriage licenses that have been issued for more than six months are liable also to a fine. Those who take out marriage licenses and do not use them must return the licenses to the place from which they were issued.

SOME KNOWN FACTS ABOUT RHEUMATISM

There are many things that are still unknown about rheumatism. The treatment of it is still far from satisfactory. Doctors realize this but nobody is more fully aware of it than the sufferers themselves.

A tendency to rheumatism once established, the pain often returns with every change of weather, showing that the poison is still in the blood awaiting favorable conditions to become active and cause trouble.

One fact is known and acknowledged by all medical writers and that is the rapid thinning of the blood when the rheumatic poison invades it. Building up the blood is the best remedy for rheumatism as the enriched blood is able to overcome or throw off the poisons of the disease. For this reason rheumatic sufferers should be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in the treatment of this painful disease.

A book, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free on request by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. It contains directions regarding diet, baths and hygiene for rheumatic patients.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists everywhere.

Continued

tor of the C. M. A. C. who was "considered" for the position by "Former "Mayor" Brown, in 13-0-9, just before the latter appointed David Parthenais. While a recent comer from Nashua, Editor Louis A. Biron of L'Etoile might fit, and in the spirit of fairness the committee might also consider H. O. Girard of Le Supplement, Joseph Payette and Arthur Lavoie, president and secretary of the "delivering" committee might take the place if some one would suggest their names. Then there are E. S. Desmarais, Charles Bourret and Joe Harvey, all possessing the rare qualifications of being plumbers and there's Frank Ricard, who withdrew his candidacy for commissioner, sacrificing his own ambition in the interest of Dr. Mignault. There's plenty of good timber from which the committee may make a selection despite the fact that they may have to go some to reach the high standard of qualification set forth by Mr. Drapeau in his endorsement of Tommy Goyette.

Now, they tell me that Commissioner Brown has found a way to get back into the good graces of the French-American voters by getting a club license for the Club Citoyens-Americains through his friend, Commissioner Hanson.

Another Term For Mayor Murphy

When Mayor Murphy's admirers are not talking him up for congress they are suggesting that he run for a second term, and it is proposed by some of them to circulate papers at the proper time for a popular request that he run again. These papers, it is said, will be circulated right and every voter will be called upon to sign his own name. Private Secretary Cull is an ardent supporter of the second term proposition despite the mayor's modesty regarding his own tenure of office. The secretary is in a position to know the amount of work and study that the office of mayor necessitates and undoubtedly believes that with the experience of two years behind him, His Honor will be of even greater value to the citizens and taxpayers than he is at present, if retained in office for two years more. The secretary also, profiting by his own experience of two years, can give greater service if retained for another term. Of course there are many who do not understand and who will resent such a proposition, saying that if it was wrong for the former mayor to have two terms it is equally wrong to give the present mayor more than one. But it is only after a man gets into office that he can appreciate the value and importance of settled conditions. A man running for office on a one term platform may have the best intentions in the world for he doesn't know any better. After he has been in office for a while and thoroughly understands the position he holds, he begins to see that the one term policy is a grievous mistake and feels that in justice to the people he represents he must confess his mistake and in the interest of all continue in office as long as possible. By circulating papers asking him to try again, his friends relieve him of any embarrassment as the result of his mistake. The public should not be harsh toward an officeholder who, through inexperience, makes a mistake as to the value of continuity in office. Take the case of Commissioner Hanson. After six years' experience he came to the conclusion that the city's interests would be best conserved by his retention in office rather than by the upsetting of conditions which would result from the election of an inexperienced man. The public owes Mr. Hanson a debt of gratitude for consenting to serve for another long period. Of course he had six years in which to think the matter over while His Honor has only two, but then some men, especially lawyers with trained minds, think more quickly than others.

Grand Jury at City Hall

The grand jury visited city hall last Monday and thus far none has been able to figure out what the purpose of its visit might have been. Some aver that it went there to see if the building had been left by the past administration; others thought perhaps it wanted to get a peek at that paint bill in the commissioner of streets' office; some suspected that the purpose of its trip was to see if Jim Dunfey got in on time in the morning, while still others are of the opinion that it wanted to get a line on the appearance of the purchasing agent's horse. Whatever its purpose might have been, it was present. One of the jurors got quite talkative with a reporter until he discovered the latter's identity and intimated that the jury was out to "get" someone. That's the rub. The attention of the grand jury originally was called to the alleged violation of the charter by the commissioner of streets but since then and up to the present certain influences at city hall and elsewhere have been exerting themselves to have all of last year's government indicted, though it is not probable that they had any particular desire to "get" Commissioner Donnelly. Former District Attorney Higgins "ducked" the issue. A little incident that occurred during the visit of the probers to the municipal building that undoubtedly had no particular significance but which caused much comment among the excited habitues of the hall happened shortly after District Attorney Corcoran and his party entered. Commissioner Brown upon recognizing the district attorney approached him and proffered his hand. At the same moment City Solicitor Hennessy, who is an old friend of the district attorney, stuck out his hand. The district attorney accepted Sir Joseph's hand, turning his back to the commissioner, as it were, and immediately the tongues began to wag.

Candidates for Commissioner

With the thermometer at 88 in the shade, as it was when this was written, one feels compelled to offer an apology for talking about a campaign that doesn't materialize until next fall but as already there are two full-fledged candidates in the field and several "prospects," I must say something lest someone gets the opinion that I hadn't heard the news. Ex-Representative Marchand is a candidate for the municipal council and he doesn't care who knows it. John J. Dalton, the well known singer, has succumbed to the [illegible] of his friends and has allowed the use of his name as a candidate. If someone should ask Perry Thompson to run there is little doubt that he would be unkind enough to refuse. There may be something behind Mr. Marchand's early announcement. For some time Representative Henri Achin has shown a preference for a public office that doesn't cut it so much car riding. Henri is perfectly willing to give his services to [illegible] county, state, or city, but if the [illegible] has no objection he would rather apply it in locally having been running back and forth to Boston for a few years. With several French candidates in the field that overworked "delivering" committee of 15 will have to get busy again and select the right ones to be the candidates. Ex-Representative Marchand appreciates the fact that the early bird gathereth the worm, and hence his flat-footed candidacy, while Representative Marchand is still awaiting the psychological moment. Commissioner Brown will be a candidate again and already has been looking to his fences. Commissioner Donnelly has not stated whether or not he will be a candidate, most likely he will be. His candidacy, however, will have no effect on that of Mr. Dalton, who, his close friends state, will be a candidate in any event. If the voters who supported Mayor Murphy on the one term proposition still adhere to their policy of last fall, things will not look bright for Commissioners Donnelly and Brown, who have served one term of one year and one of two years, but there is a strong element of the Durham mascot in that one term talk.

Hickey on Deck

An unduly alarmed citizen has written The Sun to complain that Mayor Murphy has appointed a relative to succeed Supt. Thomas Connors, at the city woodyard. If he has, the relative is working for his health for his name does not appear on the city payroll. At the present time Mr. Hickey, the hard working assistant to the former superintendent, appears to be sawing wood and saying nothing, all by his lonesome, as it were, though he is thinking deeply that it would be only fair and in accordance with the rule of all big corporations that he be promoted to the superintendent's position and leave the mayor's relative or whoever may enter the department take the subordinate position, despite the fact that a departure from this rule was made in the selection of a sealer of weights and measures. The objection to [illegible] employment because he is the relative of the mayor or any other [illegible] doesn't seem entirely fair. In this particular case the fact that the alleged appointee is a relative of the mayor doesn't impair his ability to saw and split wood and drive a horse. John D. Rockefeller's son probably could chop wood when not teaching Sunday school, if circumstances ever made it necessary for him to do so.

Committee on Claims

It has been announced that the municipal council has voted money with which to liquidate certain claims against the city, recommended by itself, acting as a committee on claims. Among the claims awarded are John J. Mahoney, $150, and Friend Bros., $100, the latter amount in two awards, one being [illegible] against the water department. Mahoney lost an eye, while Friend Bros. lost a plate glass window. The award of $100 for a plate glass window is undoubtedly a fair one for plate glass costs a lot of money and Friend Bros. are entitled to whatever the loss sustained might be and they are far too big and too honorable a concern to attempt to put anything over on the city. But if a plate glass window is worth $100, it would seem that a human eye should be worth considerably more, even if the city is hard pressed for money.

All Up for Shedd Park

The friends of Shedd park are as tickled over the election of Tom McKay to the park commission as are the friends of Ireland over the passage of the home rule bill, for Mr. McKay resides across the street from Shedd park and it is expected he will start something at once in the interest of the development of the Oaklands breathing spot. Tom Beane, the "defeated candidate," was the most surprised man in Lowell when he read of his candidacy in The Sun. It seems that John Greene, of oil and olio fame, who is a staunch admirer of Mr. Beane, planned a little surprise for Tom, intending to have him elected without his knowledge. He visited a majority of the members of the municipal council and informed them of Tom's candidacy, and, as was seen by the papers a day or two ago, they did the rest.

An English Miller

—a hundred years ago—thought he would gain trade and a name if he could give people WHITE BREAD instead of dark, the only kind anybody had ever known before that.

So he removed the bran from flour! This made the flour white and pretty, and people took to WHITE BREAD.

But what really happened when the miller threw out the bran-coat? The flour was robbed of practically all the MINERAL SALTS of the grain—the particular elements of most vital need for preserving normal balance of nerve and brain.

Scientists now know that this lack in white flour and products made from it is responsible to a great degree for a host of present day ills, such as nervous prostration, constipation, kidney trouble, brain fag, and so on.

Grape-Nuts

made from prime whole wheat and barley, retains ALL the mineral salts just as Nature grows them in the grains, together with ALL the nutriment of these rich food cereals. Grape-Nuts is a perfect food, long baked, easy of digestion, appetizing, and builds sturdy bodies, keen brains and steady nerves.

Comes ready to eat from the package, fresh and crisp.

A QUARTER CENTURY AGO

"The souls we loved are still alive,
The names we loved are Freedom's boast;
O clasp these glorious truths, and strive
To realize what Freedom cost."

Tomorrow when you stand by and see the grizzled veterans of the Civil war moving along in parade you will find that their division of the whole pageant is the smallest numerically, for as the years have gone by their ranks have fast grown thinner and only a few now remain. In order to give an idea of the truth of this statement I am republishing the roster of the Memorial day parade of quarter of a century ago. Some of the men whose names appear as present on that occasion you will see in line tomorrow, notable among them being Capt. Geo. E. Worthen, superintendent of state aid, who will never grow old, but the majority have spread their silent tents on Fame's eternal camping ground.

A New Back for an Old One—How a Lowell Resident Made a Bad Back Strong

"The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Lowell citizen.

Mrs. Ellen Burke, 153 Shaw street, Lowell, says: "My back used to bother me constantly. I suffered from sharp pains through my loins and I was also subject to dizzy spells. I had rheumatic twinges in my right shoulder and my limbs used to be crippled up. The kidney secretions were annoying. I finally got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I was relieved in a few days, and four boxes cured me."

NEW BUILDING OPERATIONS

Building enterprises are starting up in good shape at the present writing, particularly on houses and alterations. The builders feel that there will be a boom within a short time, for it is said that a large number of depositors at the Traders' National bank had planned to erect new houses this summer, but inasmuch as their money was tied up at the bank they had delayed their plans. It is felt now that over a million dollars is being put into circulation with the paying off at the bank that business will take a great leap.

The real estate dealers are also expecting a boost in their business. One man told the writer that he had a number of sales almost closed when the news of the closing of the Traders bank reached his clients, and that most of them were depositors at the said bank and accordingly the sales were not made. He hopes now that the parties will finish the business they started before the closing of the bank.

Building Operations

Demitrios G. and Vas[illegible] Karelas have started work on removing their building located in the rear of 417 Market street. The building will be moved back about 14 feet on the same lot. A new foundation will be built and the lot formerly occupied by the building will be leveled off and beautified for the present, probably at a later date the owners will erect a modern building.

The barn of Mrs. Maude A. Hosford at 655 Westford street is being remodeled into an addition to the dwelling house adjoining. Two sleeping rooms and a bath room will be installed therein and the roof will be raised.

Work has been started on alterations in the Unitarian church building at 88 Merrimack street. The front of the store now occupied by the Alpha Shoe store will be remodeled and the basement changed over. The windows will be narrowed and the interior of the place will be refinished.

A gang of men are now busy doing general repairs at the old Belvidere woolen mill on Howe street. The place is now owned by John A. Simpson. The alterations will consist of joining together the two buildings under one roof, roof the brick mill and construct a new cement floor in the basement. These changes will keep Mr. Simpson's men busy for some time.

Alfred T. Coles has started work on the erection of a dwelling house at 950 Middlesex street. The new house will contain seven rooms with pantry and bath and will be 24 by 31 and will be equipped with a steam heating system. This is the first of five houses which he is to build there.

An addition to the [illegible] storage shed of the Davis & Sargent Lumber Co. in the rear of 617 Middlesex street is being made and several men are [illegible] on the job. The addition will be of wood construction and will be 30 by 70 feet.

The same company is [illegible] building another addition to its [illegible] storage shed in the rear of 617 Middlesex street. This addition will also be of wood and will be 8 by 60 feet.

James R. Trevors is building a piazza, 7 by 12 feet, to his building at 58 White street.

As announced exclusively in The Sun's building news a few weeks ago, Daniel Sakelarios, the young man who purchased several dwelling houses in the vicinity of Market and Worthen streets, is making extensive changes to his property. At that time it was announced in The Sun that Mr. Sakelarios would demolish the brick structure at the corner of Worthen and Market streets and erect in its stead a modern tenement house with stores. This week he called at the office of the superintendent of public buildings and took out a permit for this work, and operations will be rushed along. As soon as the new building is finished, Mr. Sakelarios will tear down the other old buildings and start work on modern dwelling houses.

Andre Belanger has taken a five-year lease on the property located at the corner of Merrimack and Decatur streets, owned by Ephrem Pelletier, and in a few days he will start work on remodeling the place. Mr. Belanger will build a store extending to the sidewalk, and it is possible that he will do considerable work in the interior of the building, which is now being used as a lodging house.

Avila Sawyer has signed the final papers for the purchase of the Hall property in Moody street near the corner of Spalding street. The property consists of a two-tenement house, a stable and a large tract of land. In the fall Mr. Sawyer will probably change over the two-tenement house into a three-tenement building and also build a six-tenement house on the spare land.

Pierre Gregoire of this city, who for many years has conducted with his wife a large millinery store in Merrimack street, has started the building of a number of summer cottages at Mountain Rock, and before the summer is over Mr. Gregoire intends to have a half dozen or more finely finished houses in that district. One of the cottages is completed and is a beauty. It contains four rooms and the interior finish is of hardwood. The other cottages will be four, five and six-room buildings. There is a great demand for summer homes in that district and if Mr. Gregoire finds it a profitable investment it is probable he will erect several more next year for he is the owner of a very large tract of land in that vicinity.

PRIEST VERY ILL

Rev. Fr. Donahoe of St. Peter's at Hospital in Boston

The people of St. Peter's parish and indeed many others in all parts of the city will regret to learn that Rev. Charles A. Donahoe, the able, energetic and popular young priest who succeeded Rev. Fr. Burns recently as head of the Holy Name society is dangerously ill at the Carney hospital with a serious brain trouble. Rev. Fr. Donahoe was stricken last Tuesday at his home in Cambridge and was taken from there immediately to the Carney hospital where he lies in a precarious condition. Reports from Dr. Thomas J. Leen, who is attending him, were not optimistic this morning, and though all who knew the magnetic clergyman are hoping for the best, the outlook is not reassuring. This morning at the early mass, Rev. Dr. Kelliher, the pastor of St. Peter's asked the prayers of the congregation for Fr. Donahoe's speedy recovery or happy death.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. William Everett Adams of Chelmsford and Miss Ethel Helena Seeble took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Seeble, in Chelmsford last evening. The occasion also marked the anniversary of the birth of the bride, and the wedding was largely attended by relatives and friends of the happy couple. The clergyman was Rev. E. A. Robinson, who was assisted by Rev. L. L. Greene. The ushers were David E. Seeble and Adelbert E. Adams, brothers of the bride and bridegroom, respectively. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the middle west and upon their return on Oct. 1 will make their home in Chelmsford.

Didn't Break Its Neck

The old Sun has the following on underground wires:

"At a meeting of the directors of the New England Telegraph and Telephone company Wednesday a sum sufficient to construct the underground system in Lowell was set apart for that purpose. The management say that they will soon commence construction, and Lowell aerial telephone wires inside the central district will soon be a thing of the past. It is not probable that the company will break its neck hurrying the wires underground."

The Sun, as ever, was right. The telephone company didn't break its neck and ere the wires got underground the overworked editor of The Sun had ground out editorials in volumes on the danger of the overhead wires while it had become the popular custom when a fire started from an origin that wasn't certain to attribute it to electric wires. But the wires in the down town district finally went under where they at present repose.

Dr. Reilly's Benefit

Lowell has never been at a loss for good singers, male or female, and a quarter of a century ago the late Dr. William B. Reilly, a tenor who made his mark in grand opera was at the height of his popularity, in this city. The old Sun gives us the following account of a benefit performance in honor of the doctor which was presented by local talent:

"At Huntington hall, Wednesday evening, Dr. William B. Reilly, Lowell's best tenor, was given a complimentary benefit. A comfortably well-filled house listened to the music of the opera, 'Billie Taylor,' and gave expression to its appreciation of the performance by frequent outbursts of applause. Dr. James Reilly of Boston held the baton over the orchestra and he succeeded in making the chorus, soloists and musicians work in perfect harmony, an unusual happening at amateur performances. The singing was remarkably correct and the acting was all that could be expected. Miss Mary E. Brady, the 'Phoebe' of the opera, was careful in her acting and sang the difficult music with great spirit. Miss Katie L. Gallagher's 'Arabella' was well done in every particular. Miss Sarah T. McCaffery made a comely and sweet voiced 'Susan.' Dr. Reilly as 'Billie Taylor' was perfect. Michael J. O'Connell as 'Captain Frapper' showed off to the best possible advantage. Joe. G. Duffy drew considerable melody and not a little fun out of the character of 'Christopher Crab.' Frank J. Doherty as 'Ben Barnacle' and Thomas A. McCaffery as 'Eliza' did the comedy business in fine form, and sang their solos smoothly. Zeph R. Pihault as 'Sir Mincing Lane' was well up with the other actors. The chorus was strong and positive and the performance as a whole was very good, and reflects credit on every person connected with it."

Mary E. Brady of 25 years ago is now Mrs. Peter Kelly of Los Angeles, Cal., where her husband who in those days was a clerk for J. L. Chalifoux, is now a leading merchant. No Lowell persons who visit the City of Angels should miss looking up Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, for the many who already have been their guests give glowing accounts of their hospitality and the latch-string is always out for anyone from the Spindle City. Miss Katie L. Gallagher is now Mrs. Israel H. Sternberg, wife of the inimitable "Ikey," formerly of the Lowell News, and president, vice president and secretary of the famous "Shut club" of days gone by. He would also have been the treasurer, but the club was so constituted that it didn't need one, its motto being "ways without means." Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg from the day of their marriage have been one of the happiest, merriest and most hospitable couples ever joined in matrimony. Together they share each other's joys and sorrows, but not their avoirdupois, for "Stern" is "hog-fat" at 115, while Mrs. Sternberg is—well, buxom. Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg are now residents of Revere, Mass., where "Stern" holds down a responsible position with the suburban Heat, Light and Power Co. They are frequent visitors to Lowell. Columns might be written about the annals of the "Shut club," but it was not only a limited corporation, but also a secret society. Joe Duffy is a well-known printer, now of Boston, who formerly was employed on the old News and who lived in Tewksbury and subsequently in the Oaklands, while Zeph. Pinault, who before entering into business for himself at the corner of Central and Middle streets, was employed at Talbot's. He is now in business in New Bedford.

The Musical McCafferys

If you should ever meet anyone named McCaffery hailing from Belvidere, make a bet that he or she can sing, and nine times out of ten you'll win. Miss Sarah McCaffery who 25 years ago made a very youthful "Susan" is now Mrs. Terrence F. Cox and is frequently heard in solos at the Immaculate Conception church. "Tom" McCaffery is her brother and "Tom" is right there with the voice as yet, though he is now a resident of the state of New Jersey, having been here on a visit only a short time ago. Tom and Mrs. Cox are cousins of the late Margaret McCaffery who was one of Lowell's leading singers up to the time of her death and also cousins of Dan McCaffery, who after leaving Lowell sang himself into popularity in Lawrence, where he now holds down the job of city store-keeper. Whenever Commissioner Paul Hannegan of the down-river city gets down-hearted he sends for Dan to sing to him and his troubles immediately vanish. Dan in his younger days was with the Boston Opera company and played a prominent part in the original production of the Irish opera, "Shamus O'Brien." It is seldom that one runs across a first-class quartet made up of sisters and brothers, but the McCaffreys of Lowell had such an organization and it had the goods. The members were Miss Margaret McCaffery, soprano; Miss Katie McCaffery, contralto; Mr. Dan McCaffery, tenor and Mr. John McCaffery, baritone.

The Clerk Gets His

The Sun of a quarter of a century ago had the following little story:

"In the early days of Gen. Benj. F. Butler's practice, he was required to give some legal notice in a suit in which he was engaged. The judge asked him to name the newspaper in which he desired to have the advertisement inserted. Butler was at that time an ardent northern democrat, and the Lowell Advertiser, a journal entirely ignored by most of the community, was the only organ of his party in the judicial district.

"In what paper?" asked the clerk, contemptuously, when told to insert the notice in the Advertiser. "I don't know such a paper."

"May it please your honor," Butler replied, "I trust the clerk will not interfere with the proceedings by attempting to tell us what he doesn't know, because if he does, we might as well adjourn until after the day of judgment."

A Butler Story

Speaking of Gen. Butler brings to my mind the time when he defended Mr. John H. Harrington, the proprietor of The Sun, in the famous Morrison libel suit. I have heard Mr. Harrington tell the story several times, but this is the first time it has been printed. It shows us one phase of Butler's character and his adroitness as a lawyer, as well as his well known admiration for a little dash of fighting blood in any man, be he client, friend or adversary. This story, I have no doubt, would have been printed before but for Mr. Harrington's well known aversion to printing anything about himself in his own paper, and perhaps when he sees this in print I may lose my job, but I will take the chance, for the story is really too good to keep.

It seems that the late John Henry Morrison, a prominent and successful lawyer, who was very sensitive to criticism, took exception to something that appeared in The Sun, and immediately brought suit against the proprietor of the paper, placing the ad dammum at the enormous sum of $100,000. This was the first serious libel suit brought against Mr. Harrington, and he proceeded without delay to secure the services of Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who at that time was unquestionably the most conspicuous and brilliant member of the Massachusetts bar.

Sheriff Henry G. Cushing was then in office and served the writ through one of his deputies, placing a keeper in charge of The Sun plant with instructions to let nothing out of the premises. The law, which has since been amended, did not in those days afford a publisher fifteen days in which to file bonds, and Mr. Morrison purposely made the attachment on a Friday with the obvious intention of preventing The Sun from being issued and distributed on the following day, which was its regular publication day, the Sun being then a weekly.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, Mr. Harrington felt that he would make no mistake in meeting this crafty move by employing Gen. Butler, who had more tricks up his sleeve than all the sheriffs and lawyers in this section of the country. The general was at home when Mr. Harrington called and, as was his custom, he began chewing the end of an unlighted cigar while Mr. Harrington told the particulars of the case. He would take the cigar out of his mouth every little while to ask a question, and then shake his head, close his eyes and begin chewing vigorously on the diminishing cigar. When he got the entire matter fixed in his mind, he turned to Mr. Harrington and said: "That article is not libellous, if it is true. You say it is true, but the burden is upon you to prove that it is true. Can you prove it?"

"I can," said John H.

"But you know it costs money to go into court and prove anything," said Ben. "Now, what do you want me to do? Will I fix this thing up and make the best settlement possible, or will I go ahead and fight it?"

Of course everyone knew that Butler's fees were enormous. It was not a question of dollars but thousands of dollars to retain the services of Ben Butler at that time. Mr. Harrington knew this and knew that he probably would have a handsome bill to pay before Ben Butler would be through with the case, but, nevertheless, he turned to Butler and said: "General, I know that I never libelled Mr. Morrison. I printed only the truth about that case, and I did it for a good purpose. He is taking me at an unfair advantage and trying to stop the publication of my paper from pure spite, and Sheriff Cushing is helping him because he is sore over The Sun's exposure of county ring methods and its opposition to his re-election. I don't want you to settle the case, general. I

and I want you to fight it to the limit, and what is more, I want you to fight Cushing and Morrison to a standstill, and when you get the last drop of blood in both of their bodies, send me your bill and I will pay it, if I can."

Mr. Harrington in his excitement gave the arm of the general's chair a whack with his fist as he finished, and the general, pulling the cigar from his mouth, lifted his heels and stamped them on the floor and shouted, "Good for you, my boy, good for you. If you will only fight them like that, they will soon let you alone. Now I will take that case with a great deal of pleasure, and if I don't make Morrison and Cushing eat a peck of dirt before this case is over you may conclude that Ben Butler has lost his cunning."

He shook hands with Mr. Harrington and said he would send junior counsel to take care of preliminary matters next morning, but he would be at his house any time the following day if needed.

That evening Charles Howe, Esq., was selected as junior counsel and he made several offers to provide a satisfactory bond to dissolve the attachment, but Morrison would not listen to it. He was determined to stop one issue of the paper at any cost, and Cushing stood by him like a brother.

The next day the press started about noon on the edition and the keeper tried to stop it and in doing so nearly lost his life. He finally made up his mind to allow the workmen to print the papers, provided they didn't remove any of them from the premises, and there he sat until the entire edition was printed and ready for the carriers.

Meanwhile The Sun was overrun on the streets and Morrison was chuckling and telling his friends that there would be no Sun that day.

Mr. Harrington, seeing that the situation was desperate, drove to Butler's house and told him of his dilemma.

"Well," said Ben, "you have, as I understand it, a composing room on one side of the building and your press-room is on the other side. Dividing these two rooms is a public corridor which all the tenants of the building use." The building in question was the old Card Co. building in Shattuck street and the corridor was neutral ground between the two departments, and practically the same as if it were out-of-doors.

"Now," said the general, with a cunning twinkle in his eye, "don't you think you could induce that keeper to step into the corridor for a moment and if he does, don't you think you have a man strong enough to lock the press-room door and hold it there until you get the edition out of the window?"

"I think I can do it," said Mr. Harrington.

"Be sure you don't lay hands upon the officer of the law, for then you would be liable for a criminal assault; but if he goes out voluntarily," said the general, with another sly wink, "he will have to make another attachment in order to get in again."

"I understand you thoroughly," said John H., as he jumped into the buggy and was driven to The Sun press-room on Shattuck street at breakneck speed.

Rushing through the corridor and opening the door of the press-room, Mr. Harrington shouted in a loud voice to the keeper: "Are you going to allow people to steal my type in the other room? Are you not responsible for the safety of my property in the composing room as well as in the press-room?"

With a look of terror on his face, the keeper left the press-room and rushed across the corridor into the composing room to catch the imaginary thieves.

Quick as a flash John H. jumped through the press-room door and locked it, putting two sturdy men up against it with instructions to "hold the fort."

When the keeper found he was fooled he returned and knocked at the door, commanding that he be admitted, in the name of the law, but he was politely requested by the pressmen on the inside to go to a place where newspapers cannot be printed on account of the heat.

Meanwhile the edition of The Sun was being sent down the back stairs and through the window, over the passageway, where the newsboys received their papers and started through the city to deliver them about an hour behind time.

The first boy was instructed to present a copy to Mr. Morrison and another one to Sheriff Cushing, with Mr. Harrington's compliments, and when they received the papers they were in hot consultation with the humiliated keeper, whose hair was standing up with excitement over the tongue-lashing which Morrison and Cushing were giving him for his asinine stupidity.

A return trip in the carriage to Butler's house resulted in

in which the general joined, and laughed louder than anyone present. The Sun was out and it was an easy task to adjust the matter of bonds the following week.

Butler then prepared to start proceedings against Sheriff Cushing and his bondsmen, declaring he would hold them responsible for all loss or damage sustained through the unwarranted proceedings of the previous Saturday, and he vowed he would have Morrison up for disbarment before he got through with the case.

Butler maintained from the first that the article was not libellous, if the facts were as represented by The Sun and he furthermore insisted that he would have no difficulty in disproving any presumption of malice against the proprietor of the paper. The only mal-

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

During a long debate in the legislature last Wednesday it was said that recently at Albany Governor Glynn of New York declared the workmen's compensation act of Massachusetts to be the best in the country. This is a high tribute coming from such a source, especially when it is considered that the workmen's compensation act of this state is scarcely out of the experimental stage. The debate in the legislature followed the introduction of a bill which provided that an employer of labor might file a bond with the industrial accident board to meet any of his obligations under the workmen's compensation act, without doing business through an insurance company. The bill would mean a great advantage to employers of labor, but evidently the legislators considered that it would be a dangerous innovation, for after detailed and intelligent discussion it was rejected. At first sight it is not apparent that the bill would interfere with the rights of either employers or employed, yet its rejection at the present time was wise, for the tendency to amend laws and to supplement them with new provisions before the old have been fully tested, is hardly commendable, though the Massachusetts legislature frequently errs in this direction.

In one form or another compensation acts either have been or are being adopted by all progressive states. The Eccles mine disaster has been the means of drawing national attention to the workingmen's compensation act adopted by West Virginia a little over a year ago and put into effect last October. Under this act the state will pay $2200 a month during the coming year to those made widows and orphans by the Eccles mine tragedy. Each widow will receive $20 per month and each child under fifteen will receive $5 a month. The state has also borne the cost of funeral expenses. West Virginia is one of the five states having state managed compensation systems; its fund is managed by the public service commission and maintained by assessments upon employers, contributions from workmen and subsidies from the state to cover the administration cost. All other industries are included as well as mining.

In all, 23 states have clearly defined compensation acts at the present time, and seven or eight others have them in one form or another. Still others are agitating them with every prospect of speedy success. Their provisions vary necessarily owing to different labor conditions in different localities, for a law affecting those who work in mines for instance would scarcely be applicable to those who work in the textile industry. Wherever such acts have been accepted and placed on the statute books, they have been the source of benefit to workmen and to the state, though undoubtedly in individual cases, they do not work as satisfactorily as did the old system of private compensation. Viewing the matter in a broad light, anything which would impair the efficiency of the Massachusetts act should be frowned on by the legislature until the principle of the law is too well established to be hurt by innovation or amendment.

UNGRATEFUL REFUGEES

Interests in press and public opposed to President Wilson and the administration in general are striving to arouse condemnation of the government's Mexican policy, owing to revelations of refugees who escaped from that country or who were ordered out during the blockade of Vera Cruz or immediately afterwards. Many of these were treated with great indignities and suffered many privations, and quite naturally they resent such treatment and think that an army should have gone into Mexico at the time and protected them in every particular. But this is a case where the welfare of the individual must be weighed against the welfare of the nation, and most unbiased people will conclude that in this respect at least the government could not have acted other than it did without serious consequences.

In the first place, the humiliations and insults heaped on American citizens were not at the command of any Mexican government representative, but were the natural growth of mob spirit, inflamed by false rumors. The Mexican rabble really supposed that war was on, and every American was to them the embodiment of foreign aggression. Believing this, they did what probably many Americans would do if the case were reversed, allowing for the baser spirit of Mexican civilization or the lack of it. It is very strange that there were not many more serious outbreaks and loss of many American lives.

Would matters have been remedied had the government threatened to bombard every Mexican port and send armed forces over the border? Had such happened, many of the refugees who have lived to rail against their government would be very silent at present. Instead of a score of dead we would probably be counting the victims in hundreds, and the situation would not be a whit better than at present. It was unavoidable that there should have been some rioting, but those who have escaped with their lives have far greater reason for gratitude than for complaint.

It has also been commonly asserted that other governments such as England and Germany, got a greater degree of respect for their subjects than did America. They have every opportunity to do so, for if war should break out in Mexico against any foreign enemy at the present time, it is America which should do the heavy share of fighting, under the Monroe Doctrine. Hiding, then, behind American responsibility, other nations were undoubtedly able to speak with more authority than this country which sought conciliation from the first. The Mexican situation has been a bad mess, but it is not difficult to see how it could have been made far worse. It is lucky for the future of the country that the government is not guided by jingo arguments such as are used by many of the refugees who feel that the army and navy were instituted for their special benefit.

MEMORIAL DAY

Year by year we grow farther away from the wars of earlier days, and year by year the ranks of the veterans grow thinner, mowed down by a more implacable foe than they faced on the battlefield. Yet while even one remains, something noble will link the America of the present with that of the past, for the prosperity and prestige we now enjoy among the nations of the earth has been made possible largely through the efforts of the brave men, some of whom will visit the soldiers' graves tomorrow in loving remembrance of those who fought with them side by side and preceded them into the land of everlasting peace. Many of our older people need no reminder of the dignity of Memorial day, for their hearts are linked in family love or in the closest bonds of friendship with someone who ranks with the veterans or who sleeps under one of the little memorial flags in the cemeteries. Those who were so associated with the veterans by personal bonds know the heartaches, the pain and the triumphs of glorious victory, blended with the cries of Rachael mourning for her children, refusing to be comforted. Some of our citizens—alas like the veterans themselves, growing fewer yearly—saw them go out in the flush of their manly pride, saw them come home victorious, and will see them tomorrow decorating the graves of the departed with tear-dimmed eyes. To such Memorial day is a unique day, sacred in its appeals to the higher patriotism.

It is a duty we all owe to the veterans and to the country, to explain the significance of Memorial day to the young, for not to understand it is to miss something ennobling. Tomorrow we should review the story of the past wars with their bravery, their sacrifice, their glorious culmination. We should tell our children the meaning of the various services in all the cemeteries of the city, the salutes, the prayers, the touching memorials. We should impress on them the necessity for honoring the thinning ranks of the veterans before whom Columbia herself bows in silence. Soon the time will come when the veterans of the Civil war will no longer go to honor their comrades on Memorial day, for all will have answered the final reveille. Yet their memory shall not die. The beautiful custom of commemoration has been taken up reverently by civic organizations, and through the ages the memory of our veterans will be kept green to point the way for the men of the future.

ABOLISHING GRADE CROSSINGS

A contemporary after reviewing some statistics concerning the number of grade crossings in some sections of the country comes to the conclusion that the railroads are making a grave mistake whether regarded economically or from the humane point of view in permitting so many crossings to exist despite the universal condemnation which they evoke, the many deaths and consequent lawsuits, and the constant menace at points of heavy traffic. It says that within the limits of greater New York alone there are no fewer than 447 of these crossings which a year ago were designated as dangerous. Such a designation was backed up by an official statement a year ago which declared that no less than 100 persons were killed and 150 injured at such crossings within the limits of New York. Commenting on these facts, the newspaper in question says: "That the situation is so serious is a discredit to the railroads and the state and city authorities, for it can easily be remedied."

Luckily our crossings have not claimed a heavy toll of life, but prevention demands that they be eliminated, aside from the claims of progressive business such as one might expect in a city like Lowell. When conditions have existed for years people are apt to grow apathetic, but one fatality would awaken a spirit that could not easily be quelled. Far better that the Middlesex crossing and the other more dangerous ones be removed before some shocking accident awakes the public to the seriousness of the situation.

ENGLISH GRAFT

The recent court cases in England involving army officers who admitted having accepted bribes from representatives of trade concerns calls attention to the fact that America has not a monopoly on political graft by any means, though one who has discussed English politics with some Englishmen undoubtedly has been told that the methods of crooked American politics are unknown in the old country. Indeed the cases that came to trial recently are but indications of a condition in the English army that is widespread. At the present time there is a feeling against army arrogance among the British masses that the graft case will not tend to diminish, and one of the reforms of the near future is a thorough cleaning out of the undesirable elements, whether among the army heads or among the rank and file.

Mayor Curley of Boston has humanely arranged with the chairman of the Boston park and recreation board that during the hot months the city bath houses shall be thrown open and that people shall be allowed to sleep on the commons and parks. Unfortunately we have no bath houses, but the second part of the order might be advantageously copied locally when the hot spell returns.

QUARTER CENTURY AGO

ice in the case he declared was on the side of Morrison and the sheriff, both of whom he charged with being in collusion, not for the purpose of obtaining damages, but for wreaking vengeance upon the publisher of The Sun, by attempting to stop the circulation of his paper in a needless manner.

The sureties offered by Mr. Harrington were signed by some of the wealthiest and most responsible business men in the city and were amply sufficient to satisfy any reasonable plaintiff, and would undoubtedly have been approved if Butler saw fit to present them to any superior court justice in chambers or even at the judge's house, which is often done by lawyers in an emergency. But the general didn't want to do this, preferring to allow Morrison and Cushing to go the limit, even to the extent of stopping the circulation of that edition, in order that he might have them on the defensive and be able to dictate his own terms, in case the question of settlement or the amount of damages should ever come up. The fact that the edition came out in spite of them left both plaintiff and the sheriff in just as bad a predicament as if they had succeeded in stopping it, and it is plain that Butler by this piece of strategy killed two birds with one stone and became master of the situation.

The sureties on the bonds represented property aggregating over half a million dollars and the fact that they were not accepted, Butler declared, would be sufficient not only to imperil Morrison's standing as an attorney, but would result in the removal of Cushing from office. On this point the general was very emphatic and as a result Morrison became alarmed and retained a prominent attorney who, in consultation with Gen. Butler, was reminded of the fact that property under attachment was in the custody of the sheriff, and if there was any liability of it being destroyed or reduced in value while in his possession he and his bondsmen would be responsible. Butler cited a case where an officer attached a quantity of hides in a vat at a tannery and kept them in the vat under attachment until they were destroyed. This officer was held liable for the value of the hides regardless of the merits of the case, and in the final accounting he and his bondsmen were obliged to make good to the tanner who was subjected to this of attachment.

To attach a lot of newspapers and hold them for even two hours after the usual time of publication, would destroy the value of the edition. They were worth nothing then, but the price of old paper, whereas if distributed on time they would be worth five cents apiece, which was the price of The Sun in those days. Had they allowed the papers to be sold and held the money subject to the order of the court, they would have had the law on their side. But they had no right to hold the papers, particularly as they had all the machinery, type, presses, tools, engravings, etc., under attachment, which were worth many times the value of the papers. The intent to work needless and irreparable damage to Mr. Harrington and his paper was too glaring to be denied.

This alarmed the sheriff and his bondsmen and they, together with Morrison, decided that they had made a mistake and overtures for a settlement came, not from the defendant's side, but from the plaintiff. The result was that Mr. Morrison withdrew the suit, paid the costs and wrote a letter to Mr. Harrington in which he stated that he was satisfied that there was no intention on the part of the proprietor of The Sun to injure him, and if there was any malice it came from some of his employes who, according to Mr. Morrison, had not been on very friendly terms with him.

In short they had to eat their peck of dirt as Butler predicted they would do and in consideration of the humiliating gastronomic performance, Butler suspended hostilities against both Morrison and the sheriff. It was a glorious victory for The Sun, but the question in Mr. Harrington's mind was how much was it going to cost him. Hiring Ben Butler was no child's play and Mr. Harrington knew it. In due time he wrote a letter to the general, asking for an appointment to consider the question of counsel fees, etc. The general replied that he would meet him at his house in Belvidere a few evenings later, and accordingly with some trepidation and a mental calculation of the size of his insignificant bank account John H. took his way to the heights of Belvidere and was invited to await the general in the sitting-room.

The old warrior came in with a smile on his face and commanded the trembling publisher of The Sun to be seated. After congratulating him on the glorious ending of the bloodless battle, Butler settled himself in his chair and indicated that he was ready to hear what his visitor had to say.

"I came, general," said Mr. Harrington, "to learn how much I owe you for your services."

"Well," said the general, "that's very proper. Of course you understand I usually get a pretty fair-sized fee for a case of this sort."

"I know it," said the anxious publisher, as his tongue stuck in his throat and thoughts of a mortgage loan on his plant were flitting through his brain. "I know that very well, general, but I would like to know the worst as soon as possible."

The general looked at him for awhile and said: "I have made up my mind just what I am going to charge you." (Another chill in the region of the publisher's heart and a slowing of the editorial pulse.)

"Very well, general, what is it?" the visitor gasped.

"Well," said Ben, with a squint at John H. that added to his terror, "you remember I asked you if you wanted that case settled?"

"I do," said Mr. Harrington.

"To settle a case like that would cost a certain sum of money, but do you remember when I asked you if I would settle it or fight, you said: 'General, I want you to fight to a finish, and I want you to get the last drop of blood in those fellows' bodies, and when you get it I will pay the bill, if I can?'"

"I remember that very well," said Mr. Harrington.

"Well," said Old Ben, "when you said that I liked it so well, and

I LIKED YOUR PLUCK

and your spirit so well, Mr. Harrington, that I then and there determined that I would not charge you a cent, and that I would see you through to the end without a nickle for my services."

This was too much for the young publisher of The Sun. A big lump came up in his throat that nearly choked him, and it was fully a minute before he could speak.

"General, do you mean that?" he said with his handkerchief up to his eyes.

"I mean every word of it," said the old war horse with a smile, that Mr. Harrington declared made his wrinkled face look handsome. "You don't owe me a cent and I am glad to be of service to a young man with your pluck, and if you continue to stand up when you know you are right and fight for what you believe to be right, you will come out on top."

"Now," said he, handing Mr. Harrington a letter, "I want you to go up to see Col. Dimon, who is agent of the cartridge works, and take this letter to him, and he will tell you what it means.

After an exchange of courtesies and an assurance from the old general that he might call upon him in any emergency, Mr. Harrington, with a light heart, took his departure and the next day handed the letter to Col. Dimon. When the colonel opened and read it, he smiled and said: "Do you know what this letter contains?"

Mr. Harrington said he did not.

"Well it is an order from Gen. Butler for me to give you a portion of the printing of the labels and advertising work of the United States Cartridge Co., such of it as you can do at a reasonable and satisfactory price."

This second manifestation of the old general's kindness had a great effect on Mr. Harrington. The result was that for many years afterwards, and as long as he continued to run a job printing plant, a liberal share of the work of the U. S. Cartridge company was done in the Sun job office for which he received many thousand dollars.

Mr. Harrington had frequent occasion in after years to consult with the general on legal as well as political matters, but the grand old man would never permit him to pay a cent for his services.

Butler died in Washington and his remains were carried to Lowell. At the urgent request of the city government and citizens in every walk of life his family permitted the remains to be taken to old Huntington hall, where they lay in state with a military guard of honor day and night until the day of the public funeral. People came in droves to view the remains, and were obliged to get in line and pass by the bier and through a side door as rapidly as possible. It might have been noticed by some of the attendants that one man came down the line many times before the body was finally taken from the hall, and he delayed so long each time to look at the face of the dead general that the guards requested him to move along that others might see. They didn't know that he had a reason, neither did they know as he passed out the side door why he put his handkerchief up to his eyes just as he did that night in the general's house.

UNIMPORTANT CHANGES

AT OPENING—LIST BORE FAMILIAR HOLIDAY ASPECT—CLOSE IRREGULARLY

NEW YORK, May 28.—Unimportant variations were the rule in the early stock market dealings today. The leaders were mildly reactionary and General Motors yielded two points of its recent advance. Dealings were in exceedingly light volume and the list as a whole bore the familiar anteholiday aspect. There seemed to be some disappointment at the lack of more definite details regarding the Mexican negotiations, this feeling finding reflection in London, where Americans were mostly lower.

The Missouri Pacific situation assumed a more favorable phase in the course of the day when it became known that fully two-thirds of the holders of the $25,000,000 notes maturing June 1 had virtually assented to the extension plan. The convertible bonds were up 1½ and the stock a point. In the general market, where the dullness was unchanged, leading issues were on a parity or slightly better than at yesterday's close. A few specialties were up a point or more. London sold about 10,000 shares here, mainly Harrimans.

The market closed irregular. The dull and uneventful day was partly relieved in the later dealings after publication of President Wilson address to the manufacturers in which he bespoke their cooperation an da desire to spoke their cooperation and a desire to qualified, however, by his expressed determination to carry out his anti-trust program.

KING ALFONSO ACKNOWLEGES RETURN BY WELLESLEY GIRL—STOLEN FROM LIBRARY

BOSTON, May 28.—The return by Miss Helen J. Sanborn of Wellesley college of a beautiful Spanish manuscript, believed to have been stolen from the Columbian library of Seville, and which Miss Sanborn purchased some years ago in Amsterdam, was formally acknoledged by King Alfonso in a letter made public today. Miss Sanborn said that in looking over the manuscript known as the "Officia Varia" she found the seal of the Columbian library. Feeling that she ought to return so valuable a work, especially as the library was founded by Ferdinand Columbus, a son of the discoverer of America, she sent it to Miss Susan Huntington, director of the International Institute for Girls at Madrid, who subsequently forwarded it to King Alfonso.

The Parochial Schools

At all the parochial schools throughout the city a special program has been arranged for today in honor of Memorial day, including songs, recitations, patriotic sketches, and other exercises of a national character. As is usual at such times there is great rivalry between the various grades, and in some cases prizes will be awarded for special excellence. The principal feature of the Memorial day observance in the parochial schools is an address on the occasion, its meaning and its lessons by one of the clergymen connected with the respective parishes.

At St. Michael's, which always makes Memorial day memorable to the pupils, "In Memoriam" and "O Glory Waves" will be sung by the children of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and other songs will also be rendered, including "Flag of the Free" and "Our Loving Dead." There will be many recitations, including "Our Heroes" and "Heroes of '61," and there will be a flag salute by all the pupils of the various grades. Rev. Francis J. Mullen, superintendent of the school, will make an address, and the occasion will be brought to a close by the singing of "America" by the entire school.

At the other various schools exercises were also held, the programs being appropriate to Memorial day.

CONSTIPATION IS DANGEROUS

Pinklets, the New Laxative Really Do Correct It.

The sufferer from constipation is distressed after eating, gas forms on the stomach, the abdomen has a feeling of pressure and weight and is hard and distended.

The blood soon absorbs poisons that should have been expelled and loss of flesh shows that the body is being poorly nourished. Headaches become frequent, the patient is drowsy, irritable and sometimes faint.

Pinklets, the new laxative pills, do not wear out their effect before accomplishing their work of correcting constipation, because they do not stimulate the bowels to over-exertion. They assist nature so gently that the action is regular and thorough, yet without griping. Pinklets put the liver, stomach and bowels in harmonious perfect working order.

A short trial of Pinklets will convince you that they are the ideal laxative. Every druggist can now supply you with Pinklets at 25 cents per bottle. Write to The Dr. Williams Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a Pinklet book telling all about the treatment of constipation.

STATE HIGHWAY

Conference of Engineers Today on First Street Extension

A conference having to do with the extension of the state highway from the city line to First street, at Read street, was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon. The parties to the conference were State Engineer F. C. Pillsbury, County Engineer F. H. Kendall, David Curtin, chief engineer for the Bay State Street railway, and City Engineer Kearney. The conference was held at Engineer Kearney's office at city hall, and after the conference the engineers took a view of the street.

The plans prepared by the city engineer and his assistants were discussed. These plans include First street and the land lying between First street and the river, with accompanying levels and the width of road. The new route will be decided by these plans and an estimate will then be prepared by the city engineer's office.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuosity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your drugstores keep these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror.

The Spindle City band will report at the state armory at 12.30 to accompany the military escort to the place of assembly.

PARK COMMISSIONER M'KAY

Formally Qualified at City Hall This Forenoon

He Speaks Interestingly of Parks in European Countries

THOMAS F. McKAY

Thomas F. McKay, the recently elected park commissioner, qualified for office before City Clerk Flynn today. Mr. McKay was elected at Tuesday's meeting of the municipal council, receiving all of the five votes. He will succeed Herbert H. Russell who resigned before attending a single meeting of the board. Mr. McKay would have qualified for office sooner but for the fact that he was at Hampton beach putting his property in order for the summer.

Mr. McKay is engaged in the wholesale biscuit business and resides at 170 Rogers street. He has traveled a great deal and has always taken a great interest in park systems. He talks very interestingly of the parks in England, Ireland, France and Germany. A majority of the foreign countries, he says, take a great deal of pride in their parks and playgrounds. He says it is his earnest intention to try and devise some scheme for the development of Shedd park which he believes can be made one of the city's beauty spots. He thinks it a shame that nothing has been done there. He believes there ought to be a ball ground and recreation field at Shedd park for the enjoyment of the boys and girls of that section of the city. Mr. McKay has never before held public office.

GEN. CARRANZA TO SEND ENVOY TO CONFERENCE

Rebel Leader Notifies Mediators That He Will Send Representative to Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, May 29—Juan F. Urquidi, private secretary to Rafael Zubaran, the constitutionalist agent at Washington, arrived here today bearing a communication from General Carranza to the mediators saying he is willing to send a representative to the mediation to discuss international differences between the United States and Mexico.

Mr. Urquidi said he came merely as a messenger to deliver a communication and not to discuss issues.

When he arrived at the hotel Clifton he sent his card to Ambassador Da Gama, who sent down word that he was "busy" but did not say whether or not he would receive him later in the day.

Although Mr. Urquidi declined to make public the contents of the communication it is understood that Carranza reiterates his original declaration that he accepted mediation in principle on the condition that international questions alone should be discussed.

General Carranza is unwilling that the question of a new provisional president should be discussed at any international conference. He holds that the occupation of Vera Cruz which directly gave rise to the mediation proceedings concerns all Mexican factions as well as the Huerta government.

When the mediators learned of the arrival of the constitutionalist agent, it was said, the negotiations had proceeded to a point where the constitutionalists no longer could hope to have a voice in them.

Conferences have arrived at a standstill awaiting replies from the Washington and Huerta governments on the plan of the mediators for the settlement of the Mexican question which is now before them.

Mr. Urquidi later wrote a note to Ambassador Da Gama saying he was the bearer of a communication from General Carranza and that his mission was solely to deliver it. The ambassador immediately went into conference with the other mediators.

After their conference the mediators sent to bring Mr. Urquidi to the meeting.

CHARGED ON CROWD

MR. LAVINSKI SENT TO JAIL FOR TWO MONTHS FOR ASSAULT

When a crowd assembled in the rear of a house on Front street shortly before midnight, Saturday night, they made too much noise for Frank Lavinski and as a result a lively fight occurred between a part of the crowd that gathered to watch the fire and the Front street tenant. Mr. Lavinski. The affair was aired in court this forenoon when Lavinski was charged with assault and battery upon Stanislaw Capelk and Lawrence Bimba. Bennett Silverblatt for the complainants and George H. Allard for the defendant.

It seems that a number of men who were watching the fire objected to being ordered away from the property by the defendant and when they found out that he was persistent in ordering them off, three of the men picked up stones and bottles and threw them at the windows.

The complainants allege that Lavinski rushed out of his house and assaulted them with a sharp instrument of some kind. It is claimed that Bimba sustained a cut on his right shoulder and a bruise on the forehead while Capelk received a cut on the back, scratches on the right arm and ribs and a cut on the top of his head.

The defendant claims that he was sitting in the kitchen of his house at 73 Front street when a stone was thrown through a window. He claims that he then rushed out in the yard and hardly had left the steps when he was struck on the back by someone who disappeared in the darkness. Lavinski said that he had nothing to do with any of the complainants that night.

After reviewing the evidence Judge Enright found the defendant guilty and ordered him to spend the next two months in the Lowell jail.

TROUT AND PERCH

Thousands of Them Distributed in Brooks and Ponds Today

Another big shipment of baby fish arrived in Lowell today and today's shipment was probably the last until the fall. There have been more baby fish come to Lowell this year than for the last twenty years, and there's a reason. The Lowell Fish and Game association came into being only a short time ago and despite its youth it is one of the most progressive associations in the city. It has a membership of over 300 and every man connected with it is interested either in fishing or hunting, or both.

There were two shipments of fish today and the first to arrive were a number of cans containing 36,000 fingerlin trout. These were sent by the state fish and game commission and were distributed in brooks in and about Lowell. They arrived here at 11.45 and the following ones with automobiles and teams distributed them: Frank Hanchett, Bert Hall, Ernest Chambers, Ephraim Livingstone, George Pearson, Fred Davis and L. A. Derby, president of the Lowell Fish and Game association.

Another shipment of 60,000 white perch arrived about two hours later from New Hampshire and they were planted in Long pond. The perch were supplied by New Hampshire's fish and game commissioner, F. J. Beal. The reason New Hampshire's commissioner contributed so generously is because part of Long pond is in New Hampshire and the Massachusetts and New Hampshire commissioners have agreed upon a plan to stock the pond.

Fish and Game Warden

Elmer Houghton was appointed fish and game warden by the state fish and game commission.

The Empress of Ireland listed and was unable to get many of the boats out.

"Captain Kendall was saved, being picked up on some wreckage by No. 3 lifeboat 30 minutes after his ship had foundered. Both wireless operators, assistant pursers, chief engineers and chief steward were saved. The chief officer and purser are among the missing."

AN UNKNOWN SUICIDE JUMPED FROM BRIDGE

Vaulted Over Rail of Centralville Bridge and Succumbed to Swift Current of River — Many Witnessed the Fatal Plunge

An unknown man committed suicide shortly before 7.30 o'clock this morning by jumping from the railing on the west side of the Centralville bridge while several persons who were on their way to work watched him strike the water and then attempt to swim to shore, but the current proved too swift and after struggling for about five minutes he disappeared and was not seen again.

None of the many persons who saw the man leap from the bridge into the cold water could give a very good description of him. It is said that he appeared to be about 27 years of age, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. In what direction he came onto the bridge is not known. One of the first to discover the man in the water stated that he climbed onto the top of the railing and jumped into the stream with all of his clothing on, including a derby hat. When he struck the water he undoubtedly changed his mind about committing the rash deed and made an attempt to reach the shore. Although he was apparently a good swimmer the stream was very swift and the young man was carried under the bridge and sank with several people watching him unable to assist him to shore. The matter was reported to the police, but up till noon no one had made any inquiries about the man.

The swift stream will probably carry the body several hundred yards down the river and it will be difficult to recover it.

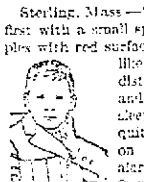
TERRIBLE ITCHING HUMOR ON FACE

Pimples Like Small Blisters. Kept from Sleep. Suffering Terrible. CuticuraSoapandOintmentCured.

Sterling, Mass.—"My humor commenced first with a small spot of little white pimples with red surface. The pimples looked like small blisters. They disturbed me after retiring and kept me from going to sleep. The spot spread to quite a good size and being on my face it began to alarm me. The suffering from its itching was terrible. It caused disfigurement.



"I tried a remedy which did not help. It was less than a month after it broke out that I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used to put the Cuticura Ointment on when going to bed and used the Cuticura Soap. The help they were doing me was seen right from the start and soon my skin was all smooth. I was cured." (Signed) W. P. Boswell, May 20, 1913.

"Why should I use Cuticura Soap? There is nothing the matter with my skin and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

MAN REPORTED MISSING DISAPPEARED RECENTLY

His Friends Anxious to Learn His Whereabouts — Fear That He is Mentally Deranged — River Banks Searched

After leaving home at 5 o'clock last Saturday morning while his parents [illegible] Supremant of [illegible] aged [illegible] years, has not returned and his parents and other relatives are anxious to learn of his whereabouts as it is feared that he might be of [illegible] not being able to [illegible] since the sudden disappearance. [illegible] of The Sun building [illegible] has learned that the young man spent a few days [illegible] near the banks of the [illegible] river, but no [illegible] found.

[illegible] Supremant [illegible] while looking down into the [illegible] since that time he has been [illegible] to work, and at times showed signs of being temporarily deranged, although he has seldom left his home on [illegible] street.

Last Friday night he retired at the usual hour and, it is said, about 5 o'clock the next morning rose and left the house dressed in a black suit. It is not believed that he wore any hat and his parents are in doubt as to whether or not he wore shoes or outside shirt. The young man is five feet and five inches tall and quite heavily built. His complexion is dark and his hair was cut very short.

A resident of Lakeview avenue states that Sunday morning about 5 o'clock he saw Supremant lying on the grass near the Aiken street bridge with a coat pulled over his head, but at the time he did not know of his disappearance and thought nothing of it. Detective Drury has also learned that on Tuesday the young man was seen in the same section walking from tree to tree and at times would sit in the shade for several minutes and then would get up and go to another shady spot. A report from the Navy Yard states that a man answering the description of Supremant was seen out there Wednesday but nothing more has been heard of him.

The parents of the missing man state that he often acted as if in a melancholy mood and never would answer anyone who addressed him on the street or in a house. He had no money when he went away Saturday morning and it is not believed that he would go searching for work or food. The banks of the Merrimack river have been searched by Detective Drury in the hope of securing some clue as to his whereabouts but all efforts have been futile and any information about the young man will be gladly received by Mr. Drury at his office in The Sun building.

AUTO SCARED HORSE

AND EXCITING RUNAWAY RESULTED—AGENT RICHARDSON'S HORSE ON RAMPAGE

Agent Charles F. Richardson of the Humane society went into the Runels building about eleven o'clock this morning leaving his horse unhitched at the curbing. A passing auto frightened the animal which ran down East Merrimack street, striking another auto in its flight. The machine was slightly damaged by the collision and the horse continued on his way dragging the team which was overturned in the crash. The horse finally kicked himself free of the carriage. Officer Wilson stopped the wild equine before any further damage resulted.

JIM DUFFY IN LOWELL

Famous Marathoner, Winner of Recent B. A. A. Race, to Run at U. S. Bunting Meet Tomorrow

Jim Duffy, winner of the recent Boston Marathon race, of the Yonkers, N. Y., Marathon, of the Toronto Ward Marathon, two-time winner of the Hamilton Herald classic and holder of the world's record for 19 and 20 miles, arrived in Lowell yesterday after a 20-hour journey from his home in Hamilton, Ontario. The famous athlete, who was accompanied by his trainer, Tom Thompson, will strive to defeat a big field in the 10-mile handicap race to be run at the Bunting Cricket club grounds tomorrow afternoon.

Duffy will take a short workout on the Bunting track this afternoon. Last Saturday at Hamilton he breezed over a government measured course of five miles in 25 minutes and 10 seconds. He was unpaced.

The young Irish Canadian has a most prepossessing appearance. Weighing 153 pounds, his five feet nine inches of bone and muscle are evenly distributed. In carriage he is extremely erect and he walks along with the lithesomeness of a natural born athlete. To judge from his friskiness and general appearance he is on edge for the fastest race of his life tomorrow afternoon. Last Decoration day, in a broiling sun and wilting atmosphere, he defeated a field of over one hundred of the fastest American long distance runners in the annual Yonkers, N. Y., Marathon race. This was the third in a string of five successive Marathons which he has won. He holds the world's record for 15 miles, 165 yards, having covered that distance at Hamilton in 1912 in one hour forty-six minutes and fifteen seconds. He is also the five and ten mile record holder of Scotland, while in the international cross country championships in Paris three years ago he finished third in a field of several hundred.

Although he is naturally at his best in races of 20 and 25 miles, Duffy expects to lead the field in the short 10 mile race tomorrow. Mr. Thompson has been working hard in putting plenty of "pep" into his stride so he should show great speed as well as his well known endurance.

Unlike many former champions with awkward action, Duffy lopes over the ground with a long, velvety, tireless stride. With each contraction of his muscles he leaves behind him approximately seven feet of space. So easily does he cover the ground that it would seem to the observer that running is as easy as breathing.

Duffy, who was born in County Sligo, Ireland, 24 years ago, is a stonecutter by occupation. Two years ago he went to Hamilton from his home in Scotland and in that city he became the athletic sensation. Outside of his work and running, the Marathon champion likes to do just two things, read and fish. In this latter recreation he has few equals along the shores of Lake Ontario for he is as persevering in angling for the elusive bass and perch as he is in winning a Marathon race.

At the New American house, where he and Mr. Thompson are staying, Duffy is resting quietly for tomorrow's race. He is of a jolly disposition and the honors that have come to him have left him as they found him, a modest, quiet, young gentleman.

The young Hamiltonian will leave Lowell Saturday night for his home town and on Wednesday he will journey to Kingston, Ontario, where he is to meet Fabre, the French Canadian runner whom he defeated in the recent Boston race.

RAY SCHALK FORGES AHEAD OF SCHANG FOR CATCHING HONORS

Last season it was a neck and neck race between Wallie Schang of the Athletics and Ray Schalk of the White Sox for premier backstopping honors. The opportunities in the world's series gave Schang the edge, and he was generally acknowledged the best in his league. The sudden rise to fame seems to have affected him somewhat this season, and his Chicago rival is playing the game of his life. Ray has the handicap of a much slighter build than Schang, but uses his head quicker and to better purpose.

GRAND JURY PROBE

WITNESSES STILL BEFORE THE JURY AT THE COURT HOUSE IN GORHAM STREET

The grand jury probe into municipal affairs was resumed at the court house in Gorham street this morning. Former Alderman Andrew E. Barrett was one of the witness. Mr. Barrett was called yesterday afternoon but upon arriving at the court house was told that he would not be required until today. Other witnesses today included Alderman Brown and City Auditor Paige. Grand jury witnesses, of course, are not telling what happens inside the jury room walls, but the impression obtains that District Attorney Corcoran has planned a thorough investigation of the charges alleging that members of the municipal council exceeded their appropriations in 1912-13. It is barely possible that the investigaton may be completed today and in that event a report might be expected within two weeks.

If you want help at home or in your business, try The Sun "Want" column.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

Well, it was a good game yesterday even if we did lose it. Of course there were several places where the local players could have improved upon their judgment. For instance when DeGroff was on third and Stimpson on first in the sixth inning poor baseball shut off Lowell's chance of tieing up the score. Stimpson started for second (there were two men out) and deliberately waited to draw Hayden's throw to Bowcock. Instead of the Rube making a dash for the plate as the play should have been worked he stuck to the third cushion and Stimpson was an easy out.

"Shorty" Dee was right on hand with his bludgeon yesterday and three clean singles bounded off his bat. "Shorty" crossed up the Portland fielders when he singled into short right field in the eighth. As a rule the Lowell shortstop hits to left efild and his blow to right was unlooked for.

Stimpson once more smote the horsehide for a brace of safeties. The left fielder seems to have gotten the habit of getting two hits in a game. If he keeps up the pace he is going now he'll hand up a new league batting record.

Two more stolen bases were chalked up yesterday to Greenhalge's discredit. Dowell's steal in the first inning would never have been executed if the Lowell catcher's throw had not been wide. It looks as though "Pete" Wacob would be doing the bulk of the work in this department if "Snubber" doesn't take a brace.

Mike Hayden's arm was greatly in evidence yesterday as several local base runners learned to their sorrow. The only Lowell runner to trifle with his whip and get away with it was Mathews, who pilfered second in the seventh, but died there when Kelley flied to Burns and Smith grounded to Williams.

The game tomorrow morning between Lowell and Lawrence at Spalding park will start promptly at 10.15 o'clock. The two teams will commence hostilities at Lawrence in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Jimmy Duffy certainly looks the part of a distance runner. His build is ideal for his specialty and he eats up the miles with a long, easy stride that is deceiving. Duffy should beat Lilly and Faber easily in tomorrow's ten-mile race.

Jesse Burkett and Jimmy Duffy had a regular pow-wow at the hotel at which both men were stopping this morning. Jesse played ball up around Hamilton when he was a youngster (that's some time ago) and the distance champion knew many people on Burkett's list of acquaintances.

It will be a rare fight for premier honors between Penn, Cornell and Yale in the intercollegiates tomorrow at the stadium. There is hardly any choice between them now, although on paper Penn would seem to stand out ahead in the track events. Just what the field athletes do tomorrow will decide where Yale and Cornell fit.

NEWS OF LEGISLATURE

Bill Affecting Strikes Discussed—Dental Nurse Bill—Blue Sky Law—Other Matters

BOSTON, May 29.—The so-called "Anti-injunction" bill, which in substance prevents the issuance of an injunction against strikers by the court unless "said injunction be necessary to prevent irreparable injury to property," was passed yesterday to be engrossed by the house of representatives.

There was an extended debate on the so-called "dental nurse" bill which provided that any person of good moral character of 20 years of age, who passes a satisfactory examination and pays a fee of $5, may clean teeth in public schools and institutions under the direction of a registered dentist. Mr. Bigelow of Framingham sought to substitute a bill which eliminated the private dental nurse, but retained all the other features. Mr. Catheron and Mr. Rothfeld were heard in favor and Mr. Mulveny, Mr. Gilman and Mr. Mahoney were opposed.

Dental Measures Rejected

Both Mr. Bigelow's substitution bill and the original "dental nurse" bill were rejected. In the morning the house refused to substitute for an adverse committee report a bill to provide for the teaching of mouth hygiene and the cleaning of pupils' teeth in the public schools.

When the regular hour for adjournment for the day arrived, Mr. Carr was addressing the house in favor of his amendment to the bill amending the Workmen's Compensation act to provide that payment for incapacitation shall begin from the day of such incapacitation instead of two weeks after as is now the case.

LOWELL MEN HONORED

MALDEN, May 29.—There is a close affinity between Kilwinning and Stirling in Scotland, and the two Masonic lodges in this state which bear those names are maintaining that relationship to the fullest degree. Kilwinning of Lowell was the host for Stirling of Malden a few months ago, and last night the two further cemented the bonds when the lodge in this city was the entertainer. To give emphasis to the exchange of courtesies, Grand Master Melvin M. Johnson was made the central figure. With the Lowell deputation were Junior Grand Warden Proctor, Past Grand Warden Stevens and District Deputy Pollard.

Past Master Charles B. Burleigh, the first master of the lodge of Stirling, was chairman of the reception committee to escort the Lowell visitors to the Grand Master and his associates were Past Grand Masters J. Albert Blake and Dana J. Flanders, Past Grand Wardens Walter F. Medding and Harry P. Ballard, Past Masters Frank T. Patron, John H. Studley, Jr., Willis I. Foss, Henry Gerrish, Jr., George H. Graves and Granville M. Thomas.

There was a hearty reception from Worshipful Master Charles E. Price. His deputy were Donald M. Cameron, W. M.; Harry A. Thompson, S. W.; Charles E. Cool, J. W.; Arthur J. Marchand (P. M.), T.; Wallace T. Batchelder, S.; Frank B. Kenney, M.; Harry A. Parkhurst, S. D.; Harry D. Thompson, J. D.; Alvah H. Weaver, S. S.; William A. Lamson, J. S.; Harry C. Briggs, I. S.; Frank L. Weaver, William W. Jones and Murray H. Pratt (P. M.) and Harry L. Woodman, all of Kilwinning. They were accompanied by Past Master Arthur D. Prince of William North lodge, Senior Warden Edson J. Humphrey and Ira M. Boothby of Pentucket lodge.

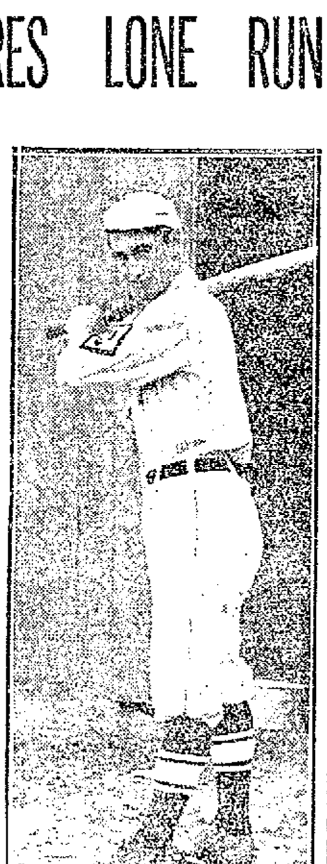
PORTLAND SCORES LONE RUN

But it Was Enough to Win Yesterday's Pitching Duel

"Shorty" Dee the Batting Star With Three Hits



"SHORTY" DEE
Lowell's Diminutive Shortstop Who Rapped Out Three Hits Yesterday

Inability to connect for hits at opportune times cost Lowell a pitcher's battle yesterday afternoon at Spalding park when Hugh Duffy's men provided the attraction. "Texas" Lohman and Williams, a big southpaw, were the mound performers.

Portland scored the only run of the game in the first inning when Clemens singled to short centre, went to second on Burns' sacrifice and scored on Dowell's single to left. Both teams looked like scores several times later on in the contest but on each occasion the heavers tightened up and retired the side. It was a good game all the way through. But one misplay, an error by Lonergan on Kelly's grounder in the fifth, marred the fielding of either team.

First Inning

Portland as usual led off. Clemens after getting in the hole for two strikes singled to centre. Burns sacrificed him to second. Bennie Bowcock was called out on strikes and put up a holler on the third strike but that's all there was to it. Dowell placed a Texas leaguer to left centre, scoring Clemens. Dowell then stole second, Greenhalge throwing high. Lonergan foul-flied to Greenhalge, retiring the side. One run.

For Lowell, Dee started with a bunt down the first base line that he made into a hit. DeGroff sacrificed him to second. Burke hit to Williams and Dee was caught on the way to third. Dee cavorted up and down the line with four Portland players playing tag with him until Burke got to second. Then Dee went out. The Portland players continued their tactics of yesterday baiting the umpire from the bench and Bannon announced that the next man that opened up would be put out of the grounds. His announcements was greeted with jeers from the Portland bench. Stimpson flied to Lonergan. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Second Inning

Portland went out in order. Hickman hit to Burke, who made a swell play, knocking the ball down one hand and making a beautiful throw to first. Merrill flied out to Stimpson. Hayden hit an easy grounder to Lohman and died at first. No runs. For Lowell, it was one, two, three. Greenhalge sent a hot one to Lonergan and was out at first. Matthews and Kelly were both victims of Bowcock's arm on grounders to second. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Third Inning

After Dee had taken Williams' fly in short left and Clemens had grounded out to Kelly, Burns doubled to left centre. Bowcock dropped a single to short left, Stimpson heading the ball on the first bound, holding Burns on third. Bowcock, before Lohman had a chance to deliver the ball, stole second. Dowell made DeGroff go some with his fly to right near the foul lines but Rube was on the job. No runs. For Lowell, Burke tried a bunt but was thrown out, Williams to Dowell. Lohman hit the ball on the nose but Bowcock was there with the handy catch. Dee went out, Lonergan to Dowell. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Fourth Inning

Lonergan went out on a grounder, Smith to Dowell. Dee threw out Hickman at first. Merrill went out Lohman to Kelly. No runs. For Lowell, DeGroff groundered out, Bowcock to Dowell. Williams in a fit of wildness passed Burke. Stimpson singled to short left, Burke going to second. Both men moved up on a passed ball by Hayden. Greenhalge and Matthews both sent line drives to Merrill. No runs.

Score: Portland 1; Lowell 0.

Fifth Inning

Hayden with three and two on him doubled to left field. Williams struck out. Hayden went to third on Clemens' infield out, Burke to Kelly. Burns closed the inning with a fly to Stimpson in short left. No runs.

For Lowell, Kelly hit an inside ball on the handle to Lonergan and got first on Lonergan's error, the first misplay of the game. Smith popped up an easy fly to Bowcock. Kelly was caught off first by Williams and ran down the line and was put out. Lohman sent up a high fly that the wind carried foul and Hayden caught it. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Sixth Inning

Bowcock, the first man up in the sixth, sent a single into left between Burke and Dee. Dowell sacrificed him to second, Kelly taking the grounder and Smith covering the bag. Bowcock went to third on Lonergan's infield out, Dee to Kelly. Hickman smashed a hard grounder to Kelly for the third out. No runs. For Lowell, Dee sent a single to left centre. DeGroff made a single to centre, Dee going to second. Burke sacrificed both men along on a bunt to Hickman. Stimpson hit to Williams and Dee was out at the plate. Dee attempted to slide under Hayden and both men rolled in a heap. Bannon ruled him out; DeGroff went to third. Stimpson attempted to get to second and was caught between the bases and went out. Rube not attempting to complete the play. It was certainly one b-u-m play. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Seventh Inning

Merrill hit a long drive to right for two bases. Hayden flied to Stimpson in deep left. Williams flied out to Matthews in deep centre. Matthews' quick return holding the runner on second. Clemens went out on a grounder to Dee, Shorty's throw just getting the former outfielder at first. No runs.

Greenhalge opened the lucky seventh with a grounder to Hickman and was out at first. Matthews hit the first ball pitched to left centre for a single. Burns took Kelly's fly in short right centre. Matthews stole second. Smith closed the inning with a grounder to Williams. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Eighth Inning

Burns met Lohman's fast one for a single to right. A fast double play shut off Portland's chances to score. Bowcock hit to Lohman; Burns was forced at second on Lohman's peg to Dee and Bowcock was thrown out at first on a close play. Dowell was easy for Lohman and Kelly. No runs.

Lohman struck out. Dee got his third hit of the game when he singled to right-centre. DeGroff sent up a high foul-fly near the grandstand which Hayden made a nice catch of. Dee attempted to go to second after the ball was caught but he was the victim of Hayden's throw to Bowcock.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Ninth Inning

Bannon called Lonergan out on his grounder to Kelly amid yells of protest from the Portland bench.

Burke ran up in front of the plate and took Hickman's fly. Merrill grounded out, Smith to Kelly. No runs.

Burns made a nice catch of Burke's fly over second.

Stimpson singled to right.

Greenhalge flied out to Burns.

Rudolph Dupont, aged seven years, of 9 Willie avenue, fell from a tree on the North common last evening and was picked up by friends in an unconscious condition. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where it was learned he sustained internal injuries.

According to Mr. Dillon, a member of the Boston park commission, this city had a display of tulips earlier than any other city in Massachusetts, this spring, and Mr. Dillon came up from Boston to look over the display. The tulips have all been taken up by employes of the park department, and will be saved for planting this fall.

Permanent grading on the westerly side of the South common is going on daily now, and, with the arrival of a carpet of grass, this portion of the common will present an unusually attractive appearance. A gravel walk has been constructed running from Summer street to a point opposite the entrance to Rowe's laboratory in Thorndike street. Much difficulty has been experienced in keeping people from walking on the newly graded part and it has been necessary to wire off a portion of it.

The dancers at the pavilion at Lakeview last evening had the rare experience of dancing for two hours practically in the dark. The high tension system, which supplies the power for the incandescent electric lights, became short-circuited early in the evening. What is technically known as the "booster" was called into play, but this furnished only enough power for the electric cars and no surplus for lighting the dance hall. A few lanterns were secured and lighted. These were placed upon the stage for the benefit of the orchestra, while the dancers whirled in the waltz and tango in the semi-darkness.

About fifty friends of Miss Delia Breton met at the home of Miss Laura Tucker, 36 Orleans street, last evening and pleasantly surprised the former with a linen shower. She received many useful pieces of linen. Although greatly surprised, she responded in a fitting manner. Solos were rendered by the Misses Bessie Monorrzynski, Rosalin Labrie and Ella Corkey. Misses Janet Campbell and Catherine Conlon played a piano and violin duet; and Misses Mary Gordon and Helen Rochette were very pleasing in humorous readings. Miss Tucker served dainty refreshments.

TODAY ENDS BIG SALE

NOT ANOTHER CHANCE TO GET REFERENCE WORK AFTER CLOSING TODAY

The reopening sale of People's Cyclopedia this week has been as great a success as was the original distribution last week, and the J. L. Chalifoux Co. has been thronged with customers eager to get this wonderful set before the sale ends at closing time today.

There's no time to lose now, for the supply is rapidly diminishing and no more sets can be had after these are gone. So it's "good-bye" to the offer after today.

People's Cyclopedia is the most useful set of books on earth. It consists of five octave volumes, bound in English cloth, magnificently illustrated throughout and regularly sells for $12. Today $1.58 will get the complete set. Surely this is an unusual book bargain.

See the announcement elsewhere in this issue and present the coupon at the store of the J. L. Chalifoux Co.

35 OFFICERS EXECUTED

FEDERALS CAPTURED BY CONSTITUTIONALISTS AT TEPIC WERE SHOT TO DEATH

NOGALES, Ariz., May 29.—Thirty-five federal officers captured by the constitutionalists at the city of Tepic were executed May 21, according to a message received here yesterday from Gen. Alvaro Obregon, the constitutionalist commander.

Gen. Obregon's message says that Rear Admiral Howard, the American naval commander on the Pacific coast, telegraphed to the German consul at Tepic to intercede for the lives of the federals "for the sake of humanity," but Obregon answered that the execution of the officers was necessary to prevent them making trouble in the future.

The federals were taken to the cemetery and shot in squads.

Steamer Sinks; 1030 Perish

Canadian Pacific Liner Empress of Ireland, Carrying 1300 Persons, Sank in St. Lawrence River After Being Rammed by Collier

MONTREAL, May 29.—G. W. S. Henderson of Montreal, who is among the Empress of Ireland survivors, telegraphed his firm this afternoon, giving the number of dead at 1030.

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 29.—More than a thousand lives, and surely not less than 700, were lost when the great Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland sank before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river, ripped open from amidships to her stern by the Danish collier Storstad.

This was the estimate made here this afternoon where the hysterical survivors, many of them pitiably maimed and almost naked were being brought. It was based on the fact that the Empress carried 1437 persons all told, of whom 399 were rescued and landed here by the ships Eureka and Lady Evelyn. The Storstad, at first reported to have more than 300 survivors on board, had sailed for Quebec after landing only a handful of rescued and a number of dead.

Of those saved crew members and third class passengers predominated. From partial lists available at two o'clock it was evident that but a mere sprinkling of the first cabin passengers were saved. Only three names of those in the cabins appeared in the preliminary lists of rescued. They were G. W. Henderson and C. R. Burt, address unstated, and Walter Fenton of Manchester.

The stricken vessel sank as if she were lead. An explosion apparently originating in her engine room hastened the end.

It is believed the great hole in the ship's side admitted such a deluge of water that many must have been overcome in their beds.

The rescued, fighting their way to the lifeboats to the careening deck clinging desperately to the rails or leaping blindly overboard, broke their arms or legs or otherwise injured themselves so badly that 22 died after being picked up. Groaning, and in some cases practically insensible, others were landed here while the populace of the village gathered with medicines and stimulants to relieve their suffering. A special train was made up this afternoon on which many were taken to Quebec and Montreal.

Sank Within 14 Minutes

The president of the Canadian Pacific railway issued a statement this afternoon saying that the Empress had sunk within 14 minutes. No one on board had time to seize his belongings, much less to dress. Those found in the lifeboats were in their night clothes. The women suffered most. Only a few were saved, according to the early lists, and indications are that they lacked the strength to combat conditions which confronted them. There was not time, as was the case on the Titanic, for calm deliberation and observation of the unwritten sea rule, "Women first."

A party of salvation army members, en route to London was almost wiped out. Lawrence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, is among the missing and other prominent persons in the first cabin were unaccounted for late this afternoon.

When the rescue ships Eureka and Lady Evelyn reached the scene shortly before daybreak they found ten lifeboats from the Empress all jammed full and many of the occupants wounded. It was still dark. Wreckage covered the river everywhere. The Storstad, her bow crumpled, was still on the scene picking up the living wherever she could. In one of the lifeboats crouched Capt. Kendall, commander of the Empress, dazed and greatly shak-

Jesse Burkett et als. Clash With Jimmy Gray's Champions at Spalding Park

Blustering Jesse Burkett and his band of pennant chasers from Worcester came to town today full of confidence. "Nothin' to it," said the doughty Jesse at the hotel this morning, "We'll eat 'em up today and don't forget it."

Notwithstanding this rather broad statement on the part of Burkett the local club showed lots of pepper when they scampered on to the diamond for their fielding practice, in fact they looked better as a baseball machine than their opponents.

"Wild" Roes and Rube Detroit were kept apart by their respective managers for very obvious reasons. During last Saturday's contest between Lowell and Worcester at Spalding Park these two husky bat swingers got into a rather heated argument. For a time it looked as though possibly a "white hope" battle might be staged at the park so earnest were the two ball players in telling each other's weak points.

The Rube was not in a pugilistic frame of mind today but "Wild" appeared all ready for anything. Before the start of the game he was seen hunting about under the visitors bench, possibly in search of a chip with which to decorate his shoulder and challenge the league's comedian.

Jesse was the same cheerful specimen of baseball manager today that he always is. Nothing but a growl and a rumble was heard out of him during the Worcester team's batting and fielding practice and whenever a player slipped up on a chance, especially an infielder, Jesse's bull roar could be heard half way to Merrimack Square. He's a Tartar, is Jesse on the ball field.

Although the weather was not as warm as that of the past two days it was ideal for a ball game and Ground Keeper Dan Finnerty had the diamond as smooth as a ball room floor. No alibis today, boys, if you miss a hop coming off the diamond.

While reputed to be a "crab" on the ball field, Jesse is a hale fellow well met when outside and this morning when the sporting editor of The Sun introduced him to Jimmie Duffy, the Manhahon hero Jesse warmed up to him right away and was talking to him like a long-lost brother within a few minutes.

"You and your manager come out to grounds this afternoon as my guest and see the game," was Jesse's cordial invitation.

"I'm sorry, but I've got to do a little running at the Bunting grounds this afternoon, to prepare for tomorrow," replied Duffy.

"O t'ell with the running; come out and see us clean up this bunch, it will do much more good," said the enthusiastic boss of the Busters.

The fans were pleased to see young Jimmie Ring on the mound for it was his second appearance and he made a good impression by his victory over Fitchburg a few days ago.

Pete Wood who this week asked for his release from Lowell and received it appeared in a Worcester uniform. He started in to pitch to the Worcester batters during the preliminary practice and in a few minutes was engaged in a chawing match with the venerable Jesse. Pete, by his well known wildness, had the Worcester players backing away like a bunch of African dodgers and when Jesse attempted to hand him a little fatherly advice, Pete came back at the old man. Pete is always there with the argument.

The attendance this afternoon was not much of an improvement over yesterday but then one might expect this on the day preceding a holiday. Lawrence will be the attraction tomorrow morning and the game will start at 10.15. Lowell will play at Lawrence in the afternoon.

The fans breathed a sigh of relief when Umpire Hardy appeared on the greensward Catcher McCune, who has been the Worcester standby for several seasons appeared behind the bat again today having been laying off with a split finger, the accident taking place on the occasion of Worcester's last visit here, the accident causing a delay that prevented the game being the shortest of the season.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Lowell	Worcester
Dee, ss	M. Carroll
Defiroff, rf	rf, Shorten
Burke, 3b	2b, Strands
Stimpson, lf	1b, Mundy
Matthews, cf	3b, Roes
Greenhalge, c	cf Stewart
Kelly, 1b	ss, Cooney
Smith, 2b	c, McCune

First Inning

Ring started off by striking out Carroll. Worcester's stubby left fielder who has been hitting the ball consistently of late. Ring had the real juice on his spitter. Shorten hit through the box for a single. Smith knocking down the ball and booting it to short left though Shorten was held on first. Shorten stole second. Greenhalge's throw being bad. Strands, the leading second baseman of the league fell for two bad ones and then sent a fly to Dee over second base. Dee caught the ball with one hand and tried to throw to Smith for a double at second but it was a poor throw and Shorten got a life at second. Ring's delivery was very low, Greenhalge being forced to block many of them after they hit the ground. Dee tried to catch Shorten off second but Ring got it there too late and again Shorten was in the running. Burke made a play on Mundy's grounder along the third base line which stamped him as a great ball player. Mundy's grounder was slow and Burke seeing that he could not get him at first made a bluff to throw to Kelly and Shorten falling for it made for third and Burke tagged him out before he could get back. No runs.

For Lowell, Sherry Dee started off with a sizzling grounder which Roes took and Roes made a nice stop and peg, getting the little fellow at first. Rube Detroit stood up and looked over Bushelman's delivery until he got four bad ones and meandered leisurely to the initial bag. The Rube had Bushelman nervous with his antics off first base. The Worcester pitcher made a few ineffectual attempts to peg him at first but Rube was on the job all the time. Rube was an easy out at second when he tried to steal, Cooney catching McCune's perfect throw. On the next ball Bushelman made a wild heave that would have counted against him had there been a runner on any of the bags. Burke after three and two on him fouled off four of them but got them all away from the fielder and finally filed out to Carroll in left. No runs.

Second Inning

Between the first and second innings Burkett got after Shorten for not wearing his sun glasses. Shorten obediently put on the goggles. Old Jesse then went out on the coaching line and received the usual reception from the bleacherites, as welcome as the measles. Strange to relate, Jesse assumed an air of indifference and paid no attention to the bunch, evidently waiting for Lowell to get a lead before holding a formal opening. Ring passed up three bad ones to Roes and then proceeded to show him the goods, fanning him and using another spitter for the third baby. It chagrined the Worcester team sucker and he retired to the water bucket, saying things sotto voce, whatever that is. Stewart convinced the third base bleacherites that he was on the job by sending in a foul tip that demolished a new straw lid, owner's name unknown. Ring sent up two bad ones and the Worcester coachers started to yell that Ring was going bad. Stewart waited and was rewarded by a walk. Greenhalge signaled for a waste ball and tried to catch Stewart off first but was defeated in his attempt by a small margin. Cooney hit to right and the Rube after running some crabbed the fly. McCune, Burkett's star pinch-hitter, was forced by Ring to send a grounder to Dee and Shorty touched second, forcing Stewart and closing the inning. No runs.

For Lowell, Stimpson Lowell's plugging left fielder laid down a bunt to Roes who pulled Mundy off the bag with a poor throw and Stimp was safe. Hardy called one on Matthews that looked rather high. On his next delivery Hardy called a ball. Matthews popped up a high fly back of second base which Strands took. Stimpson had to go some to get back to first. Greenhalge belted the ball to the left centre field fence scoring Stimpson. It was a good third baseer but Snubber was too ambitious and tried to make home on it. It was hum judgment and McCune was waiting for him with the ball while he was two yards away. Thus then Jesse opened up on his outfield for not playing the batter, Kelly took two strikes and then waited and got a free ticket to first which he accepted gratefully. Smith didn't take kindly to Bushelman's curves and his best was a foul-fly to McCune. One run.

Score: Lowell, 1; Worcester, 0.

THREE DROWNED

Steamer Wash Upsets Craft With Stalled Engine in East River

NEW YORK, May 29.—Three persons were drowned late yesterday when the [illegible] motor boat Adell, on her way down the East river from East Elmhurst, L. I., to Rockaway beach, [illegible] stalled because of engine trouble and overturned as the wash from a passing steamer threw the craft [illegible] against a scow nearby.

Those drowned were William R. Munro, a heating contractor, in business here; his wife, Emma, and Mrs. Walter Munro, his brother's wife, of Worcester. Eugene Schileben of Brooklyn, owner of the motor boat, was rescued. The bodies of William Munro and his wife were recovered. Mrs. Walter Munro's body had not been found at a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Munro were visiting his brother at East Elmhurst, but Mr. Munro did not accompany the boating party yesterday, which was on its way to Rockaway beach for dinner.

DEATH FOLLOWS HAZING

CADET AT ST. JOHN'S MILITARY COLLEGE SHOT WHILE TRYING TO DISCIPLINE FRESHMEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 29.—William H. Bowlus of Middletown, Md., a cadet at St. John's Military college here died yesterday afternoon from a bullet wound which terminated a hazing melee at the college Monday. The five freshmen who were in the room from which the bullet came were ordered arrested.

Cadets Gustavus H. Weaver of Auburn, N. Y., and Henry C. Valdez of Havana, Cuba, were locked up. The other three are out of town, but will be arrested as soon as they return to the college. They are Randall Marbury, Baltimore; Leonard Jones of Cambridge, Md., and John W. Noble of Preston, Md.

Monday night several juniors went to a room where five freshmen had congregated, with the purpose, it is said, of correcting them for some alleged misdoings. Finding the door locked the juniors demanded admittance, which was refused by the freshmen.

The juniors then began kicking on the door and threatened to break it down. A shot was fired and Bowlus, who had hold of the door, was struck. The bullet, it is said, passed through the door panel.

The government body of the college last night began a sweeping investigation of all the circumstances of the affair, as well as the hazing system at the college.

OILING THE LOCAL STREETS

AUTOMOBILE SPRINKLER WILL OUST HORSE DRAWN VEHICLE—NOW IN OPERATION

The oiling automobile of the American Car Sprinkler was put in operation in Lowell yesterday afternoon. The new arrival will do away with practically all of the horse drawn sprinkling carts. Yesterday afternoon about 2000 gallons of the oil were spread over several streets in the lower Belvidere district, the start being made in Stackpole street, and continuing through Alder street and Bartlett street. The sprinkler in the rear of the machine is nine feet in width, divided into two sections. The machine is capable of spreading 6000 gallons a day. One gallon of oil is supposed to cover four yards of roadway, and the cost to the city per yard is three cents, for oil and the use of the sprinkling apparatus. The cost is about the same as for water sprinkling, but the big difference is that one application of oil a year is sufficient. Commissioner Morse believes that the abutters will not object to paying for the oil in place of water. The sprinkler is in operation in Belvidere today.

Follow the crowd to A. O. H., tonight.

"We may forget the singer, but the song will never die."

And by the same token, long after "Joe" Smith shall have passed out of the shadow of earthly "Truth" into the light of the eternal, his famous remark, to wit: "Some laws are more respected in the breach than in the observance," shall continue to echo down the corridors of time, proving their truth as they echo along.

What are some of these laws?

For instance there's section 27 of the city charter entitled: "Publicity for Contracts." Section 27 reads in part as follows:

"Neither the municipal council nor the school committee shall make or pass any order, resolution or vote appropriating money in excess of $500, or making or authorizing the making of any contract involving the liability on the part of the city in excess of $500, unless the same is proposed in writing and notice is given before its passage, except an order, resolution or vote for the immediate preservation of public peace, health or safety which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by a four-fifths vote, etc."

Then there is section 36, entitled: "Criminal Offence to Participate in Contracts," which reads in part as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for a member of the municipal council, or school committee, or for any officer or employe of the city, directly or indirectly to make a contract with the city, or to receive any commission, discount, bonus, gift, contribution or reward from, or any share in the profits of any person or corporation making or performing such a contract."

Charlie's Automobile

Commissioner Charlie Morse, who heretofore like Richard of old, would have given his kingdom for a fairly good horse, now wants an auto and wants it P. D. Q.; for this week he introduced an order with the emergency clause attached calling for $1500 for an automobile. He got the necessary four-fifths vote and Friday finds the auto practically purchased, for on Thursday Purchasing Agent Foye stated that he was going to purchase a Jeffrey machine without the formality of advertising for bids. The Jeffrey costs $1500, and is perhaps the only car that can be bought for that exact amount, which would indicate that Charlie had the Jeffrey in mind when he introduced his hurry order.

Therefore it would appear that the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety demands the purchase forthwith of a Jeffrey automobile for the commissioner of streets and the question arises, if the public peace, health or safety is in such a precarious condition, what will become of it while the commissioner is learning to operate the new machine? He can't get a chauffeur's license until he can show the agent of the state highway commission that he can run it, and the agent will not be here until next Friday at the earliest. But that reminds me, that all things turn out for the best. Early in the year Commissioner Morse was going to "can" Supt. Putnam as a needless ornament of the department. Through the influence largely, of a local clergyman he was not "canned." How fortunate after all, for Newell can run the new automobile as soon as it becomes city property and the public peace, health or safety of the city will not be jeopardized. One of the main objects of the committee of 60 in framing the present charter was to have publicity and competition in all city contracts and some of the opponents of the charter used as an argument against it the claim that this proposition was a move to give the newspapers a lot of advertising. Business men hailed the new charter with delight for they believed that they would be given an opportunity to bid on all purchases of substantial amount. But as Joe Smith remarked—

Do you recall the awful fuss that was made whenever an automobile was purchased for the city during the past administration. If anything like the above had been put over by the O'Donnell regime the Courier-Citizen and the present mayor's official organ would froth at the mouth until it would be necessary to send for Dr. Pasteur.

Vocational School Insurance

One of the first matters called to the attention of Former Mayor O'Donnell by former chairman of the school board, John J. Farrington, when the mayor entered upon his executive duties, was the fact that there were valuable machinery and other equipment in the vocational school on which there was no insurance. Mayor O'Donnell stated at the time that if the manufacturing concerns were generous enough to provide the city with valuable machinery without cost, the city should at least show its appreciation by having such property insured and he immediately placed insurance on the equipment of the old Bartlett, old Moody and the Morrill schools, increasing it as additional equipment was installed. The former mayor also had insurance placed on the valuable Gamewell system in the police station for the first time in the history of the city. Today Mayor Murphy and the school board are wrangling over placing insurance on other valuable equipment of the vocational school, the premium for which will cost the city, for the remainder of the year, the alarming sum of $24. As the vocational school grows it will need more machinery and as new inventions in that line come into vogue the school to be up to the times will also need them. The city will not be obliged to purchase these as long as the manufacturers are willing to loan or contribute them. But if the city is not going to protect its gifts and loans after getting them, it cannot expect the manufacturers to "come across" in the future. This is certainly an economical administration.

City Hall Time Clocks

There has been a feeling of deepest unrest at city hall since it was published in the papers on Wednesday, that City Solicitor Parker of Boston had recommended to Mayor Curley that time clocks be installed at city hall as one means of increasing the efficiency and reducing the expense of his department. On several occasions in the short time that he has been chief executive, Mayor Murphy has seemed to be impressed with the idea that anything trademarked Boston should go in Lowell. He took his trial board idea from the Boston police department. Later upon reading in the papers that Mayor Curley had saved money by buying the city's coal in one lump, and unaware of the fact that the city of Lowell had been saving money in similar manner for years, His Honor sent word to the heads of departments to send in their estimates at once and got credit for something new until Purchasing Agent Foye had a word to say on the matter. And now that Mayor Curley has decided to adopt the time clock recommendation for Boston the clerks at the local municipal building are filled with fear lest His Honor continue his policy of following Boston ideas and establish these clocks in Lowell. Since Commissioner Brown handed them the tip recently, the tardy clerks have been making an entrance via the Moody street door which is remote from the mayor's office, but if the time clocks are installed the "stage" entrance will lose its popularity. Simultaneously with the adoption of the time clocks, local jewelers may look for a boom in the alarm clock business.

Dear Sir—

The mayor and chief of police have caused to be published their exchange of communications on the attendance of police officers at fires; calling attention to the fact that it is their duty to attend at second or general alarms, reprimanding those who neglected to attend a recent fire and telling them that they would let them off this time, but assuring them that if it happened again, they would be punished by suspension.

Now it has happened again, and as they are aware who the offenders are, they will be a little might embarrassed, because the men who failed to appear at the Woolworth fire are not the men they are anxious to punish, and it will be interesting to watch what those purifiers will do. They are surely in an awkward predicament.

Yours truly,
Sun Reader."

The above was written by a well known citizen and tax-payer and not by any member of the police department.

The Power of Example

Great is the power of example. When the two alarms of fire were rung in late Saturday night, Col. Carmichael came all the way down town from his home in Rolfe street, as the from his home in Rolfe street, and without rubber boots saw a good job done on the Woolworth fire. Mayor Murphy was also present on this occasion, but this time out of deference to the colonel as head of the fire department he appeared without the insignia of office, the firemen's coat and rubber boots. If there is any money available I would suggest that an appropriation be made to supply rubber boots and fire coats for use by the members of the municipal council in case of big fires. In the event of an absence of money perhaps some public spirited citizen will start a subscription to defray the expense. Solomon Robitschek, who generally starts all such good movements with the contribution of one dollar, may come across.

Former Mayor O'Donnell was at a public gathering one night during his administration and in the progress of the exercises, a well known physician rushed up to him with countenance aglow with excitement, and exclaimed: "Mr. Mayor, two alarms of fire have just rung in for a fire at Brooks'. What are you going to do?"

"Telephone up to the fire chief and tell him I said to put it out," responded the former mayor.

Deputy Sheriffs Busy

"To what base uses we may yet return, Horatio."

Deputy Sheriff Martin Courtney of this city assisted in a raid upon the celebrated Pinehurst club at North Reading, recently.

Happily, however, Martin was looking for liquor and not for tango dancers and thus he will be spared the exertion of giving an exhibition in court a la Clark and Swanwick. But wouldn't it be a spectacle for the gods to see Martin tangoing!

Our able and energetic district attorney, Mr. Corcoran somewhere must have heard the slogan, "Equal rights for all, special privileges to none," for he has been raising some merry hob throughout the county by means of his deputy sheriffs. The county of the district attorney, the grand jury and the county commissioners to Lowell simultaneously on Monday was not unnoticed but after they had gone away the following story echoed through the corridors of the court house. An innkeeper in a small town some miles from Lowell has been "doing a little business" without the formality of a liquor license with impunity, and apparently immunity, for some few years being a close friend of a high county official who it is said had assured him that everything would be all right and that if anything should happen he would be warned rather than molested. A short time ago a couple of innocent-looking gentlemen appeared at the inn and made a purchase and then informed the proprietor that they were deputy sheriffs and had come from the district attorney's office to investigate the place in search of violations of the law. The proprietor in great alarm, hot-footed to the telephone and called up his friend, the county official. The latter made haste to the inn and bade the deputy sheriffs chase themselves or words to that effect impressing upon them that he was some shucks in the beautiful county of Middlesex and that his friend was "right" and not to be molested. But the deputy-sheriffs were not to be chased and it is understood they made a complaint against the offending innkeeper. Then the county official went to the district attorney or his assistant, presumably at Lowell last Monday, to demand an explanation; and he got it right off the bat, and the court will do the rest. Times have changed in good old Middlesex since, by the contributory power of the Bull Moose, the democrats have gained the ascendancy in certain quarters.

Will He Resign?

While license commissioners, like another class of officials, seldom die and never resign, there is a report about town to the effect that License Commissioner Hanson may soon resign, possibly to give Commissioner Brown an opportunity to make good his promise to vote for a French-American candidate for the position; and therefore the French American "delivering" committee of 15, which, while it delivered the vote to Mayor Murphy last fall failed to deliver Mr. Manseau from the embarrassment of an empty honor last week, should not be down-hearted as there is yet a chance. It would be well, however, for the committee to dig up some new candidates inasmuch as Messrs. Parthenais, Manseau and Coyette failed to impress even Commissioner Brown whose love for the French-American voter some time ago was unbounded. Rumor hath it that Elie H. Laporte will be the lucky man to carry the banner but then there is his father, Damase H. Laporte, the "Mayor of Little Canada," to be considered. Speaking of "mayors," the Centralville social club would probably come forth with Edmond Traversy, the "Mayor of Centralville" as a likely candidate in the event of Mr. Hanson's resignation and then there is Henri Barry, the popular jani-

NEW $10,000,000 PLANT

UNITED STATES STEEL CORP. TO BUILD IN CANADA—IT SEEKS TO CONTROL PRODUCTS IN DOMINION

MONTREAL, May 29.—The United States Steel Corp. will erect a $10,000,000 plant in Canada at the earliest possible moment, was the statement made here yesterday by a representative of the United States Steel Corp.

The corporation has already laid aside a reserve fund amounting to $10,000,000, and it is only a question of where the plant will be located. The action by the company was only decided upon at a very recent date, and as a result of the recent tariff legislation passed at the present session of the Canadian parliament.

The plant to be erected will easily be the most costly and modern in every respect of any steel plant in Canada. The ambition of the corporation seems to be to gain the same control of steel products in Canada as they now have in the United States.

BOY OF 11 DROWNED

BOSTON, May 29.—James Morson, 11 years old, whose parents live at the rear of 155 Bennington street, East Boston, was drowned in a pond back of the Meade Morrison company's plant at Orleans and Prescott streets, East Boston, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Harry Perlmuter, 6 years old, of 326 Bremen street, East Boston, who also fell in, was rescued and revived after first aid remedies had been applied nearly an hour and a half. They slipped off rafts on which they had been paddling.

ALL CLOGGED UP? HERE'S QUICK RELIEF

MR. H. W. FENSTERMAKER

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not bear a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded, and contains such definite ingredients, that it will have equally good effect when taken by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest endorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mr. H. W. Fenstermaker, Siegfried, Pa. He says he has had wonderful results from the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin that, in fact, he has never found a remedy so good, and he is glad to recommend it. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant-tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington st., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Textile School Bill is Modified to Apply to One Year—Other Measures of Interest to Teachers

The committee on ways and means of the house of representatives to whom was referred the resolve to provide for the maintenance of the Lowell Textile school, report that the same ought to pass, but not as originally submitted.

The original proposition was $60,000 for a period of ten years, as filed by the textile school authorities and reported by the committee on education. The new draft as submitted by the ways and means committee reads as follows:

RESOLVE

To Provide for the Maintenance of the Lowell Textile School.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the commonwealth, from the ordinary revenue, to the trustees of the Lowell textile school, the sum of forty-five thousand dollars, to be expended under the direction of the corporation for the maintenance of said school from July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and for additional equipment of said school the further sum of fifteen thousand dollars. The city of Lowell is hereby authorized and directed to raise by taxation and pay to said trustees such sum of money, not exceeding ten thousand dollars, as may be necessary to provide for evening instruction in said school for residents of Lowell.

Exclude School Superintendents

It was stated this morning that an attempt would be made to amend the act relative to the tenure of teachers and superintendents of public schools by eliminating the superintendents of schools referred to in section three, part two, as follows: "A superintendent employed to serve at the discretion of the school committee shall suffer no decrease in salary, without his consent, until at least one year after the school committee has voted to reduce the salary of the superintendent of schools."

Section two of the act provides that the school committee may dismiss any teacher or superintendent from employment by a two thirds vote of the whole committee and the amendment, if passed, will make it one-half instead of two-thirds vote.

Non-Tidal Section of Merrimack

Under a legislative act, now pending a third reading in the house, provision is made for the care and supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river. This bill provides substantially that all supervision over the non tidal section of the Merrimack river shall be vested in the state board of harbor and land commissioners. This board is empowered to make all necessary surveys, examinations, investigations and to perform such work as may be believed advisable for the protection of the river. Further power vested in the state board by this bill is for authority to grant wharf and pier locations.

Old Marriage Licenses

Any persons having old, unused marriage licenses about the house are in danger of being fined under a new law which goes into effect today.

Under the new law any clergyman who marries a couple whose marriage license was issued more than six months before the date of marriage, is liable to a fine.

The law also provides that holders of marriage licenses that have been issued for more than six months are liable also to a fine. Those who take out marriage licenses and do not use them must return the licenses to the place from which they were issued.

SOME KNOWN FACTS ABOUT RHEUMATISM

There are many things that are still unknown about rheumatism. The treatment of it is still far from satisfactory. Doctors realize this but nobody is more fully aware of it than the sufferers themselves.

A tendency to rheumatism once established, the pain often returns with every change of weather, showing that the poison is still in the blood awaiting favorable conditions to become active and cause trouble.

One fact is known and acknowledged by all medical writers and that is the rapid thinning of the blood when the rheumatic poison invades it. Building up the blood is the best remedy for rheumatism as the enriched blood is able to overcome or throw off the poisons of the disease. For this reason rheumatic sufferers should be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in the treatment of this painful disease.

A book, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free on request by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. It contains directions regarding diet, baths and hygiene for rheumatic patients.

tor of the C. M. A. C. who was "considered" for the position by "Former "Mayor" Brown, in 19-0-9, just before the latter appointed David Parthenais. While a recent comer from Nashua, Editor Louis A. Biron of L'Etoile might fit, and in the spirit of fairness the committee might also consider H. O. Girard of Le Supplement, Joseph Payette and Arthur Lavoie, president and secretary of the "delivering" committee might take the place if some one would suggest their names. Then there are E. S. Desmarais, Charles Bourret and Joe Harvey, all possessing the rare qualifications of being plumbers and there's Frank Ricard, who withdrew his candidacy for commissioner, sacrificing his own ambition in the interest of Dr. Mignault. There's plenty of good timber from which the committee may make a selection despite the fact that they may have to go some to reach the high standard of qualification set forth by Mr. Drapeau in his endorsement of Tommy Goyette.

Now, they tell me that Commissioner Brown has found a way to get back into the good graces of the French-American voters by getting a club license for the Club Citoyens-Americains through his friend, Commissioner Hanson.

Another Term For Mayor Murphy

When Mayor Murphy's admirers are not talking him up for congress they are suggesting that he run for a second term, and it is proposed by some of them to circulate papers at the proper time for a popular request that he run again. These papers, it is said, will be circulated right and every voter will be called upon to sign his own name. Private Secretary Cull is an ardent supporter of the second term proposition despite the mayor's modesty regarding his own tenure of office. The secretary is in a position to know the amount of work and study that the office of mayor necessitates and undoubtedly believes that with the experience of two years behind him, His Honor will be of even greater value to the citizens and taxpayers than he is at present, if retained in office for two years more. The secretary also, profiting by his own experience of two years, can give greater service if retained for another term. Of course there are many who do not understand and who will resent such a proposition, saying that it was wrong for the former mayor to have two terms it is equally wrong to give the present mayor more than one. But it is only after a man gets into office that he can appreciate the value and importance of settled conditions. A man running for office on a one term platform may have the best intentions in the world for he doesn't know any better. After he has been in office for a while and thoroughly understands the position he holds, he begins to see that the one term policy is a grievous mistake and feels that in justice to the people he represents he must confess his mistake and in the interest of all continue in office as long as possible. By circulating papers asking him to try again, his friends relieve him of any embarrassment as the result of his mistake. The public should not be harsh toward an officeholder who, through inexperience, makes a mistake as to the value of continuity in office. Take the case of Commissioner Hanson. After six years' experience he came to the conclusion that the city's interests would be best conserved by his retention in office rather than by the upsetting of conditions which would result from the election of an inexperienced man. The public owes Mr. Hanson a debt of gratitude for consenting to serve for another long period. Of course he had six years in which to think the matter over while His Honor has only two, but then some men, especially lawyers with trained minds, think more quickly than others.

Grand Jury at City Hall

The grand jury visited city hall last Monday and thus far none has been able to figure out what the purpose of its visit might have been. Some aver that it went there to see if the building had been left by the past administration; others thought perhaps it wanted to get a peek at that paint bill in the commissioner of streets' office; some suspected that the purpose of its trip was to see if Jim Dunfey got in on time in the morning, while still others are of the opinion that it wanted to get a line on the appearance of the purchasing agent's horse. Whatever its purpose might have been, it was present. One of the jurors got quite talkative with a reporter until he discovered the latter's identity and intimated that the jury was out to "get" someone. That's the rub. The attention of the grand jury originally was called to the alleged violation of the charter by the commissioner of streets but since then and up to the present certain influences at city hall and elsewhere have been exerting themselves to have all of last year's government indicted, though it is not probable that they had any particular desire to "get" Commissioner Donnelly. Former District Attorney Higgins "ducked" the issue. A little incident that occurred during the visit of the probers to the municipal building that undoubtedly had no particular significance but which caused much comment among the excited habitues of the hall happened shortly after District Attorney Corcoran and his party entered. Commissioner Brown upon recognizing the district attorney approached him and proffered his hand. At the same moment City Solicitor Hennessy, who is an old friend of the district attorney, stuck out his hand. The district attorney accepted Sir Joseph's hand, turning his back to the commissioner, as it were, and immediately the tongues began to wag.

Candidates for Commissioner

With the thermometer at 88 in the shade, as it was when this was written, one feels compelled to offer an apology for talking about a campaign that doesn't materialize until next fall but as already there are two fledged candidates in the field and several "prospects" I must say something lest someone gets the opinion that I hadn't heard the news. Ex-Representative Marchand is a candidate for the municipal council and he doesn't care who knows it. John J. Dalton, the well known singer, has succumbed to the importunities of his friends and has allowed the use of his name as a candidate. If someone should ask Percy Thompson to run there is little doubt that he would be unkind enough to refuse. There may be something behind Mr. Marchand's early announcement. For some time Representative Henri Achon has shown a preference for a public office that doesn't entail so much rolling. Henri is probably willing to give his services to the country, state, or city, but if the public has no objection he would rather apply them locally having been running back and forth to Boston for a few years. With several French candidates in the field that overworked "delivering" committee of 15 will have to get busy again and select the right ones to be the candidates. Ex-Representative Marchand appreciates the fact that the early bird gathereth the worm, and hence his flat-footed candidacy, while Representative Marchand is still awaiting the psychological moment. Commissioner Brown will be a candidate again and already has been looking to his fences. Commissioner Donnelly has not stated whether or not he will be a candidate, most likely he will be. His candidacy, however, will have no effect on that of Mr. Dalton, who, his close friends state, will be a candidate in any event. If the voters who supported Mayor Murphy on the one term proposition still adhere to their policy of last fall, things will not look bright for Commissioners Donnelly and Brown, who have served one term of one year and one of two years, but there is a strong element of the Durham mascot in that one term talk.

Hickey on Deck

An unduly alarmed citizen has written The Sun to complain that Mayor Murphy has appointed a relative to succeed Supt. Thomas Connors, at the city woodyard. If he has the relative is working for his health for his name does not appear on the city payroll. At the present time Mr. Hickey, the hard working assistant to the former superintendent, appears to be sawing wood and saying nothing, all by his lonesome, as it were, though he is thinking deeply that it would be only fair and in accordance with the rule of all fair corporations that he be promoted to the superintendent's position and have the mayor's relative or whoever may enter the department take the subordinate position, despite the fact that a departure from this rule was made in the selection of a sealer of weights and measures. The objection to a man's employment because he is the relative of the mayor or any other councilman doesn't seem entirely fair. In this particular case the fact that the alleged appointee is a relative of the mayor doesn't impair his ability to saw and split wood and drive a horse. John D. Rockefeller's son probably could chop wood when not teaching Sunday school, if circumstances ever made it necessary for him to do so.

Committee on Claims

It has been announced that the municipal council has voted money with which to liquidate certain claims against the city, recommended by itself, acting as a committee on claims. Among the claims awarded are John J. Mahoney, $150, and Friend Bros., $100, the latter amount in two awards, one being charged against the water department. Mahoney lost an eye, while Friend Bros. lost a plate glass window. The award of $100 for a plate glass window is undoubtedly a fair one for plate glass costs a lot of money and Friend Bros. are entitled to whatever the loss sustained might be and they are far too big and too honorable a concern to attempt to put anything over on the city. But if a plate glass window is worth $100, it would seem that a human eye should be worth considerably more, even if the city is hard pressed for money.

All Up for Shedd Park

The friends of Shedd park are as tickled over the election of Tom McKay to the park commission as are the friends of Ireland over the passage of the home rule bill, for Mr. McKay resides across the street from Shedd park and it is expected he will start something at once in the interest of the development of the Oaklands breathing spot. Tom Beane, the "defeated candidate," was the most surprised man in Lowell when he read of his candidacy in The Sun. It seems that John Greene, of oil and olio fame, who is a staunch admirer of Mr. Beane, planned a little surprise for Tom, intending to have him elected without his knowledge. He visited a majority of the members of the municipal council and informed them of Tom's candidacy, and, as was seen by the papers a day or two ago, they did the rest.

An English Miller

—a hundred years ago—thought he would gain trade and a name if he could give people WHITE BREAD instead of dark, the only kind anybody had ever known before that.

So he removed the bran from flour! This made the flour white and pretty, and people took to WHITE BREAD.

But what really happened when the miller threw out the bran-coat? The flour was robbed of practically all the MINERAL SALTS of the grain—the particular elements of most vital need for preserving normal balance of nerve and brain.

Scientists now know that this lack in white flour and products made from it is responsible to a great degree for a host of present day ills, such as nervous prostration, constipation, kidney trouble, brain fag, and so on.

Grape-Nuts

made from prime whole wheat and barley, retains ALL the mineral salts just as Nature grows them in the grains, together with ALL the nutriment of these rich food cereals. Grape-Nuts is a perfect food, long baked, easy of digestion, appetizing, and builds sturdy bodies, keen brains and steady nerves.

Comes ready to eat from the package, fresh and crisp.

A ration of Grape-Nuts with other food supplies perfectly what is lacking in white flour products.

"The souls we loved are still alive,
The names we loved are Freedom's least;
O clasp these glorious truths, and strive
To realize what Freedom cost."

Tomorrow when you stand by and see the grizzled veterans of the Civil war moving along in parade you will find that their division of the whole pageant is the smallest numerically for as the years have gone by their ranks have fast grown thinner and only a few now remain. In order to give an idea of the truth of this statement I am reproducing the roster of the Memorial day parade of quarter of a century ago. Some of the men whose names appear as present on that occasion you will see in line tomorrow, notable among them being Capt. Geo. E. A New Back for an Old One—How a Lowell Resident Made a Bad Back Strong

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Lowell citizen.

Mrs. Ellen Burke, 123 Shaw street, Lowell, says: "My back used to bother me constantly. I suffered from sharp pains through my loins and I was also subject to dizzy spells. I had rheumatic twinges in my right shoulder and my limbs used to be crippled up. The kidney secretions were annoying. I finally got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I was relieved in a few days, and four boxes cured me."

NEW BUILDING OPERATIONS

Building enterprises are starting up fast. This is the first of five houses which he is to build there.

An addition to the lumber storage shed of the Davis & Sargent Lumber Co. in the rear of 647 Middlesex street is being made and several men are busy on the job. The addition will be of wood construction and will be 25 by 95 feet.

The same company is also building another addition to its lumber storage shed in the rear of 651 Middlesex street. This addition will also be of wood and will be 8 by 60 feet.

James B. Trevors is building a piazza, 7 by 12 feet, to his building at 52 White street.

As announced exclusively in The Sun's building news a few weeks ago, Daniel Sakelarios, the young man who purchased several dwelling houses in the vicinity of Market and Duranmel streets, is making extensive changes to his property. At that time it was announced in The Sun that Mr. Sakelarios would demolish the brick structure at the corner of Worthen and Market streets and erect in its stead a modern tenement house with stores. This week he called at the office of the superintendent of public buildings and took out a permit for this work, and operations will be rushed along. As soon as the new building is finished, Mr. Sakelarios will tear down the other old buildings and start work on modern dwelling houses.

Andre Belanger has taken a five-year lease on the property located at the corner of Merrimack and Decatur streets, owned by Ephrem Pelletier, and in a few days he will start work on remodeling the place. Mr. Belanger will build a store extending to the sidewalk, and it is possible that he will do considerable work in the interior of the building, which is now being used as a lodging house.

Avila Sawyer has signed the final papers for the purchase of the Hall property in Moody street near the corner of Spalding street. The property consists of a two-tenement house, a stable and a large tract of land. In the fall Mr. Sawyer will probably change over the two-tenement house into a three-tenement building and also build a six-tenement house on the spare land.

Pierre Gregoire of this city, who for many years has conducted with his wife a large millinery store in Merrimack street, has started the building of a number of summer cottages at Mountain Rock, and before the summer is over Mr. Gregoire intends to have a half dozen or more finely finished houses in that district. One of the cottages is completed and is a beauty. It contains four rooms and the interior finish is of hardwood. The other cottages will be four, five and six-room buildings. There is a great demand for summer homes in that district and if Mr. Gregoire finds it a profitable investment it is probable he will erect several more next year for he is the owner of a very large tract of land in that vicinity.

PRIEST VERY ILL

Rev. Fr. Donahoe of St. Peter's at Hospital in Boston

The people of St. Peter's parish and indeed many others in all parts of the city will regret to learn that Rev. Charles A. Donahoe, the able, energetic and popular young priest who succeeded Rev. Fr. Burns recently as head of the Holy Name society is dangerously ill at the Carney hospital with a serious brain trouble. Rev. Fr. Donahoe was stricken last Tuesday at his home in Cambridge and was taken from there immediately to the Carney hospital where he lies in a precarious condition. Reports from Dr. Thomas J. Leen, who is attending him, were not optimistic this morning, and though all who knew the magnetic clergyman are hoping for the best, the outlook is not reassuring. This morning at the early mass, Rev. Dr. Kelliher, the pastor of St. Peter's asked the prayers of the congregation for Fr. Donahoe's speedy recovery or happy death.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. William Everett Adams of Chelmsford and Miss Ethel Helena Scoble took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Scoble, in Chelmsford last evening. The occasion also marked the anniversary of the birth of the bride, and the wedding was largely attended by relatives and friends of the happy couple. The clergyman was Rev. E. A. Robinson, who was assisted by Rev. L. L. Greene. The ushers were David E. Scoble and Adelbert B. Adams, brothers of the bride and bridegroom, respectively. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the middle west and upon their return on Oct. 1 will make their home in Chelmsford.

20 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

We are not only storekeepers, but growers, having the largest area of glass and nursery devoted to the growth of everything worth growing that there is in New England. I feel that if anyone can give satisfaction I am prepared to do so, and I only refer to the many thousands of customers of the past to verify my statement.

I have a splendid stock this year, as usual, in my houses, and I would like to have you investigate.

Didn't Break Its Neck

The old Sun has the following on underground wires:

"At a meeting of the directors of the New England Telegraph and Telephone company Wednesday a sum sufficient to construct the underground system in Lowell was set apart for that purpose. The management say that they will soon commence construction, and Lowell aerial telephone wires inside the central district will soon be a thing of the past. It is not probable that the company will break its neck hurrying the wires underground."

The Sun, as ever, was right. The telephone company didn't break its neck and ere the wires got underground the overworked editor of The Sun had ground out editorials in volumes on the danger of the overhead wires while it had become the popular custom when a fire started from an origin that wasn't certain to attribute it to electric wires. But the wires in the down town district finally went under where they at present repose.

Dr. Reilly's Benefit

Lowell has never been at a loss for good singers, male or female, and a quarter of a century ago the late Dr. William B. Reilly, a tenor who made his mark in grand opera was at the height of his popularity, in this city. The old Sun gives us the following account of a benefit performance in honor of the doctor which was presented by local talent:

"At Huntington hall, Wednesday evening, Dr. William B. Reilly, Lowell's best tenor, was given a complimentary benefit. A comfortably well-filled house listened to the music of the opera. 'Billie Taylor,' and gave expression to its appreciation of the performance by frequent outbursts of applause. Dr. James Reilly of Boston held the baton over the orchestra and he succeeded in making the chorus, soloists and musicians work in perfect harmony, an unusual happening at amateur performances. The singing was remarkably correct and the acting was all that could be expected. Miss Mary E. Brady, the 'Phoebe' of the opera, was careful in her acting and sang the difficult music with great spirit. Miss Katie L. Gallagher's 'Arabella' was well done in every particular. Miss Sarah T. McCaffery made a comely and sweet voiced 'Susan.' Dr. Reilly as 'Billie Taylor' was perfect. Michael J. O'Connell as 'Captain Frapper' showed off to the best possible advantage. Jos. G. Pugsley drew considerable melody and not a little fun out of the character of 'Christopher Crab.' Frank J. Doherty as 'Ben Barnacle' and Thomas A. McCaffery as 'Elize' did the comedy business in fine form, and sang their solos smoothly. Zeph E. Pinault as 'Sir Mincing Lane' was well up with the other actors. The chorus was strong and positive and the performance as a whole was very good, and reflects credit on every person connected with it."

Mary E. Brady of 25 years ago is now Mrs. Peter Kelly of Los Angeles, Cal., where her husband who in those days was a clerk for J. L. Challifoux, is now a leading merchant. No Lowell persons who visit the City of Angels should miss looking up Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, for the many who already have been their guests give glowing accounts of their hospitality and the latch-string is always out for anyone from the Spindle City. Miss Katie L. Gallagher is now Mrs. Israel H. Sternberg, wife of the inimitable "Ikey," formerly of the Lowell News, and president, vice president and secretary of the famous "Shut club" of days gone by. He would also have been the treasurer, but the club was so constituted that it didn't need one, its motto being "ways without means." Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg from the day of their marriage have been one of the happiest, merriest and most hospitable couples ever joined in matrimony. Together they share each other's joys and sorrows, but not their avoirdupois, for "Stern" is "hog-fat" at 115, while Mrs. Sternberg is—well, buxom. Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg are now residents of Revere, Mass., where "Stern" holds down a responsible position with the Suburban Heat, Light and Power Co. They are frequent visitors to Lowell. Columns might be written about the annals of the "Shut club," but it was not only a limited corporation, but also a secret society. Joe Duffy is a well-known printer, now of Boston, who formerly was employed on the old News and who lived in Tewksbury and subsequently in the Oaklands, while Zeph. Pinault, who before entering into business for himself at the corner of Central and Middle streets, was employed at Talbot's. He is now in business in New Bedford.

The Musical McCafferys

If you should ever meet anyone named McCaffery hailing from Belvidere, make a bet that he or she can sing and nine times out of ten you'll win. Miss Sarah McCaffery who 25 years ago made a very youthful "Susan" is now Mrs. Terrence F. Cox and is frequently heard in solos at the Immaculate Conception church. "Tom" McCaffery is her brother and "Tom" is right there with the voice as yet, though he is now a resident of the state of New Jersey, having been here on a visit only a short time ago. Tom and Mrs. Cox are cousins of the late Margaret McCaffery who was one of Lowell's leading singers up to the time of her death and also cousins of Dan McCaffery, who after leaving Lowell sang himself into popularity in Lawrence, where he now holds down the job of city store-keeper. Whenever Commissioner Paul Hannegan of the down-river city gets down-hearted he sends for Dan to sing to him and his troubles immediately vanish. Dan in his younger days was with the Boston Opera company and played a prominent part in the original production of the Irish opera, "Shamus O'Brien." It is seldom that one runs across a first-class quartet made up of sisters and brothers, but the McCaffreys of Lowell had such an organization and it had the goods. The members were Miss Margaret McCaffery, soprano; Miss Katie McCaffery, contralto; Mr. Dan McCaffery, tenor and Mr. John McCaffery, baritone.

The Sun of a quarter of a century ago had the following little story:

"In the early days of Gen. Benj. F. Butler's practice, he was required to give some legal notice in a suit in which he was engaged. The judge asked him to name the newspaper in which he desired to have the advertisement inserted. Butler was at that time an ardent northern democrat, and the Lowell Advertiser, a journal entirely ignored by most of the community, was the only organ of his party in the judicial district.

"In what paper?" asked the clerk, contemptuously, when told to insert the notice in the Advertiser. "I don't know such a paper."

"May it please your honor," Butler replied, "I trust the clerk will not interfere with the proceedings by attempting to tell us what he doesn't know, because if he does, we might as well adjourn until after the day of judgment."

A Butler Story

Speaking of Gen. Butler brings to my mind the time when he defended Mr. John H. Harrington, the proprietor of The Sun, in the famous Morrison libel suit. I have heard Mr. Harrington tell the story several times, but this is the first time it has been printed. It shows us one phase of Butler's character and his adroitness as a lawyer, as well as his well known admiration for a little dash of fighting blood in any man, be he client, friend or adversary. This story, I have no doubt, would have been printed before but for Mr. Harrington's well known aversion to printing anything about himself in his own paper, and perhaps when he sees this in print I may lose my job, but I will take the chance, for the story is really too good to keep.

It seems that the late John Henry Morrison, a prominent and successful lawyer, who was very sensitive to criticism, took exception to something that appeared in The Sun, and immediately brought suit against the proprietor of the paper, placing the ad damnum at the enormous sum of $100,000. This was the first serious libel suit brought against Mr. Harrington, and he proceeded without delay to secure the services of

Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who at that time was unquestionably the most conspicuous and brilliant member of the Massachusetts bar.

Sheriff Henry G. Cushing was then in office and served the writ through one of his deputies, placing a keeper in charge of The Sun plant with instructions to let nothing out of the premises. The law, which has since been amended, did not in those days afford a publisher fifteen days in which to file bonds, and Mr. Morrison purposely made the attachment on a Friday with the obvious intention of preventing The Sun from being issued and distributed on the following day, which was its regular publication day, the Sun being then a weekly.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, Mr. Harrington felt that he would make no mistake in meeting this crafty move by employing Gen. Butler, who had more tricks up his sleeve than all the sheriffs and lawyers in this section of the country. The general was at home when Mr. Harrington called and, as was his custom, he began chewing the end of an unlighted cigar while Mr. Harrington told the particulars of the case. He would take the cigar out of his mouth every little while to ask a question, and then shake his head, close his eyes and begin chewing vigorously on the diminishing cigar. When he got the entire matter fixed in his mind, he turned to Mr. Harrington and said: "That article is not libellous, if it is true. You say it is true, but the burden is upon you to prove that it is true. Can you prove it?"

"I can," said John H.

"But you know it costs money to go into court and prove anything," said Ben. "Now, what do you want me to do? Will I fix this thing up and make the best settlement possible, or will I go ahead and fight it?"

Of course everyone knew that Butler's fees were enormous. It was not a question of dollars but thousands of dollars to retain the services of Ben Butler at that time. Mr. Harrington knew this and knew that he probably would have a handsome bill to pay before Ben Butler would be through with the case, but, nevertheless, he turned to Butler and said: "General, I know that I never libelled Mr. Morrison. I printed only the truth about that case, and I did it for a good purpose. He is taking me at an unfair advantage and trying to stop the publication of my paper from pure spite, and Sheriff Cushing is helping him because he is sure over The Sun's exposure of county ring methods and its opposition to his re-election. I don't want you to settle the case, general. I

and I want you to fight it to the limit, and what is more, I want you to fight Cushing and Morrison to a standstill, and when you get the last drop of blood in both of their bodies, send me your bill and I will pay it, if I can."

Mr. Harrington in his excitement gave the arm of the general's chair a whack with his fist as he finished and the general, pulling the cigar from his mouth, lifted his heels and stomped them on the floor and shouted: "Good for you, my boy, good for you. If you will only fight them like that, they will soon let you alone. Now I will take that case with a great deal of pleasure, and if I don't make Morrison and Cushing eat a peck of dirt before this case is over you may conclude that Ben Butler has lost his cunning."

He shook hands with Mr. Harrington and said he would send junior counsel to take care of preliminary matters next morning, but he would be at his house any time the following day if needed.

That evening Charles Howe, Esq., was selected as junior counsel and he made several offers to provide a satisfactory bond to dissolve the attachment, but Morrison would not listen to it. He was determined to stop one issue of the paper at any cost, and Cushing stood by him like a brother.

The next day the press started about noon on the edition and the keeper tried to stop it and in doing so nearly lost his life. He finally made up his mind to allow the workmen to print the papers, provided they didn't remove any of them from the premises, and there he sat until the entire edition was printed and ready for the carriers.

Meanwhile The Sun was evening on the streets and Morrison was chuckling and telling his friends that there would be no Sun that day.

Mr. Harrington, seeing that the situation was desperate, drove to Butler's house and told him of his dilemma.

"Well," said Ben, "you have, as I understand it, a composing room on one side of the building and your press-room is on the other side. Dividing these two rooms is a public corridor which all the tenants of the building use." The building in question was the old Card Co. building in Shattuck street and the corridor was neutral ground between the two departments, and practically the same as if it were out-of-doors.

"Now," said the general, with a cunning twinkle in his eye, "don't you think you could induce that keeper to step into the corridor for a moment and if he does, don't you think you have a man strong enough to lock the press-room door and hold it there until you get the edition out of the window?"

"I think I can do it," said Mr. Harrington.

"Be sure you don't lay hands upon the officer of the law, for then you would be liable for a criminal assault; but if he goes out voluntarily," said the general, with another sly wink, "he will have to make another attachment in order to get in again."

"I understand you thoroughly," said John H., as he jumped into the buggy and was driven to The Sun press-room on Shattuck street at breakneck speed.

Rushing through the corridor and opening the door of the press-room, Mr. Harrington shouted in a loud voice to the keeper: "Are you going to allow people to steal my type in the other room? Are you not responsible for the safety of my property in the composing room as well as in the press-room?"

With a look of terror on his face, the keeper left the press-room and rushed across the corridor into the composing room to catch the imaginary thieves.

Quick as a flash John H. jumped through the press-room door and locked it, putting two sturdy men up against it with instructions to "hold the fort."

When the keeper found he was fooled he returned and knocked at the door, commanding that he be admitted, in the name of the law, but he was politely requested by the pressmen on the inside to go to a place where newspapers cannot be printed on account of the heat.

Meanwhile the edition of The Sun was being sent down the back stairs and through the window, over the passageway, where the newsboys received their papers and started through the city to deliver them about an hour behind time.

The first boy was instructed to present a copy to Mr. Morrison and another one to Sheriff Cushing, with Mr. Harrington's compliments, and when they received the papers they were in hot consultation with the humiliated keeper, whose hair was standing up with excitement over the tongue-lashing which Morrison and Cushing were giving him for his asinine stupidity.

A return trip in the carriage to Butler's house resulted in

in which the general joined, and laughed louder than anyone present. The Sun was out and it was an easy task to adjust the matter of bonds the following week.

Butler then prepared to start proceedings against Sheriff Cushing and his bondsmen, declaring he would hold them responsible for all loss or damage sustained through the unwarranted proceedings of the previous Saturday, and he vowed he would have Morrison up for disbarment before he got through with the case.

Butler maintained from the first that the article was not libellous, if the facts were as represented by The Sun and he furthermore insisted that he would have no difficulty in disproving any presumption of malice against the proprietor of the paper. The only mal-

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

During a long debate in the legislature last Wednesday it was said that recently at Albany Governor Glynn of New York declared the workmen's compensation act of Massachusetts to be the best in the country. This is a high tribute coming from such a source, especially when it is considered that the workmen's compensation act of this state is scarcely out of the experimental stage. The debate in the legislature followed the introduction of a bill which provided that an employer of labor might file a bond with the industrial accident board to meet any of his obligations under the workmen's compensation act, without doing business through an insurance company. The bill would mean a great advantage to employers of labor, but evidently the legislators considered that it would be a dangerous innovation, for after detailed and intelligent discussion it was rejected. At first sight it is not apparent that the bill would interfere with the rights of either employers or employed, yet its rejection at the present time was wise, for the tendency to amend laws and to supplement them with new provisions before the old have been fully tested, is hardly commendable, though the Massachusetts legislature frequently errs in this direction.

In one form or another compensation acts either have been or are being adopted by all progressive states. The Eccles mine disaster has been the means of drawing national attention to the workingman's compensation act adopted by West Virginia a little over a year ago and put into effect last October. Under this act the state will pay $2200 a month during the coming year to those made widows and orphans by the Eccles mine tragedy. Each widow will receive $20 per month and each child under fifteen will receive $5 a month. The state has also borne the cost of funeral expenses. West Virginia is one of the five states having state managed compensation systems; its fund is managed by the public service commission and maintained by assessments upon employers, contributions from workmen and subsidies from the state to cover the administration cost. All other industries are included as well as mining.

In all, 23 states have clearly defined compensation acts at the present time, and seven or eight others have them in one form or another. Still others are agitating them with every prospect of speedy success. Their provisions vary necessarily owing to different labor conditions in different localities, for a law affecting those who work in mines for instance would scarcely be applicable to those who work in the textile industry. Wherever such acts have been accepted and placed on the statute books, they have been the source of benefit to workmen and to the state, though undoubtedly in individual cases, they do not work as satisfactorily as did the old system of private compensation. Viewing the matter in a broad light anything which would impair the efficiency of the Massachusetts act should be frowned on by the legislature until the principle of the law is too well established to be hurt by innovation or amendment.

UNGRATEFUL REFUGEES

Interests in press and public opposed to President Wilson and the administration in general are striving to arouse condemnation of the government's Mexican policy, owing to revelations of refugees who escaped from that country or who were ordered out during the blockade of Vera Cruz or immediately afterwards. Many of these were treated with great indignities and suffered many privations, and quite naturally they resent such treatment and think that an army should have gone into Mexico at the time and protected them in every particular. But this is a case where the welfare of the individual must be weighed against the welfare of the nation, and most unbiased people will conclude that in this respect at least the government could not have acted other than it did without serious consequences.

In the first place, the humiliations and insults heaped on American citizens were not at the command of any Mexican government representative, but were the natural growth of mob spirit, inflamed by false rumors. The Mexican rabble really supposed that war was on, and every American was to them the embodiment of foreign oppression. Believing this, they did what probably many Americans would do if the case were reversed, allowing for the lower spirit of Mexican civilization or the lack of it. It is very strange that there were not many more serious outbreaks and loss of many American lives.

Would matters have been remedied had the government threatened to bombard every Mexican port and send armed forces over the border? Had such happened, many of the refugees who have lived to rail against their government would be very silent at present. Instead of a score of dead we would probably be counting the victims in hundreds, and the situation would not be a whit better than at present. It was unavoidable that there should have been some rioting, but those who have escaped with their lives have far greater reason for gratitude than for complaint.

It has also been commonly asserted that other governments such as England and Germany, got a greater degree of respect for their subjects than did America. They have every opportunity to do so, for if war should break out in Mexico against any foreign enemy at the present time, it is America which should do the heavy share of fighting, under the Monroe Doctrine. Hiding, then, behind American responsibility, other nations were undoubtedly able to speak with more authority than this country which sought conciliation from the first. The Mexican situation has been a bad mess, but it is not difficult to see how it could have been made far worse. It is lucky for the future of the country that the government is not guided by jingo arguments such as are used by many of the refugees who feel that the army and navy were instituted for their special benefit.

MEMORIAL DAY

Year by year we grow farther away from the wars of earlier days, and year by year the ranks of the veterans grow thinner, mowed down by a more implacable foe than they faced on the battlefield. Yet while even one remains, something noble will link the America of the present with that of the past, for the prosperity and prestige we now enjoy among the nations of the earth has been made possible largely through the efforts of the brave men, some of whom will visit the soldiers' graves tomorrow in loving remembrance of those who fought with them side by side and preceded them into the land of everlasting peace. Many of our older people need no reminder of the dignity of Memorial day, for their hearts are linked in family love or in the closest bonds of friendship with someone who ranks with the veterans or who sleeps under one of the little memorial flags in the cemeteries. Those who were so associated with the veterans by personal bonds know the heartaches, the pain and the triumphs of glorious victory, blended with the cries of Rachael mourning for her children, refusing to be comforted. Some of our citizens—alas like the veterans themselves, growing fewer yearly—saw them go out in the flush of their manly pride, saw them come home victorious, and will see them tomorrow decorating the graves of the departed with tear-dimmed eyes. To such Memorial day is a unique day, sacred in its appeals to the higher patriotism.

It is a duty we all owe to the veterans and to the country, to explain the significance of Memorial day to the young, for not to understand it is to miss something ennobling. Tomorrow we should review the story of the past wars with their bravery, their sacrifice, their glorious culmination. We should tell our children the meaning of the various services in all the cemeteries of the city, the salutes, the prayers, the touching memorials. We should impress on them the necessity for honoring the thinning ranks of the veterans before whom Columbia herself bows in silence. Soon the time will come when the veterans of the Civil war will no longer go to honor their comrades on Memorial day, for all will have answered the final reveille. Yet their memory shall not die. The beautiful custom of commemoration has been taken up reverently by civic organizations, and through the ages the memory of our veterans will be kept green to point the way for the men of the future.

ABOLISHING GRADE CROSSINGS

A contemporary after reviewing some statistics concerning the number of grade crossings in some sections of the country comes to the conclusion that the railroads are making a grave mistake whether regarded economically or from the humane point of view in permitting so many crossings to exist despite the universal condemnation which they evoke, the many deaths and consequent lawsuits, and the constant menace at points of heavy traffic. It says that within the limits of greater New York alone there are no fewer than 147 of these crossings which a year ago were designated as dangerous. Such a designation was backed up by an official statement a year ago which declared that no less than 100 persons were killed and 150 injured at such crossings within the limits of New York. Commenting on these facts, the newspaper in question says: "That the situation is so serious is a discredit to the railroads and the state and city authorities, for it can easily be remedied."

Luckily our crossings have not claimed a heavy toll of life, but prevention demands that they be eliminated, aside from the claims of progressive business such as one might expect in a city like Lowell. When conditions have existed for years people are apt to grow apathetic, but one fatality would awaken a spirit that could not easily be quelled. Far better that the Middlesex crossing and the other more dangerous ones be removed before some shocking accident awakes the public to the seriousness of the situation.

ENGLISH GRAFT

The recent court cases in England involving army officers who admitted having accepted bribes from representatives of trade concerns calls attention to the fact that America has not a monopoly on political graft by any means, though one who has discussed English politics with some Englishmen undoubtedly has been told that the methods of crooked American politics are unknown in the old country. Indeed the cases that came to trial recently are but indications of a condition in the English army that is widespread. At the present time there is a feeling against army arrogance among the British masses that the graft case will not tend to diminish, and one of the reforms of the near future is a thorough cleaning out of the undesirable elements, whether among the army heads or among the rank and file.

Mayor Curley of Boston has humanely arranged with the chairman of the Boston park and recreation board that during the hot months the city bath houses shall be thrown open and that people shall be allowed to sleep on the commons and parks. Unfortunately we have no bath houses, but the second part of the order might be advantageously copied locally when the hot spell returns.

ice in the case he declared was on the side of Morrison and the sheriff, both of whom he charged with being in collusion, not for the purpose of obtaining damages, but for wreaking vengeance upon the publisher of The Sun, by attempting to stop the circulation of his paper in a needless manner.

The sureties offered by Mr. Harrington were signed by some of the wealthiest and most responsible business men in the city and were amply sufficient to satisfy any reasonable plaintiff, and would undoubtedly have been approved if Butler saw fit to present them to any superior court justice in chambers or even at the judge's house, which is often done by lawyers in an emergency. But the general didn't want to do this, preferring to allow Morrison and Cushing to go the limit, even to the extent of stopping the circulation of that edition. In order that he might have them on the defensive and be able to dictate his own terms, in case the question of settlement or the amount of damages should ever come up. The fact that the edition came out in spite of them left both plaintiff and the sheriff in just as bad a predicament as if they had succeeded in stopping it, and it is plain that Butler by this piece of strategy killed two birds with one stone and became master of the situation.

The sureties on the bonds represented property aggregating over half a million dollars and the fact that they were not accepted, Butler declared, would be sufficient not only to imperil Morrison's standing as an attorney, but would result in the removal of Cushing from office. On this point the general was very emphatic and as a result Morrison became alarmed and retained a prominent attorney who, in consultation with Gen. Butler, was reminded of the fact that property under attachment was in the custody of the sheriff, and if there was any liability of it being destroyed or reduced in value while in his possession he and his bondsmen would be responsible. Butler cited a case where an officer attached a quantity of hides in a vat at a tannery and kept them in the vat under attachment until they were destroyed. This officer was held liable for the value of the hides regardless of the merits of the case, and in the final accounting he and his bondsmen were obliged to make good to the tanner who was subjected to this of attachment.

To attach a lot of newspapers and hold them for even two hours after the usual time of publication, would destroy the value of the edition. They were worth nothing then, but the price of old paper, whereas if distributed on time they would be worth five cents apiece, which was the price of The Sun in those days. Had they allowed the papers to be sold and held the money subject to the order of the court, they would have had the law on their side. But they had no right to hold the papers, particularly as they had all the machinery, type, presses, tools, engravings, etc., under attachment, which were worth many times the value of the papers. The intent to work needless and irreparable damage to Mr. Harrington and his paper was too glaring to be denied.

This alarmed the sheriff and his bondsmen and they, together with Morrison, decided that they had made a mistake and overtures for a settlement came, not from the defendant's side, but from the plaintiff. The result was that Mr. Morrison withdrew the suit, paid the costs and wrote a letter to Mr. Harrington in which he stated that he was satisfied that there was no intention on the part of the proprietor of The Sun to injure him, and if there was any malice it came from some of his employes who, according to Mr. Morrison, had not been on very friendly terms with him.

In short they had to eat their peck of dirt as Butler predicted they would do and in consideration of the humiliating gastronomic performance, Butler suspended hostilities against both Morrison and the sheriff. It was a glorious victory for The Sun, but the question in Mr. Harrington's mind was how much was it going to cost him. Hiring Ben Butler was no child's play and Mr. Harrington knew it. In due time he wrote a letter to the general, asking for an appointment to consider the question of counsel fees, etc. The general replied that he would meet him at his house in Belvidere a few evenings later, and accordingly with some trepidation and a mental calculation of the size of his insignificant bank account John H. took his way to the heights of Belvidere and was invited to await the general in the sitting-room.

The old warrior came in with a smile on his face and commanded the trembling publisher of The Sun to be seated. After congratulating him on the glorious ending of the bloodless battle, Butler settled himself in his chair and indicated that he was ready to hear what his visitor had to say.

"I came, general," said Mr. Harrington, "to learn how much I owe you for your services."

"Well," said the general, "that's very proper. Of course you understand I usually get a pretty fair-sized fee for a case of this sort."

"I know it," said the anxious publisher, as his tongue stuck in his throat and thoughts of a mortgage loan on his plant were flitting through his brain. "I know that very well, general, but I would like to know the worst as soon as possible."

The general looked at him for awhile and said: "I have made up my mind just what I am going to charge you." (Another chill in the region of the publisher's heart and a slowing of the editorial pulse.)

"Very well, general, what is it?" the visitor gasped.

"Well," said Ben, with a squint at John H. that added to his terror, "you remember I asked you if you wanted that case settled?"

"I do," said Mr. Harrington.

"To settle a case like that would cost a certain sum of money, but do you remember when I asked you if I would settle it or fight, you said: 'General, I want you to fight to a finish, and I want you to get the last drop of blood in these fellows' bodies, and when you get it I will pay the bill, if I can?'"

"I remember that very well," said Mr. Harrington.

"Well," said Old Ben, "when you said that I liked it so well, and

I LIKED YOUR PLUCK

and your spirit so well, Mr. Harrington, that I then and there determined that I would not charge you a cent, and that I would see you through to the end without a nickle for my services."

This was too much for the young publisher of The Sun. A big lump came up in his throat that nearly choked him, and it was fully a minute before he could speak.

"General, do you mean that?" he said with his handkerchief up to his eyes.

"I mean every word of it," said the old war horse with a smile, that Mr. Harrington declared made his wrinkled face look handsome. "You don't owe me a cent and I am glad to be of service to a young man with your pluck, and if you continue to stand up when you know you are right and fight for what you believe to be right, you will come out on top."

"Now," said he, handing Mr. Harrington a letter, "I want you to go up to see Col. Dimon, who is agent of the cartridge works, and take this letter to him, and he will tell you what it means.

After an exchange of courtesies and an assurance from the old general that he might call upon him in any emergency, Mr. Harrington, with a light heart, took his departure and the next day handed the letter to Col. Dimon. When the colonel opened and read it, he smiled and said: "Do you know what this letter contains?"

Mr. Harrington said he did not.

"Well it is an order from Gen. Butler for me to give you a portion of the printing of the labels and advertising work of the United States Cartridge Co., such of it as you can do at a reasonable and satisfactory price."

This second manifestation of the old general's kindness had a great effect on Mr. Harrington. The result was that for many years afterwards, and as long as he continued to run a job printing plant, a liberal share of the work of the U. S. Cartridge company was done in the Sun job office for which he received many thousand dollars.

Mr. Harrington had frequent occasion in after years to consult with the general on legal as well as political matters, but the grand old man would never permit him to pay a cent for his services.

Butler died in Washington and his remains were carried to Lowell. At the urgent request of the city government and citizens in every walk of life his family permitted the remains to be taken to old Jinnitington hall, where they lay in state with a military guard of honor day and night until the day of the public funeral. People came in droves to view the remains, and were obliged to get in line and pass by the bier and through a side door as rapidly as possible. It might have been noticed by some of the attendants that one man came down the line many times before the body was finally taken from the hall, and he delayed so long each time to look at the face of the dead general that the guards requested him to move along that others might see. They didn't know that he had a reason, neither did they know as he passed out the side door why he put his handkerchief up to his eyes just as he did that night in the general's house.

SANK IN 14 MINUTES

President of Canadian Pacific Co. Says Disaster Most Serious in History of St. Lawrence Route

MONTREAL, May 29.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad Co., today issued the following statement on the sinking of the Empress of Ireland:

"The catastrophe because of the great loss of life is the most serious in the history of the St. Lawrence route.

"Owing to the distance of nearest telegraph or transportation stations from the scene of the wreck there is an unavoidable delay in securing official details.

"From the facts as we have them it is apparent that about 2 o'clock this morning the Empress of Ireland, when stopped in a dense fog, was rammed on the port side by the Norwegian collier Storstad, in such a manner as to tear the ship from the middle to the screw, thus making the watertight bulkheads with which she was provided, useless.

"The vessel settled down in 14 minutes. The accident occurred at a time when the passengers were in bed and the interval when the ship went down was not sufficient to enable the officers to arouse the passengers and get them into the boats where there were sufficient to accommodate a very much larger number of people than those on board, including the passengers and crew.

"That such an accident should be possible in the St. Lawrence and to a vessel of the class of the Empress of Ireland with every possible precaution taken by the owners to insure safety for the passengers and the vessel, is deplorable. The saddest feature of the disaster is, of course, the great loss of life, and the heartfelt sympathy of everybody connected with the company goes out to the relatives and friends of those who met death in the ill-fated steamship."

VESSEL WAS BOUND FOR LIVERPOOL WHEN RAMMED AND CUT WIDE OPEN

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 29.—The twin screw Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Ireland, carrying nearly 1300 persons, passengers and crew, sank in the darkness before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river near here, with a loss of perhaps 1000 lives. Early estimates of the dead varied from 678 to more than 1100.

The vessel was bound from Quebec for Liverpool with 77 first, 206 second and 504 third class passengers, was gut wide open by the collier Storstad and sank within 20 minutes in 19 fathoms of water. Of those saved the majority appeared to be members of the crew or from the steerage. Many were badly injured and 22 died after being picked up.

Weinerauch, Montreal, second cabin; W. Heller, W. T. Burroughs.

Crash at 2 O'Clock

The crash occurred about 2 o'clock this morning off Father Point, Que., a village brought into prominence when Dr. Crippen, the London murderer, was caught. The collier, bound for Quebec, struck the Empress of Ireland on the port side about the middle of the ship. She literally tore her way back almost to the liner's screws, leaving a rent through which the water poured in such a deluge that she sank before many of the passengers were aware of what had happened.

398 Survivors Picked Up

Brief wireless calls for help, sent out by the Marconi operator, were heard by the pilot boat Eureka here 10 miles from the scene, and the Eureka, followed by the Lady Evelyn, a mail tender, put on forced steam and made all speed for the spot. It was these two boats that found afloat what few lifeboats that were launched from the stricken ship and picked up the survivors they contained. Three hundred and thirty-nine were saved by the Lady Evelyn and 59 by the Eureka. Among those saved was Capt. H. G. Kendall of the Empress.

Noted English Lawyer Perished

Most of the first class passengers apparently perished. Among those in the first cabin were Sir Henry Seton Karr, a noted English lawyer and big game hunter, and Laurence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, and his wife, Mabel Hackney. Of a party of 140 Salvation Army members on board only 20 were rescued. They had left Quebec yesterday bound for the army's international conference in London.

Survivors in Night Clothes

So quick did the Empress sink that those passengers fortunate enough to get into the lifeboats found themselves garbed only in their nightclothes. No baggage was saved. The condition of the survivors was pitiable. Some had broken arms and legs and all had suffered terribly. La Josselin, a prominent lawyer from Montreal, saved himself by clinging to a raft. When the rescue ships docked here the station platform was converted into a hospital and the townspeople, bringing food and clothing, united in a common effort to aid the sufferers. Twelve bodies with faces covered lay side by side on the wharf. They had made the lifeboats only to be fatally hurt.

Bodies and Wreckage

Wreckage strews the St. Lawrence for many hundred yards near the spot where the Empress sank. The sun shone brightly during the forenoon and though the water is still icy, the temperature today was not low enough to increase the suffering of the survivors.

The vast majority of the saved were members of the ship's crew. Early estimates here indicated that not more than 60 passengers were saved. Besides Captain Kendall, the first and second engineers and the ship's surgeon were rescued.

Captain Kendall Overcome

The captain was too overcome to give at first any extended account of the disaster. He had sent a wireless to his line after the vessel was struck, saying "Ship gone."

Huddled in Life Boats

The residents of Rimouski, numbering only 3000, came silently to the dock where the dead and exhausted living were being landed and under the direction of the mayor, H. E. Fiset, gave aid wherever possible. Every doctor in the town was on the scene and many of the injured were taken to private homes. From cedar chests and closets the townsfolk brought garments of all descriptions for those who had lost their belongings. Two headquarters were established at the wharf and at the station of the intercolonial railway. At the station those injured and not removed to homes were cared for.

The rescue boats Eureka and Lady Evelyn found everything on the spot where the Empress sank a scene not unsimilar to that which greeted the liners which rushed to the Titanic's aid.

They found the ship sunk and the surface of the water fortunately calm dotted with lifeboats and littered with floating debris.

In the lifeboats were huddled the survivors, dazed and moaning, some of them dying of injuries sustained in the rush of leaving the sinking steamer.

Hysterical Accounts

Few could give anything but incoherent, almost hysterical accounts of what had happened. J. L. Black and Mrs. Black of Ottawa said they had jumped together into the river. They had been roused by the shock of the collision and unable to get into a lifeboat had made the leap. They were picked up by a boat from the Lady Evelyn. Another survivor was Mrs. Patten of Sherbrooke Que.

Every effort is being made to secure correct lists of the rescued.

Explosion in Engine Room

The water poured into the ship's engine room, caused an explosion and this forced many to jump. Ernest Hays, an assistant purser, told of leaping from the upper promenade deck. He climbed into number three lifeboat. The boat manoeuvered about the wreck for a time and found Captain Kendall clinging to a piece of wreckage. He had jumped just before the Empress went down. W. Davis of Montreal, one of the few survivors able to talk coherently after first landing said he and his wife had not been awakened by the impact of the collision and knew nothing of the accident until water began to rush into their stateroom. He helped his wife to the boat deck but the big ship had already listed and it was impossible to launch a boat. Together they crawled on their hands and knees up the sloping deck of the liner. The vessel was rapidly sinking. His wife was swept from his grasp. Both were carried by the suction into the river. They clung to a piece of wood and were rescued. The wife was unconscious.

J. W. Longley, a rancher at Canford, B. C., calmly sat on the deck rail and went down with the sinking ship. He held his breath, came up, grabbed the side of a lifeboat, held to it and was rescued by the Eureka.

William Measures, a Salvation Army bandsman, crept along the rail of the promenade deck and stepped in the water. He swam to a lifeboat and was rescued.

Steamer Valued at $2,000,000

The Empress of Ireland was valued at $2,000,000 and with her cargo valued at $2,500,000 was fully insured.

At low tide today the tops of her funnels could be seen. She is lying in the channel. It is thought by navigators here that it may be possible to raise her. At present the wreck is a menace to navigation.

In the partial list of survivors available at 1 o'clock this afternoon there appeared the name of only one salon passenger, that of G. W. Henderson, address not given.

STEAMER EMPRESS OF IRELAND RAMMED BY COLLIER STORSTAD

QUEBEC, May 29.—The Canadian Pacific railway steamer Empress of Ireland with more than 1200 persons aboard sank in the gulf of St. Lawrence early today soon after a collision 30 miles off Father Point with the collier Storstad. Four hundred survivors from the lost steamer were landed several hours later at Rimouski by rescue steamers, leaving more than 800 persons unaccounted for and probably lost. The collision occurred at 1.45 in the morning during a dense fog. The Empress of Ireland's wireless sent out a few "S. O. S." signals, enough to send the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail steamer Lady Evelyn to the rescue and then her messages ceased. It was afterwards learned that the big passenger steamer sank ten minutes after the collision. The steamer was in charge of Captain Kendall, who won renown as the man who first detected Crippen, the murderer on the steamer Montfort.

Collier Also Went Down

The collier Storstad, earlier reports said, also sank soon after the accident. She was a steamer of 6028 tons, commanded by Captain Anderson and plied between Sydney, Que., and Montreal. Her crew numbered about 50 men.

The Empress of Ireland, in command of Lieutenant Kendall, Royal Navy reserve, sailed from Quebec at 1.30 yesterday afternoon for Liverpool. There were 77 first, 206 second and 504 third class passengers, which with the crew made over 1200 souls on board. Among the names on her passenger list is Sir Henry Stetor-Kerr, a barrister, whose travels and big game shooting have taken him into many corners of the world.

First news of disaster reached Quebec shortly before three o'clock this morning. It came from the Marconi station at Fathers Point to the marine department agent here and announced that the Empress of Ireland had collided with an unknown ship 30 miles east of Father Point and was sinking. The Marconi station had heard the "S. O. S." signals of distress and reported that the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail tender Evelyn which were at Father Point had been despatched to the rescue. The wireless people reported that they had been in communication with the Empress of Ireland but a short time when the messages suddenly ceased. This led to fears that the steamer had sunk and this afterward proved true.

Nearly an hour after the first messages were received Father Point reported that it was the Hanover of the North German Lloyd line which had been in collision with the Empress of Ireland and that probably both steamers had been lost. This added gravely to the disaster as the Hanover was known to have over 1200 immigrants aboard bound from Rotterdam for this port.

More Than 800 Missing

The report about the Hanover, however, fortunately proved to be an error and at Father Point it was announced that it was learned that it was the collier Storstad that collided with the Empress of Ireland and that both vessels had gone down soon after the collision.

At six o'clock this morning reports that survivors were being landed at Rimouski were received here. It was stated that the Eureka and the Lady Evelyn had landed 350 persons but that more than 800 were probably drowned.

TRADING WAS NORMAL

AT OPENING OF MARKET—WENT LOWER LATER IN DAY—CLOSED STEADY

NEW YORK, May 29.—There was an air of quietness when the market opened for business this morning and trading was of a nominal nature. Of the various shares offered, the railroad stocks appeared the weakest, several leading issues dropping fractions to a point. Otherwise there was little fluctuation in prices during the first hour of trading.

Although there was no pressure to sell, stocks moved towards a lower level as the session advanced. St. Paul softened in connection with its news financing and the weakness of New Haven, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio. Of all the better known issues Reading alone held fairly steady, despite weakness in Lehigh Valley, its affiliated property. More gold for Europe was under negotiation. Bonds were easy.

Conditions were unchanged during the mid-session except for substantial gains in a few specialties, including Beet Sugar, which rose two points on reports of an advance in the raw product. London sold moderately but persistently here, chiefly of steel, total sales aggregating perhaps 1000 shares. Forecasts indicate a fairly large loss of cash by local banks for the week.

The market closed steady today. Such insignificant changes as occurred were in the final dealings when prices of leading issues rose to their best.

The Parochial Schools

At all the parochial schools throughout the city, a special program has been arranged for today in honor of Memorial day, including songs, recitations, patriotic sketches, and other exercises of a national character. As is usual at such times there is great rivalry between the various grades, and in some cases prizes will be awarded for special excellence. The principal feature of the Memorial day observance in the parochial schools is an address on the occasion, its meaning and its lessons, by one of the clergymen connected with the respective parishes.

At St. Michael's, which always makes Memorial day memorable to the pupils, "In Memoriam" and "O Glory Waves" will be sung by the children of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and other songs will also be rendered, including "Flag of the Free" and "Our Loving Dead." There will be many recitations, including "Our Heroes" and "Heroes of '61," and there will be a flag salute by all the pupils of the various grades. Rev. Francis J. Mullen, superintendent of the school, will make an address, and the occasion will be brought to a close by the singing of "America" by the entire school.

At the other various schools exercises were also held, the programs being appropriate to Memorial day.

CONSTIPATION IS DANGEROUS

Pinklets, the New Laxative Really Do Correct It.

The sufferer from constipation is distressed after eating, gas forms on the stomach, the abdomen has a feeling of pressure and weight and is hard and distended.

The blood soon absorbs poisons that should have been expelled and loss of flesh shows that the body is being poorly nourished. Headaches become frequent, the patient is drowsy, irritable and sometimes faint.

Pinklets, the new laxative pills, do not wear out their effect before accomplishing their work of correcting constipation, because they do not stimulate the bowels to over-exertion. They assist nature so gently that the action is regular and thorough, yet without griping. Pinklets put the liver, stomach and bowels in harmonious, perfect working order.

A short trial of Pinklets will convince you that they are the ideal laxative. Every druggist can now supply you with Pinklets at 25 cents per bottle. Write to the Dr. Williams Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a Pinklet book telling all about the treatment of constipation.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuosity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the senorita regularly uses on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your drugstores keep these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror.

PARK COMMISSIONER M'KAY

Formally Qualified at City Hall This Forenoon

He Speaks Interestingly of Parks in European Countries

THOMAS F. McKAY

Thomas F. McKay, the recently elected park commissioner, qualified for office before City Clerk Flynn today. Mr. McKay was elected at Tuesday's meeting of the municipal council, receiving all of the five votes. He will succeed Herbert H. Russell who resigned before attending a single meeting of the board. Mr. McKay would have qualified for office sooner but for the fact that he was at Hampton beach putting his property in order for the summer.

Mr. McKay is engaged in the wholesale biscuit business and resides at 470 Rogers street. He has traveled a great deal and has always taken a great interest in park systems. He talks very interestingly of the parks in England, Ireland, France and Germany. A majority of the foreign countries, he says, take a great deal of pride in their parks and playgrounds. He says it is his earnest intention to try and devise some scheme for the development of Shedd park which he believes can be made one of the city's beauty spots. He thinks it a shame that nothing has been done there. He believes there ought to be a ball ground and recreation field at Shedd park for the enjoyment of the boys and girls of that section of the city. Mr. McKay has never before held public office.

GEN. CARRANZA TO SEND ENVOY TO CONFERENCE

Rebel Leader Notifies Mediators That He Will Send Representative to Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, May 29—Juan F. Urquidi, private secretary to Rafael Zubaran, the constitutionalist agent at Washington, arrived here today bearing a communication from General Carranza to the mediators saying he is willing to send a representative to the mediation to discuss international differences between the United States and Mexico.

Mr. Urquidi said he came merely as a messenger to deliver a communication and not to discuss issues.

When he arrived at the hotel Clifton he sent his card to Ambassador Da Gama, who sent down word that he was "busy" but did not say whether or not he would receive him later in the day.

Although Mr. Urquidi declined to make public the contents of the communication it is understood that Carranza reiterates his original declaration that he accepted mediation in principle on the condition that international questions alone should be discussed.

General Carranza is unwilling that the question of a new provisional president should be discussed at any international conference. He holds that the occupation of Vera Cruz which directly gave rise to the mediation proceedings concerns all Mexican factions as well as the Huerta government.

When the mediators learned of the arrival of the constitutionalist agent, it was said, the negotiations had proceeded to a point where the constitutionalists no longer could hope to have a voice in them.

Conferences have arrived at a standstill awaiting replies from the Washington and Huerta governments on the plan of the mediators for the settlement of the Mexican question which is now before them.

Mr. Urquidi later wrote a note to Ambassador Da Gama saying he was the bearer of a communication from General Carranza and that his mission was solely to deliver it. The ambassador immediately went into conference with the other mediators.

After their conference the mediators sent to bring Mr. Urquidi to the meeting.

MR. LAVINSKI SENT TO JAIL FOR TWO MONTHS FOR ASSAULT

When a crowd assembled in the rear of a house on Front street shortly before midnight, Saturday night, they made too much noise for Frank Lavinski and as a result a lively fight occurred between a part of the crowd that gathered to watch the fire and the Front street tenant, Mr. Lavinski. The affair was aired in court this forenoon when Lavinski was charged with assault and battery upon Stanislaw Capcik and Lawrence Bimba. Bennett Silverblatt for the complainants and George H. Allard for the defendant.

It seems that a number of men who were watching the fire objected to being ordered away from the property by the defendant and when they found out that he was persistent in ordering them off, three of the men picked up stones and bottles and threw them at the windows.

The complainants allege that Lavinski rushed out of his house and assaulted them with a sharp instrument of some kind. It is claimed that Bimba sustained a cut on his right shoulder and a bruise on the forehead while Capcik received a cut on the back, scratches on the right arm and ribs and a cut on the top of his head.

The defendant claims that he was sitting in the kitchen of his house at 73 Front street when a stone was thrown through a window. He claims that he then rushed out in the yard and hardly had left the steps when he was struck on the back by someone who disappeared in the darkness. Lavinski said that he had nothing to do with any of the complainants that night.

After reviewing the evidence Judge Enright found the defendant guilty and ordered him to spend the next two months in the Lowell jail.

Other Cases

Frank Berry, who claims to have come here from Lawrence yesterday afternoon, was arrested last evening while attempting to solicit money on the street. He was released on condition that he leave Lowell for foreign fields immediately.

John J. Donohue made his second appearance for drunkenness within a week but vowed that he would take the pledge if allowed to go on a fine. A fine of six dollars was imposed and he was given four weeks in which to pay it.

Francis J. Gallagher, aged 18 years, pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with being a stubborn child. The boy's mother testified that he had not lived at home since last July. He was placed on probation for three months.

Luke Pelher was given one more chance to live a good life and support his family and he was given a suspended sentence to the Lowell jail. John J. O'Neil [illegible] was ordered to pay a fine of $15 within the next six weeks.

TROUT AND PERCH

Thousands of Them Distributed in Brooks and Ponds Today

Another big shipment of baby fish arrived in Lowell today and today's shipment was probably the last until the fall. There have been more baby fish come to Lowell this year than for the last twenty years, and there's a reason. The Lowell Fish and Game association came into being only a short time ago and despite its youth it is one of the most progressive associations in the city. It has a membership of over 300 and every man connected with it is interested either in fishing or hunting, or both.

There were two shipments of fish today and the first to arrive were a number of cans containing 36,000 fingerling trout. These were sent by the state fish and game commission and were distributed in brooks in and about Lowell. They arrived here at 11.45 and the following ones with automobiles and teams distributed them: Frank Hanchett, Bert Hall, Ernest Chambers, Ephraim Livingstone, George Pearson, Fred Davis and L. A. Derby, president of the Lowell Fish and Game association.

Another shipment of 60,000 white perch arrived about two hours later from New Hampshire and they were planted in Long pond. The perch were supplied by New Hampshire's fish and game commissioner, F. J. Beal. The reason New Hampshire's commissioner contributed so generously is because part of Long pond is in New Hampshire and the Massachusetts and New Hampshire commissioners have agreed upon a plan to stock the pond.

Fish and Game Warden

POPULAR CENTRALVILLE CLUB

The Ponies of Centralville, one of Lowell's most prominent organizations held their second annual banquet at their club rooms last night and from all accounts it was one grand success. The principal speaker of the evening was President J. J. Hart. He took for his topic "The Club," and at the end of the speech was roundly applauded. After President Hart's address a fine musical program was given.

SHOWER TO MISS COUGHLIN

A great many of the friends of Miss Grace Coughlin gathered at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. M. Burns on Westford street last evening and tendered the young lady a miscellaneous shower. Presents consisting of silverware, cut-glass, etc., were showered upon her. Refreshments were served and the rest of the evening was spent in a delightful musical entertainment. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing the young bride-to-be much future happiness.

AN UNKNOWN SUICIDE JUMPED FROM BRIDGE

An unknown man committed suicide shortly before 7.30 o'clock this morning by jumping from the railing on the west side of the Centralville bridge while several persons who were on their way to work watched him strike the water and then attempt to swim to shore, but the current proved too swift and after struggling for about five minutes he disappeared and was not seen again.

None of the many persons who saw the man leap from the bridge into the cold water could give a very good description of him. It is said that he appeared to be about 27 years of age, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. In what direction he came onto the bridge is not known. One of the first to discover the man in the water stated that he climbed onto the top of the railing and jumped into the stream with all of his clothing on, including a derby hat. When he struck the water he undoubtedly changed his mind about committing the rash deed and made an attempt to reach the shore. Although he was apparently a good swimmer the stream was very swift and the young man was carried under the bridge and sank with several people watching him, unable to assist him to shore. The matter was reported to the police, but up till noon no one had made any inquiries about the man.

The swift stream will probably carry the body several hundred yards down the river and it will be difficult to recover it.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Musical comedy in an atmosphere which is most decidedly different from that on the streets these warm days, is the feature at the B. F. Keith theatre. The thermometer has shown right along a difference of 20 degrees between the theatre interior and the outside. "A Movie Girl" is the little piece which is proving successful this week, and it is being put forward by an excellent company. Eighteen song hits are given, and these are provided with splendid ensembles. The chorus of 12 young women is lively and good to look upon. Altogether it is an admirable performance. The occupation of Vera Cruz by Gen. Funston's forces is shown in a good Hearst-Selig picture. Seats may be ordered in advance for Memorial day. 'Phone 28.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Although there are few followers of stock attractions who have not witnessed a performance of "The Ironmaster," fewer indeed are those who will not be pleased to learn that Manager Carroll has at last succeeded in securing this wonderfully interesting Ouida drama for the attraction by the Merrimack Square theatre players for the week commencing with Monday matinee, June 1. This play is recognized as one of the very best ever translated from the French and the mere fact that for a generation it has invariably won distinction as a leading stock offering, should be sufficient evidence of its real worth. It deals with a love of a man for his wife, and of an apparent indifference on the part of the woman for her husband. The piece opens with a happy couple enjoying the many good things in life. There suddenly appears an enemy, clothed in supposed friendship and the woman falls a victim of his polished and winning mannerisms. The discovery by the husband arrives him to desperation, and after a most interesting scene in which the woman attempts to defend herself, he orders her from the house. Future circumstances that arise tend to bring the pair together again and the closing scenes show the man and wife once more united and everything pointing to a prosperous and pleasant future. Mr. Weeks and Miss Malvern will appear in the leading roles and there is little doubt but that both will rise to the demand of the wonderful dramatic situations which the play offers. Mr. Stevens, whose acting has always been of the finished type, will be seen in one of his best parts while Stewart Wilson will again contribute largely to the success of the piece. The women of the cast are to wear wigs that will correspond in color to the costumes worn. This is a real novelty to local theatregoers and will be used for the first time in Lowell theatrical circles next week. For the sacred concerts on Sunday afternoon and night Manager Carroll has secured some of the newest and most novel features in vaudeville, as well as the best photo-plays. Secure your seats for next week's performances in advance. Telephone 2055. It costs no more and will save you trouble.

THE OWL THEATRE

We all like the summertime, with its sunny skies, but above all we like to keep cool. The keeping cool part of it is what worries most local theatre men. They are not in a position to give their patrons the desired coolness. However, the Owl managers had this in view when the theatre was built, and the result is surprising. It is cool. The sliding roof is an innovation that keeps the cool air in and chases out the warm currents. The concrete does not have a lot to do with it also. The show contains the following bookings: "False Evidence," a Warner two-reeler, with Gene Gauntier, "Freckles," a two-reeler, "The Mutual Girls" weekly adventure, a Keystone comedy, and many other that we have no space to mention. Jack Dalton will sing, and an extra good show will be the result.

TERRIBLE ITCHING HUMOR ON FACE

Pimples Like Small Blisters. Kept from Sleep. Suffering Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Sterling, Mass.—"My humor commenced first with a small spot of little white pimples with red surface. The pimples looked like small blisters. They disturbed me after retiring and kept me from going to sleep. The spot spread to quite a good size and being on my face it began to alarm me. The suffering from its itching was terrible. It caused disfigurement.

"I tried a remedy which did not help. It was less than a month after it broke out that I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used to put the Cuticura Ointment on when going to bed and used the Cuticura Soap. The help they were doing me was seen right from the start and soon my skin was all smooth. I was cured." (Signed) W. H. Boutwell, May 20, 1913.

"Why should I use Cuticura Soap? There is nothing the matter with my skin and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True. It is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate, emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 29.—Justice Joseph R. Lamar of the United States supreme court is the dominant figure in the A. B. C. peace conference. Justice Lamar has from the first taken the leading part in attempting to straighten out the tangle affairs of the shot riddled republic. If peace prevails it will be due mostly to his able methods of dealing with the delicate situation. He has been quoted as saying he had every reason to believe the negotiations would prove successful.

MAN REPORTED MISSING DISAPPEARED RECENTLY

After leaving home at 5 o'clock last Saturday morning while his parents slept, David Supremant of 57 Cushing street, aged 22 years, has not returned and his parents and other relatives are anxious to learn of his whereabouts as it is feared that he might die of starvation, not being able to work. Since the sudden disappearance, Detective Drury of The Sun building, who is working on the case, has learned that the young man spent a few days in West Centralville, near the banks of the Merrimack river, but no further clue can be found.

About two years ago, while working in one of the local mills, Supremant was struck on the head by a freight elevator while looking down into the well and since that time he has been unable to work, and at times showed signs of being temporarily deranged, although he has seldom left his home in Cushing street.

Last Friday night he retired at the usual hour and, it is said, about 5 o'clock the next morning rose and left the house dressed in a black suit. It is not believed that he wore any hat and his parents are in doubt as to whether or not he wore shoes or outside shirt. The young man is five feet and five inches tall and quite heavily built. His complexion is dark and his hair was cut very short.

A resident of Lakeview avenue states that Sunday morning about 5 o'clock he saw Supremant lying on the grass near the Aiken street bridge with a coat pulled over his head, but at the time he did not know of his disappearance and thought nothing of it. Detective Drury has also learned that on Tuesday the young man was seen in the same section walking from tree to tree, and at times would sit in the shade for several minutes and then would get up and go to another shady spot. A report from the Navy Yard states that a man answering the description of Supremant was seen out there Wednesday but nothing more has been heard of him.

The parents of the missing man state that he often acted as if in a melancholy mood and never would answer anyone who addressed him on the street or in a house. He had no money when he went away Saturday morning and it is not believed that he would go searching for work or food. The banks of the Merrimack river have been searched by Detective Drury in the hope of securing some clue as to his whereabouts but all efforts have been futile and any information about the young man will be gladly received by Mr. Drury at his office in The Sun building.

THEATRE VOYONS

One of the best detective stories ever released is being shown at the Voyons today and tomorrow entitled "The Detective's Sister." This is about a crook who falls in love with an invalid. Her brother is the detective who arrests the crook. When she is dying she calls for her lover and with his arms around her she dies. This scene is one that will be long remembered by those who see this picture. After she dies he turns over a new leaf and lives an upright life. It ranks Selig with new scenes and happenings from the Mexican war zone is also shown. Another two-reel feature "The Grip of Circumstances," should please and there are two comedies and two songs at each show.

AUTO SCARED HORSE

AND EXCITING RUNAWAY RESULTED—AGENT RICHARDSON'S HORSE ON RAMPAGE

Famous Marathoner, Winner of Recent B. A. A. Race, to Run at U. S. Bunting Meet Tomorrow

Jim Duffy, winner of the recent Boston Marathon race, of the Yonkers, N. Y., Marathon, of the Toronto Ward Marathon, two-time winner of the Hamilton Herald classic and holder of the world's record for 19 and 25 miles, arrived in Lowell yesterday after a 20-hour journey from his home in Hamilton, Ontario. The famous athlete, who was accompanied by his trainer, Tom Thompson, will strive to defeat a big field in the 10-mile handicap race to be run at the Bunting Cricket club grounds tomorrow afternoon.

Duffy will take a short workout on the Bunting track this afternoon. Last Saturday at Hamilton he breezed over a government measured course of five miles in 25 minutes and 40 seconds. He was unpaced.

The young Irish Canadian has a most prepossessing appearance. Weighing 153 pounds, his five feet nine inches of bone and muscle are evenly distributed. In carriage he is extremely erect and he walks along with the lithesomeness of a natural born athlete. To judge from his friskiness and general appearance he is on edge for the fastest race of his life tomorrow afternoon. Last Decoration day, in a broiling sun and wilting atmosphere, he defeated a field of over one hundred of the fastest American long distance runners in the annual Yonkers, N. Y., Marathon race. This was the third in a string of five successive Marathons which he has won. He holds the world's record for 19 miles, 168 yards, having covered that distance at Hamilton in 1912 in one hour forty-six minutes and fifteen seconds. He is also the five and ten mile record holder of Scotland, while in the International cross country championships in Paris three years ago he finished third in a field of several hundred.

Although he is naturally at his best in races of 20 and 25 miles, Duffy expects to lead the field in the short 10 mile race tomorrow. Mr. Thompson has been working hard in putting plenty of "pep" into his stride so he should show great speed as well as his well known endurance.

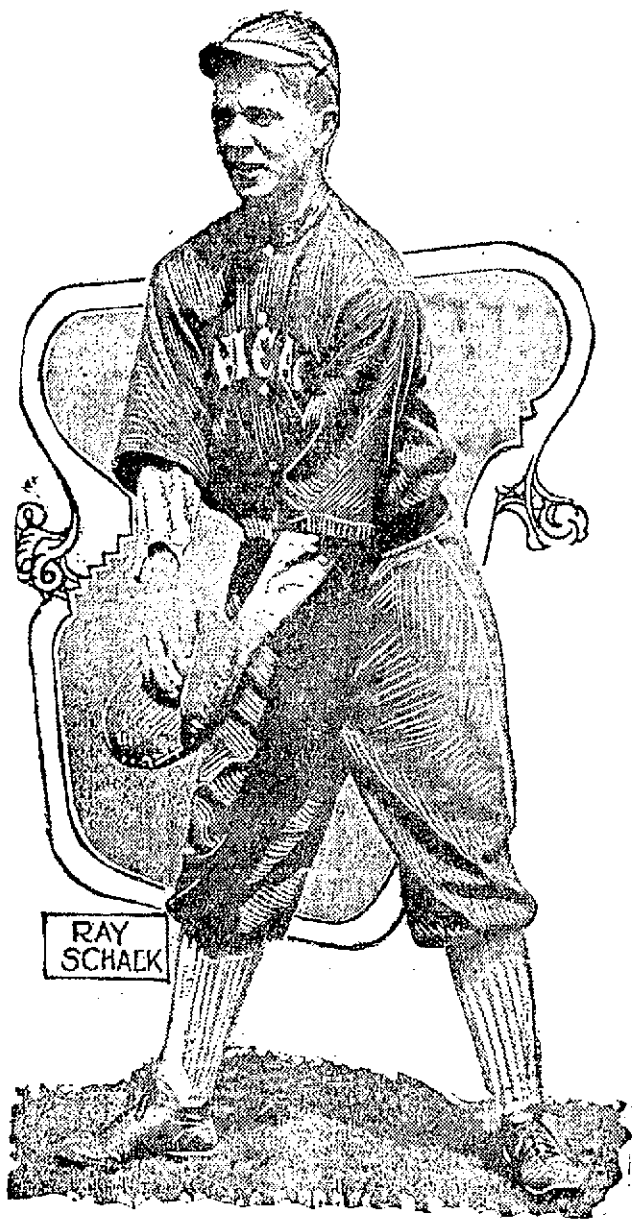
Unlike many former champions with awkward action, Duffy lopes over the ground with a long, velvety, tireless stride. With each contraction of his muscles he leaves behind him approximately seven feet of space. So easily does he cover the ground that it would seem to the observer that running is as easy as breathing.

Duffy, who was born in County Sligo, Ireland, 24 years ago, is a stonecutter by occupation. Two years ago he went to Hamilton from his home in Scotland and in that city he became the athletic sensation. Outside of his work and running, the Marathon champion likes to do just two things, read and fish. In this latter recreation he has few equals along the shores of Lake Ontario for he is as persevering in angling for the elusive bass and perch as he is in winning a Marathon race.

At the New American house, where he and Mr. Thompson are staying, Duffy is resting quietly for tomorrow's race. He is of a jolly disposition and the honors that have come to him have left him as they found him, a modest, quiet, young gentleman.

The young Hamiltonian will leave Lowell Saturday night for his home town and on Wednesday he will journey to Kingston, Ontario, where he is to meet Fabre, the French Canadian runner whom he defeated in the recent Boston race.

RAY SCHALK FORGES AHEAD OF SCHANG FOR CATCHING HONORS



Last season it was a neck and neck race between Wallie Schang of the Athletics and Ray Schalk of the White Sox for premier backstopping honors. The opportunities in the world's series gave Schang the edge, and he was generally acknowledged the best in his league. The sudden rise to fame seems to have affected him somewhat this season, and his Chicago rival is playing the game of his life. Ray has the handicap of a much slighter build than Schang, but uses his head quicker and to better purpose.

GRAND JURY PROBE

WITNESSES STILL BEFORE THE JURY AT THE COURT HOUSE IN GORHAM STREET

The grand jury probe into municipal affairs was resumed at the court house in Gorham street this morning. Former Alderman Andrew E. Barrett was one of the witness. Mr. Barrett was called yesterday afternoon but upon arriving at the court house was told that he would not be required until today. Other witnesses today included Alderman Brown and City Auditor Paige. Grand jury witnesses, of course, are not telling what happens inside the jury room walls, but the impression obtains that District Attorney Corcoran has planned a thorough investigation of the charges alleging that members of the municipal council exceeded their appropriations in 1912-13. It is barely possible that the investigaton may be completed today and in that event a report might be expected within two weeks.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

Well, it was a good game yesterday even if we did lose it. Of course there were several places where the local players could have improved upon their judgment. For instance when DeGrow was on third and Stimpson on first in the sixth inning poor baseball shut off Lowell's chance of tieing up the score. Stimpson started for second (there were two men out) and deliberately waited to draw Hayden's throw to Bowcock. Instead of the Rube making a dash for the plate as the play should have been worked he stuck to the third cushion and Stimpson was an easy out.

"Shorty" Dee was right on hand with his bludgeon yesterday and three clean singles bounded off his bat. "Shorty" crossed up the Portland fielders when he singled into short right field in the eighth. As a rule the Lowell shortstop hits to left efild and his blow to right was unlooked for.

Stimpson once more smote the horsehide for a brace of safeties. The left fielder seems to have gotten the habit of getting two hits in a game. If he keeps up the pace he is going now he'll hand up a new league batting record.

Two more stolen bases were chalked up yesterday to Greenhalge's discredit. Dowell's steal in the first inning would never have been executed if the Lowell catcher's throw had not been wide. It looks as though "Pete" Waroh would be doing the bulk of the work in this department if "Snubber" doesn't take a brace.

Mike Hayden's arm was greatly in evidence yesterday as several local base runners learned to their sorrow. The only Lowell runner to trifle with his whip and get away with it was Mathews, who pilfered second in the seventh, but died there when Kelley filed to Burns and Smith grounded to Williams.

The game tomorrow morning between Lowell and Lawrence at Spalding park will start promptly at 10.15 o'clock. The two teams will commence hostilities at Lawrence in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Jimmy Duffy certainly looks the part of a distance runner. His build is ideal for his specialty and he eats up the miles with a long, easy stride that is deceiving. Duffy should beat Lilly and Faber easily in tomorrow's ten-mile race.

Jesse Burkett and Jimmy Duffy had a regular pow-wow at the hotel at which both men were stopping this morning. Jesse played ball up around Hamilton when he was a youngster (that's some time ago) and the distance champion knew many people on Burkett's list of acquaintances.

It will be a rare fight for premier honors between Penn, Cornell and Yale in the intercollegiates tomorrow at the stadium. There is hardly any choice between them now, although on paper Penn would seem to stand out ahead in the track events. Just what the field athletes do tomorrow will decide where Yale and Cornell fit.

NEWS OF LEGISLATURE

Bill Affecting Strikes Discussed—Dental Nurse Bill—Blue Sky Law—Other Matters

BOSTON, May 29.—The so-called "Anti-injunction" bill, which in substance prevents the issuance of an injunction against strikers by the court unless "said injunction be necessary to prevent irreparable injury to property," was passed yesterday to be engrossed by the house of representatives.

There was an extended debate on the so-called "dental nurse" bill, which provided that any person of good moral character of 20 years of age, who passes a satisfactory examination and pays a fee of $10, may clean teeth in public schools and institutions under the direction of a registered dentist. Mr. Bigelow of Framingham sought to substitute a bill which eliminated the private dental nurse, but retained all the other features. Mr. Catheron and Mr. Bothfeld were heard in favor and Mr. Mulvehy, Mr. Gilman and Mr. Mahoney were opposed.

Dental Measures Rejected

Both Mr. Bigelow's substitution bill and the original "dental nurse" bill were rejected. In the morning the house refused to substitute for an adverse committee report a bill to provide for the teaching of mouth hygiene and the cleaning of pupils' teeth in the public schools.

When the regular hour for adjournment for the day arrived, Mr. Carr was addressing the house in favor of his amendment to the bill amending the Workmen's Compensation act to provide that payment for incapacitation shall begin from the day of such incapacitation instead of two weeks after as is now the case.

LOWELL MEN HONORED

MALDEN, May 29.—There is a close affinity between Kilwinning and Stirling in Scotland, and the two Masonic lodges in this state which bear those names are maintaining that relationship to the fullest degree. Kilwinning of Lowell was the host for Stirling of Malden a few months ago, and last night the two further cemented the bonds when the lodge in this city was the entertainer. To give emphasis to the exchange of courtesies, Grand Master Melvin M. Johnson was made the central figure. With the Lowell deputation were Junior Grand Warden Proctor, Past Grand Warden Stevens and District Deputy Pollard.

Past Master Charles B. Burleigh, the first master of the lodge of Stirling, was chairman of the reception committee to escort the Lowell visitors to the chamber and his associates were Past Grand Masters J. Albert Blake and Dana J. Flanders, Past Grand Wardens Walter F. Medding and Harry P. Ballard, Past Masters Frank T. Barron, John H. Studley, Jr., Willis I. Foss, Henry Gerrish, Jr., George H. Graves and Granville M. Thomas.

There was a hearty reception from Worshipful Master Charles E. Prior. In the party were Donald M. Cameron, W. M.; Harry A. Thompson, S. W.; Charles E. Cook, J. W.; Arthur J. Markland, (P. M.) T.; Wallace T. Butterfield, S.; Frank R. Kenney, M.; Harry A. Parkhurst, S. D.; Harry D. Thompson, J. D.; Alvah H. Weaver, S. S.; William A. Lamson, J. S.; Harry C. Briggs, I. S.; Frank L. Weaver, William W. Jones and Murray H. Pratt, P. M., and Harry L. Woodman, all of Kilwinning. They were accompanied by Past Master Arthur D. Prince of William North lodge, Senior Warden Edson J. Humphrey and Ira M. Boothby of Pentucket lodge.

PORTLAND SCORES LONE RUN

"Shorty" Dee the Batting Star With Three Hits

Inability to connect for hits at opportune times cost Lowell a pitcher's battle yesterday afternoon at Spalding park when Hugh Duffy's men provided the attraction. "Texas" Lohman and Williams, a big southpaw, were the mound performers.

Portland scored the only run of the game in the first inning when Clemens angled to short centre, went to second on Burns' sacrifice and scored on Lowell's single to left. Both teams looked like scores several times later on in the contest but on each occasion the heaves clustered up and retired the side. It was a good game all the way through. But one misplay, an error by Lonergan on Kelly's grounder in the fifth, marred the fielding of either team.

First Inning

Portland as usual led off. Clemens after getting in the hole for two strikes singled to centre. Burns sacrificed him to second. Bennie Bowcock was called out on strikes and put up a holler on the third strike but that's all there was to it. Dowell placed a Texas leaguer to left centre, scoring Clemens. Dowell then stole second. Greenhalge throwing high. Lonergan fouled-fled to Greenhalge, retiring the side one run.

For Lowell, Dee started with a bang down the first base line that he made into a hit. DeGroff sacrificed him to second. Burke hit to Williams and Lee was caught on the way to third. Dee cavorted up and down the line with four Portland players playing tag with him until Burke got to second. Then Dee went out. The Portland players continued their tactics of yesterday, baiting the umpire from the bench and Bannon announced that the next man that opened up would be put out of the grounds, his announcement was greeted with jeers from the Portland bench. Simpson filed to Lonergan. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Second Inning

Portland went out in order. Hickman hit to Burke, who made a swell play, knocking the ball down with his hand and making a beautiful throw to first. Merrill flied out to Simpson. Hayden hit an easy grounder to Lohman and died at first. No runs. For Lowell, it was one, two, three. Greenhalge sent a hot one to Lonergan and was out at first. Matthews and Kelly were both victims of Bowcock's arm on grounders to second. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Third Inning

After Dee had taken Williams' fly in short left and Clemens had grounded out to Kelly, Burns doubled to left centre. Bowcock dropped a single to short left, Simpson fielding the ball to first base, holding Burns on third. Bowcock, before Lohman had a chance to deliver the ball, stole second. Dowell made DeGroff go some with his fly to right near the foul lines but Rube was on the job. No runs. For Lowell, Burke tried a bunt but was thrown out, Williams to Dowell. Lohman hit the ball on the nose but Bowcock was there with the handy catch. Dee went out, Lonergan to Dowell. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Fourth Inning

Lonergan went out on a grounder, Smith to Dowell. Dee threw out Lohman at first. Merrill went out Lohman to Kelly. No runs. For Lowell, DeGroff groundered out, Bowcock to Dowell. Williams in a fit of wildness passed Burke. Simpson singled to short left, Burke going to second. Both men took a run on a passed ball to Hayden. Greenhalge and Matthews both went the drives to Merrill. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Fifth Inning

Hayden with three and two on him doubled to left field. Williams struck out. Have a word to them Clemens' ready out, Burke to Kelly. Burns closed the inning with a fly to Simpson to short left. No runs.

For Lowell, Kelly hit an inside ball on the handle to Lonergan and got first on Lonergan's error, the first misplay of the game. Smith popped up an easy fly to Bowcock. Kelly was caught napping by Williams and run down in the box and was put out. Lohman took up a bunt fly that the wind carried foul and Hayden caught it. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Sixth Inning

Bowcock, the first man up in the sixth, sent a single into left between Burke and Dee. Dowell sacrificed him to second, Kelly taking the grounder and Smith covering the bag. Bowcock went to third on Lonergan's fine out, Dee to Kelly. Hickman smashed a hard grounder to Kelly for the third out. No runs. For Lowell, Dee sent a single to left centre. DeGroff made a single to centre, Dee going to second. Burke sacrificed both men along on a bunt to Hickman. Simpson hit to Williams and Lee was out at the plate. Dee attempted to slide under Hayden and both men rolled in a heap. Bannon ruled him out; DeGroff went to third. Simpson attempted to get to second and was caught between the bases and went out, Rube not attempting to complete the play. It was certainly one heads-up play. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Seventh Inning

Merrill hit a long drive to right for two bases. Hayden died to Simpson in deep left. Williams flied out to Matthews in deep centre. Matthews' quick return holding the runner on second. Clemens went out on a grounder to Dee, Shorty's throw just getting the former outfielder at first. No runs.

Greenhalge opened the lucky seventh with a grounder to Hickman and was out at first. Matthews hit the first ball pitched to left centre for a single. Burns took Kelly's fly in short right centre. Matthews stole second. Smith closed the inning with a grounder to Williams. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Eighth Inning

Burns met Lohman's fast one for a single to right. A fast double play shut off Portland's chances to score. Bowcock hit to Lohman; Burns was forced at second on Lohman's peg to Dee and Bowcock was thrown out at first on a close play. Dowell was easy for Lohman and Kelly. No runs.

Lohman struck out. Dee got his third hit of the game when he singled to right-centre. DeGroff sent up a high foul fly near the grandstand which Hayden made a nice catch of. Dee attempted to go to second after the ball was caught but he was the victim of Hayden's throw to Bowcock.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Ninth Inning

Bannon called Lonergan out on his grounder to Kelly amid yells of protest from the Portland bench.

Burke ran up in front of the plate and took Hickman's fly. Merrill grounded out, Smith to Kelly. No runs.

Burns made a nice catch of Burke's fly over second.

Stimpson out trying to steal second. Greenhalge flied out to Burns.

According to Mr. Dillon, a member of the Boston park commission, this city had a display of tulips earlier than any other city in Massachusetts, this spring, and Mr. Dillon came up from Boston to look over the display. The bulbs have all been taken up by employes of the park department, and will be saved for planting this fall.

Permanent grading on the westerly side of the South common is going on daily now, and, with the arrival of a carpet of grass, this portion of the common will present an unusually attractive appearance. A gravel walk has been constructed running from Summer street to a point opposite the entrance to Hood's laboratory in Thorndike street. Much difficulty has been experienced in keeping people from walking on the newly graded part and it has been necessary to wire off a portion of it.

The dancers at the pavilion at Lakeview last evening had the rare experience of dancing for two hours practically in the dark. The high tension system, which supplies the power for the incandescent electric lights, became short-circuited early in the evening. What is technically known as the "booster" was called into play, but this furnished only enough power for the electric cars and no surplus for lighting the dance hall. A few lanterns were secured and lighted. These were placed upon the stage for the benefit of the orchestra, while the dancers whirled in the waltz and tango in the semi-darkness.

About fifty friends of Miss Delia Beston met at the home of Miss Laura Tucker, 36 Orleans street, last evening and pleasantly surprised the former with a linen shower. She received many useful pieces of linen. Although greatly surprised, she responded in a fitting manner. Solos were rendered by the Misses Bessie Monorszynski, Rosalin Labrie and Ella Corkey, Misses Janet Campbell and Catherine Conlon played a piano and violin duet; and Misses Mary Gordon and Helen Rochette were very pleasing in humorous readings. Miss Tucker served dainty refreshments.

TODAY ENDS BIG SALE

NOT ANOTHER CHANCE TO GET REFERENCE WORK AFTER CLOSING TODAY

The reopening sale of People's Cyclopedia this week has been as great a success as was the original distribution last week, and the J. L. Chalifoux Co. has been thronged with customers eager to get this wonderful set before the sale ends at closing time today.

There's no time to lose now, for the supply is rapidly diminishing and no more sets can be had after these are gone. So it's "good-bye" to the offer after today.

People's Cyclopedia is the most useful set of books on earth. It consists of five octave volumes, bound in English cloth, magnificently illustrated throughout and regularly sells for $12. Today $1.98 will get the complete set. Surely this is an unusual book bargain.

See the announcement elsewhere in this issue and present the coupon at the store of the J. L. Chalifoux Co.

35 OFFICERS EXECUTED

FEDERALS CAPTURED BY CONSTITUTIONALISTS AT TEPIC WERE SHOT TO DEATH

NOGALES, Ariz., May 29.—Thirty-five federal officers captured by the constitutionalists at the city of Tepic were executed May 24, according to a message received here yesterday from Gen. Alvaro Obregon, the constitutionalist commander.

Gen. Obregon's message says that Rear Admiral Howard, the American naval commander on the Pacific coast, telegraphed to the German consul at Tepic to intercede for the lives of the federals "for the sake of humanity," but Obregon answered that the execution of the officers was necessary to prevent them making trouble in the future.

The federals were taken to the cemetery and shot in squads.

INNINGS	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	Runs	Hits	Errors

Blustering Jesse Burkett and his band of pennant chasers from Worcester came to town today full of confidence. "Nothin' to it," said the doughty Jesse at the hotel this morning. "We'll eat 'em up today and don't forget it."

Notwithstanding this rather broad statement on the part of Burkett the local club showed lots of pepper when they scampered on to the diamond for their fielding practice, in fact they looked better as a baseball machine than their opponents.

"Wild" Roes and Rube DeGroff were kept apart by their respective managers for very obvious reasons. During last Saturday's contest between Lowell and Worcester at Spalding Park these two husky bat swingers got into a rather heated argument. For a time it looked as though possibly a "white hope" battle might be staged at the park so earnest were the two ball players in telling each other's weak points.

The Rube was not in a pugilistic frame of mind today but "Wild" appeared all ready for anything. Before the start of the game he was seen hunting about under the visitors bench, possibly in search of a chip with which to decorate his shoulder and challenge the league's comedian.

Jesse was the same cheerful specimen of baseball manager today that he always is. Nothing but a growl and a rumble was heard out of him during the Worcester team's batting and fielding practice and whenever a player slipped up on a chance, especially an infielder, Jesse's bull roar could be heard half way to Merrimack Square. He's a Tartar, is Jesse on the ball field.

Although the weather was not as warm as that of the past two days it was ideal for a ball game and Ground Keeper Dan Finnerty had the diamond as smooth as a ball room floor. No alibis today, boys, if you miss a hop coming off the diamond.

While reputed to be a "crab" on the ball field, Jesse is a hale fellow well met when outside and this morning when the sporting editor of The Sun introduced him to Jimmie Duffy, the Martahon hero Jesse warmed up to him right away and was talking to him like a long-lost brother within a few minutes.

"You and your manager come out to grounds this afternoon as my guest and see the game," was Jesse's cordial invitation.

"I'm sorry, but I've got to do a little running at the Bunting grounds this afternoon, to prepare for tomorrow," replied Duffy.

"O t'ell with the running; come out and see us clean up this bunch, it will do much more good," said the enthusiastic boss of the fusters.

The fans were pleased to see young Jimmie Ring on the mound for it was his second appearance and he made a good impression by his victory over Fitchburg a few days ago.

Pete Wood who this week asked for his release from Lowell and received it appeared in a Worcester uniform. He started in to pitch to the Worcester batters during the preliminary practice and in a few minutes was engaged in a chawing match with the venerable Jesse. Pete, by his well known wildness, had the Worcester players backing away like a bunch of African dodgers and when Jesse attempted to hand him a little fatherly advice, Pete came back at the old man. Pete is always there with the argument.

The attendance this afternoon was not much of an improvement over yesterday but then one might expect this on the day preceding a holiday. Lawrence will be the attraction tomorrow morning and the game will start at 10.15. Lowell will play at Lawrence in the afternoon.

The fans breathed a sigh of relief when Umpire Hardy appeared on the greensward Catcher McCune, who has been the Worcester standby for several seasons appeared behind the bat again today having been laying off with a split finger, the accident taking place on the occasion of Worcester's last visit here, the accident causing a delay that prevented the game being the shortest of the season.

The line-up of the teams was as follows:

Lowell	Worcester
Dee, ss	lf, Carroll
DeGroff, rf	rf, Shorten
Burke, 3b	2b, Strands
Stimpson, lf	1b, Mundy
Matthews, cf	3b, Roes
Greenhalge, c	cf Stewart
Kelly, 1b	ss, Cooney
Smith, 2b	c, McCune

First Inning

Ring started off by striking out Carroll, Worcester's stubby left fielder who has been hitting the ball consistently of late. Ring had the real juice on his spitter. Shorten hit through the box for a single. Smith knocking down the ball and booting it to short left though Shorten was held on first. Shorten stole second, Greenhalge's throw being bad. Strands, the leading second baseman of the league fell for two bad ones and then sent a fly to Dee over second base. Dee caught the ball with one hand and tried to throw to Smith for a double at second but it was a poor throw and Shorten got a life at second. Ring's delivery was very low. Greenhalge being forced to block many of them after they hit the ground. Dee tried to catch Shorten off second but Ring got it there too late and again Shorten was in the running. Burke made a play on Mundy's grounder along the third base line which stamped him as a great ball player. Mundy's grounder was slow and Burke seeing that he could not get him at first made a bluff to throw to Kelly and Shorten failing for it made for third and Burke tagged him out before he could get back. No runs.

For Lowell, Shorty Dee started off with a sizzling grounder which Roes took and Roes made a nice step and peg, getting the little fellow at first. Rube DeGroff stood up and looked over Bushelman's delivery until he got four bad ones and meandered leisurely to the initial bag. The Rube had Bushelman nervous with his antics off first base. The Worcester pitcher made a few ineffectual attempts to peg him at first but Rube was on the job all the time. Rube was an easy out at second when he tried to steal, Cooney catching McCune's perfect throw. On the next ball Bushelman made a wild heave that would have counted against him had there been a runner on any of the bags. Burke after three and two on him fouled off four of them but got them all away from the fielder and finally flied out to Carroll in left. No runs.

Second Inning

Between the first and second innings Burkett got after Shorten for not wearing his sun glasses. Shorten obediently put on the goggles. Old Jesse then went out on the coaching line and received the usual reception from the bleacherites, as welcome as the measles. Strange to relate, Jesse assumed an air of indifference and paid no attention to the bunch, evidently waiting for Lowell to get a lead before holding a formal opening. Ring passed up three bad ones to Roes and then proceeded to show him the goods, fanning him and using another spitter for the third baby. It chagrined the Worcester third sacker and he retired to the water bucket, saying things sotto voce, whoever that is. Stewart convinced the third base bleacherites that he was on the job by sending in a foul tip that demolished a new straw lid, owner's name unknown. Ring sent up two bad ones and the Worcester coachers started to yell that Ring was going bad. Stewart waited and was rewarded by a walk. Greenhalge signaled for a waste ball and tried to catch Stewart off first but was defeated in his attempt by a small margin. Cooney hit to right and the Rube after running some grabbed the fly. McCune, Burkett's star pinch-hitter, was forced by Ring to send a grounder to Dee and Shorty touched second, forcing Stewart and closing the inning. No runs.

For Lowell, Stimpson Lowell's plugging left fielder laid down a bunt to Roes who pulled Mundy off the bag with a poor throw and Stimp was safe. Hardy called one on Matthews that looked rather high. On his next delivery Hardy called a ball. Matthews popped up a high fly back of second base which Strands took. Stimpson had to go some to get back to first. Greenhalge belted the ball to the left centre field fence scoring Stimpson. It was a good third bagger but Snubber was too ambitious and tried to make home on it. It was bum judgment and McCune was waiting for him with the ball while he was two yards away. Thus then Jesse opened up on his outfield for not playing the batter. Kelly took two strikes and then walked and got a free ticket to first which he accepted gratefully. Smith didn't take kindly to Bushelman's curves and his best was a foul-fly to McCune. One run.

Third Inning

Bushelman, Burkett's star slinger, was the first man up in the third and Burkett and Hardy to make things interesting had a few words and the crowd got after him. Bushelman hit a high grounder to Kelly who got him without assistance. Carroll got after Greenhalge alleging that he was trying to hold his bat. Nothing doing, but talk. Hardy called the fourth ball for Carroll amid a protest from the Lowell bench but it was a ball nevertheless. Shorten tried to break the ball and hit a weak ball to Ring, Jimmie got him at first but Carroll made second. Strands was the third out with a grounder to Smith who threw him out at the first station and there were no runs.

Ring led off for Lowell. The fact that Jimmie's pants were too small for him interfered with his batting, for he swiped the atmosphere three times. Shorty Dee stepped up to the bat and smote Bushelman's first offering over the left field fence for a homer. Shorty is getting to be the home run kid and the crowd showed its appreciation by giving him a great hand and some footwork. While the crowd was yet cheering the diminutive shortstop DeGroff evidently picked up Dee's hat while it was still hot, for after getting two strikes on him, the big outfielder smashed the ball over the left-field fence in almost the same spot in which Dee landed it. Rube likewise got a grand reception as he came in. McCune made a swell catch of Burke's foul-fly in front of the Worcester bench. Burkett sat on the bench with a sad and solemn countenance. Those two home drives seemed to take the ginger out of the Worcester infield. Stimpson sent a grounder to Strands and was only beaten by a stride at first. Two runs.

Fourth Inning

The scrappy Worcester manager took his place on the first base coach line regardless of the three run lead. Mundy, the big first baseman, walked on four successive bad ones. After Ring had delivered three bad balls to Roes, the entire Worcester bunch began to yell at him but Hardy took no notice of this infraction of the rules. For the second time Ring struck out Roes, and the latter acted like a nut as he went back to the Worcester bench. Ring was very cool and did not seem to mind the shots hurled at him. A fast double play lost all chances for Worcester in this inning. Stewart hit a grounder to Smith, who threw to Dee, forcing out Mundy. The latter collided with Dee to block his throw but Shorty got the ball away to Kelly in time to get the batter at first. No runs.

For Lowell: Matthews almost made a homer, putting the ball over the left field fence, but he turned on it too much and it was outside the foul-line. This player has done the same thing on several occasions, always turning on the ball. Matthews hit between first and second and Strands made a one-hand stab at the sphere, but it got away from him and Matt got a single out of it. Matthews was caught out by McCune when he tried to make second. Greenhalge made no attempt to swing at the ball and thus hinder McCune's throw. Greenhalge doubled to the left field fence. Greenhalge went to third on Kelly's infield out, Cooney to Mundy. Rube, who was on the first base coach line, hollered to Smith for a hit and Smith stopped a fast one with his back and took his base, just as good as a single. Ring retired the side on a grounder to Strands, who threw him out at first. No runs.

Fifth Inning

Cooney fell a victim on a grounder between first and second. Smith fielding the ball to Kelly. Kelly took McCune's grounder without an effort, touching the first bag without assistance. Burkett's disgusted expression pleased the third base bleacher fans and they got after the Worcester manager in great style. Evidently Jesse feeling that defeat was too bitter for utterance said but little and when Jesse says but little there is little to be said. Dee ate up Bushelman's grounder and threw the Worcester pitcher out at first. No runs.

For Lowell: Dee laid down a bunt to Bushelman and the umpire called him out on an exceedingly close play. Rube hit a grounder along the first-base line that Bushelman fielded, the Rube dying at first. Burke bunted to Bushelman and beat it out. It was the third chance that the pitcher had and his work on all of the grounders was perfect. The Worcester pitcher tried to keep down the Lowell fielder's lead on first and Burke made a good slide every time that Bushelman threw. Burke then stole second, being the first Lowell player to turn the trick. Cooney dropped the ball, but Burke was safe in any event. Stimpson closed the inning with a grounder to Cooney. No runs.

Sixth Inning

When the Worcester players got in Burkett called them together and evidently told them in no uncertain terms to go out and knock Rings off the Ring. The latter made a monkey out of Carroll on the first two balls pitched both being strikes. Carroll proved himself a patient waiter and walked. Burkett came to life and he and Van Dyke the southpaw, exchanged hot shot across the coach lines. Ring, in a fit of wildness put over three bad ones to Shorten. Capt. Burke called him over and talked to him like a father with good effect for the next two were strikes. Shorten hit to Dee forcing Carroll at second but Shorten made first. This is the fourth inning in which Ring got himself in a hole by his generosity. Ring fanned Strands and the crowd howled in appreciation of the new pitcher's work for while he did pass a few they were not scoring on him. Mundy got a toe-hold on the plate and made three mighty swing which put awful punctures in the atmosphere but escaped the ball each time. No runs.

For Lowell, Matthews went out on a grounder to Roes. Greenhalge after fouling the ball over the fence stood back and watched two beautiful curves cut the plate in two, and was out. Kelly went out on a grounder to Mundy. No runs.

Score: Lowell 3, Worcester 0.

Seventh Inning

Wild Roes stepped to the plate with vengeance in his eye and connected for a single to centre. Stewart made Frank Sherwood duck with a hot foul into the grand stand. The fans were much surprised to see Frank get away without making a stab at the ball. On the next ball Stewart doubled to left, Roes going to third, Stimpson misjudging the fly. Burkett ran back and forth on the coaching line and kept up a constant running fire of talk with the batter and base runners. Cooney scored Roes with a long sacrifice fly to DeGroff. The latter threw to Burke at third and Burke had the runner on a close play, but Hardy called him safe. Burke put up an argument but it didn't go with Hardy. McCune hit a fast one over second base which Dee knocked down but could not field, Stewart scoring. Ring struck out Bushelman. On the third strike McCune tried to steal but Dee was waiting for him with the ball. Two runs.

In Lowell's more or less lucky 7th, Smith struck out. Ring looked over the first three balls and then went south by the strikeout route. Dee hit in front of the plate and McCune put him out. No runs.

Score: Lowell 3, Worcester 2.

Eighth Inning

Umpire Hardy did not attempt to stop the Worcester players from yelling from the bench. Carroll went out, Dee, to Kelly. Burke, Dee, and Stimpson all chased Shorten's foul fly but couldn't get it, the home team showing lots of life. Smith made the first error of the game when he booted Shorten's grounder. Shorten getting first. Strands flied out to Stimpson. Shorten stole second, Greenhalge making a poor throw. Mundy fanned out on three pitched balls. No runs.

For Lowell, DeGroff hit a high one along the first base foul line which Mundy ran out and got. Burke attempted to bunt and popped a fly to Bushelman. Stimpson walked. Bushelman, McCune and Burkett jointly kicked on the last ball. Hard luck! Stimpson went out trying to steal. No runs.

Score: Lowell 3, Worcester 2.

Ninth Inning

Roes went out Dee to Kelly.
Stewart struck out.
Cooney struck out.
Final score: Lowell, 3; Worcester 2.

BIG STEAMER SINKS 1030 PERSONS PERISH

MONTREAL, May 29.—G. W. S. Henderson of Montreal, who is among the Empress of Ireland survivors, telegraphed his firm this afternoon, giving the number of dead at 1030.

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 29.—More than a thousand lives, and surely not less than 700, were lost when the great Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Ireland sank before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river, ripped open from amidships to her stern by the Danish collier Storstad.

This was the estimate made here this afternoon where the hysterical survivors, many of them pitiably maimed and almost naked were being brought. It was based on the fact that the Empress carried 1437 persons all told, of whom 399 were rescued and landed here by the ships Eureka and Lady Evelyn. The Storstad, at first reported to have more than 300 survivors on board, had sailed for Quebec after landing only a handful of rescued and a number of dead.

Of those saved crew members and third class passengers predominated. From partial lists available at two o'clock it was evident that but a mere sprinkling of the first cabin passengers were saved. Only three names of those in the cabins appeared in the preliminary lists of rescued. They were G. W. Henderson and C. R. Burt, address unstated, and Walter Fenton of Manchester.

The stricken vessel sank as if she were lead. An explosion apparently originating in her engine room hastened the end.

It is believed the great hole in the ship's side admitted such a deluge of water that many must have been overcome in their beds.

The rescued, lighting their way to the lifeboats to the careening deck clinging desperately to the rails or leaping blindly overboard, broke their arms or legs or otherwise injured themselves so badly that 22 died after being picked up. Groaning, and in some cases practically insensible, others were landed here while the populace of the village gathered with medicines and stimulants to relieve their suffering. A special train was made up this afternoon on which many were taken to Quebec and Montreal.

Sank Within 14 Minutes

The president of the Canadian Pacific railway issued a statement this afternoon saying that the Empress had sunk within 14 minutes. No one on board had time to seize his belongings, much less to dress. Those found in the lifeboats were in their night clothes. The women suffered most. Only a few were saved, according to the early lists, and indications are that they lacked the strength to combat conditions which confronted them. There was not time, as was the case on the Titanic, for calm deliberation and observation of the unwritten sea rule, "Women first."

A party of salvation army members, en route to London was almost wiped out, Lawrance Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, is among the missing and other prominent persons in the first cabin were unaccounted for late this afternoon.

When the rescue ships Eureka and Lady Evelyn reached the scene shortly before daybreak they found ten lifeboats from the Empress all jammed full and many of the occupants wounded. It was still dark. Wreckage covered the river everywhere. The Storstad, her bow crumpled, was still on the scene picking up the living wherever she could. In one of the lifeboats crouched Capt. Kendall, commander of the Empress, dazed and greatly shak-

SMALL FIRE

A telephone alarm called part of the fire department to a grass fire on Parker street early this afternoon. On arriving they found a brisk blaze in progress but the chemicals used by the firemen quickly extinguished it. No damage was done.

THREE DROWNED

Steamer Wash Upsets Craft With Stalled Engine in East River

NEW YORK, May 29.—Three persons were drowned late yesterday when the 25-foot motor boat Adell, on her way down the East river from East Elmhurst, L. I., to Rockaway Beach, became stalled because of engine trouble and overturned as the wash from a passing steamer threw the craft against a snow near pilehead.

Those drowned were William R. Munro, a heating contractor, in business here; his wife, Emma, and Mrs. Walter Munro, his brother's wife, of Worcester. Eugene Schlieken of Brooklyn, owner of the motor boat, was rescued. The bodies of William Munro and his wife were recovered. Mrs. Walter Munro's body had not been found at a late hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Munro were visiting his brother at East Elmhurst, but Mr. Munro did not accompany the boating party yesterday, which was on its way to Rockaway beach for dinner.

DEATH FOLLOWS HAZING

CADET AT ST. JOHN'S MILITARY COLLEGE SHOT WHILE TRYING TO DISCIPLINE FRESHMEN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., May 29.—William R. Bowlus of Middletown, Md., a cadet at St. John's Military college here, died yesterday afternoon from a bullet wound which terminated a hazing melee at the college Monday. The five freshmen who were in the room from which the bullet came were ordered rearrested.

Cadets George H. Weaver of Auburn, N. Y., and Henry L. Valdez of Havana, Cuba, were locked up. The other three are out of town, but will be arrested as soon as they return to the college. They are Kendall Marbury, Baltimore; Reginald Jones of Cambridge, Md., and John W. Noble of Preston, Md.

Monday night several juniors went to a room where five freshmen had congregated, with the purpose, it is said, of correcting them for some alleged misdoings. Finding the door locked the juniors demanded admittance, which was refused by the freshmen.

The juniors then began kicking on the door and threatened to break it down. A shot was fired and Bowlus, who had hold of the door, was struck. The bullet, it is said, passed through the door panel.

The government body of the college last night began a sweeping investigation of all the circumstances of the affair, as well as the hazing system at the college.

Routine business was transacted and one application for membership was received and referred to the proper authority. The presentation speech was made by Grand Guide Fred E. Jones. After the business session whist was played by the members and ladies and the following were awarded suitable prizes: Ladies, Miss Lena Johnston, first; and Mrs. B. E. Cole, second; gents, B. E. Cole, first and A. H. Dana, second.

OILING THE LOCAL STREETS

AUTOMOBILE SPRINKLER WILL OUST HORSE DRAWN VEHICLE—NOW IN OPERATION

The oiling automobile of the American Car Sprinkler was put in operation in Lowell yesterday afternoon. The new arrival will do away with practically all of the horse drawn sprinkling carts. Yesterday afternoon about 2000 gallons of the oil were spread over several streets in the lower Belvidere district, the start being made in Stackpole street, and continuing through Alder street and Bartlett street. The sprinkler in the rear of the machine is nine feet in width, divided into two sections. The machine is capable of spreading 6000 gallons a day. One gallon of oil is supposed to cover four yards of roadway, and the cost to the city per yard is three cents, for oil and the use of the sprinkling apparatus. The cost is about the same as for water sprinkling, but the big difference is that one application of oil a year is sufficient. Commissioner Morse believes that the abutters will not object to paying for the oil in place of water. The sprinkler is in operation in Belvidere today.

Follow the crowd to A. O. H., tonight.

"We may forget the singer, but the song will never die."

And by the same token, long after "Joe" Smith shall have passed out of the shadow of earthly "Truth" into the light of the eternal, his famous remark, to wit: "Some laws are more respected in the breach than in the observance," shall continue to echo down the corridors of time, proving their truth as they echo along.

What are some of these laws?

For instance there's section 27 of the city charter entitled: "Publicity for Contracts." Section 27 reads in part as follows:

"Neither the municipal council nor the school committee shall make or pass any order, resolution or vote appropriating money in excess of $500, or making or authorizing the making of any contract involving the liability on the part of the city in excess of $500, unless the same is proposed in writing and notice is given before its passage, except an order, resolution or vote for the immediate preservation of public peace, health or safety which contains a statement of its urgency and is passed by a four-fifths vote, etc."

Then there is section 36, entitled: "Criminal Offence to Participate in Contracts," which reads in part as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for a member of the municipal council, or school committee, or for any officer or employe of the city, directly or indirectly to make a contract with the city, or to receive any commission, discount, bonus, gift, contribution or reward from, or any share in the profits of any person or corporation making or performing such a contract."

Charlie's Automobile

Commissioner Charlie Morse, who heretofore like Richard of old, would have given his kingdom for a fairly good horse, now wants an auto and wants it P. D. Q.; for this week he introduced an order with the emergency clause attached calling for $1500 for an automobile. He got the necessary four-fifths vote and Friday finds the auto practically purchased, for on Thursday Purchasing Agent Foye stated that he was going to purchase a Jeffrey machine without the formality of advertising for bids. The Jeffrey costs $1500, and is perhaps the only car that can be bought for that exact amount, which would indicate that Charlie had the Jeffrey in mind when he introduced his hurry order.

Therefore it would appear that the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety demands the purchase forthwith of a Jeffrey automobile for the commissioner of streets and the question arises, if the public peace, health or safety is in such a precarious condition, what will become of it while the commissioner is learning to operate the new machine? He can't get a chauffeur's license until he can show the agent of the state highway commission that he can run it, and the agent will not be here until next Friday at the earliest. But that reminds me, that all things turn out for the best. Early in the year Commissioner Morse was going to "can" Supt. Putnam as a needless ornament of the department. Through the influence largely, of a local clergyman he was not "canned." How fortunate after all, for Nowell can run the new automobile as soon as it becomes city property and the public peace, health or safety of the city will not be jeopardized. One of the main objects of the committee of 60 in framing the present charter was to have publicity and competition in all city contracts and some of the opponents of the charter used as an argument against it the claim that this proposition was a move to give the newspapers a lot of advertising. Business men hailed the new charter with delight for they believed that they would be given an opportunity to bid on all purchases of substantial amount. But as Joe Smith remarked—

Do you recall the awful fuss that was made whenever an automobile was purchased for the city during the past administration. If anything like the above had been put over by the O'Donnell regime the Courier-Citizen and the present mayor's official organ would froth at the mouth until it would be necessary to send for Dr. Pasteur.

Vocational School Insurance

One of the first matters called to the attention of Former Mayor O'Donnell by former chairman of the school board, John J. Farrington, when the mayor entered upon his executive duties, was the fact that there were valuable machinery and other equipment in the vocational school on which there was no insurance. Mayor O'Donnell stated at the time that if the manufacturing concerns were generous enough to provide the city with valuable machinery without cost, the city should at least show its appreciation by having such property insured and he immediately placed insurance on the equipment of the old Bartlett, old Moody and the Morrill schools, increasing it as additional equipment was installed. The former mayor also had insurance placed on the valuable Gamewell system in the police station for the first time in the history of the city. Today Mayor Murphy and the school board are wrangling over placing insurance on other valuable equipment of the vocational school, the premium for which will cost the city, for the remainder of the year, the alarming sum of $24. As the vocational school grows it will need more machinery and as new inventions in that line come into vogue the school to be up to the times will also need them. The city will not be obliged to purchase these as long as the manufacturers are willing to loan or contribute them. But if the city is not going to protect its gifts and loans after getting them, it cannot expect the manufacturers to "come across" in the future. This is certainly an economical administration.

City Hall Time Clocks

There has been a feeling of deepest unrest at city hall since it was published in the papers on Wednesday, that City Solicitor Parker of Boston had recommended to Mayor Curley that time clocks be installed at city hall as one means of increasing the efficiency and reducing the expense of his department. On several occasions in the short time that he has been chief executive, Mayor Murphy has seemed to be impressed with the idea that anything trademarked Boston should go in Lowell. He took his trial board idea from the Boston police department. Later upon reading in the papers that Mayor Curley had saved money by buying the city's coal in one lump, and unaware of the fact that the city of Lowell had been saving money in similar manner for years, His Honor sent word to the heads of departments to send in their estimates at once and got credit for something new until Purchasing Agent Foye had a word to say on the matter. And now that Mayor Curley has decided to adopt the time clock recommendation for Boston the clerks at the local municipal building are filled with fear lest His Honor continue his policy of following Boston ideas and establish these clocks in Lowell. Since Commissioner Brown handed them the tip recently, the tardy clerks have been making an entrance via the Moody street door which is remote from the mayor's office, but if the time clocks are installed the "stage" entrance will lose its popularity. Simultaneously with the adoption of the time clocks, local jewelers may look for a boom in the alarm clock business.

In a Predicament

Dear Sir—

The mayor and chief of police have caused to be published their exchange of communications on the attendance of police officers at fires; calling attention to the fact that it is their duty to attend at second or general alarms, reprimanding those who neglected to attend a recent fire and telling them that they would let them off this time, but assuring them that if it happened again, they would be punished by suspension.

Now it has happened again, and as they are aware who the offenders are, they will be a little might embarrassed, because the men who failed to appear at the Woolworth fire are not the men they are anxious to punish, and it will be interesting to watch what those purifiers will do. They are surely in an awkward predicament.

Yours truly,
Sun Reader."

The above was written by a well known citizen and tax-payer and not by any member of the police department.

The Power of Example

Great is the power of example. When the two alarms of fire were rung in late Saturday night, Col. Carmichael came all the way down town from his home in Rolfe street, and without rubber boots saw a good job done on the Woolworth fire. Mayor Murphy was also present on this occasion, but this time out of deference to the colonel as head of the fire department he appeared without the insignia of office, the firemen's coat and rubber boots. If there is any money available I would suggest that an appropriation be made to supply rubber boots and fire coats for use by the members of the municipal council in case of big fires. In the event of an absence of money perhaps some public spirited citizen will start a subscription to defray the expense. Solomon Robilschek, who generally starts all such good movements with the contribution of one dollar, may come across.

Former Mayor O'Donnell was at a public gathering one night during his administration and in the progress of the exercises, a well known physician rushed up to him with countenance ablaze with excitement, and exclaimed: "Mr. Mayor, two alarms of fire have just rung in for a fire at Brooks." What are you going to do?"

"Telephone up to the fire chief and tell him I said to put it out," responded the former mayor.

Deputy Sheriffs Busy

"To what base uses we may yet return, Horatio."

Deputy Sheriff Martin Courtney of this city assisted in a raid upon the celebrated Pinehurst club at North Reading, recently.

Happily, however, Martin was looking for liquor and not for tango dancers and thus he will be spared the exertion of giving an exhibition in court a la Clark and Swanwick. But wouldn't it be a spectacle for the gods to see Martin tangoing!

Our able and energetic district attorney, Mr. Corcoran somewhere must have heard the slogan, "Equal rights for all; special privileges to none, for he has been raising some ructions through the county by means of his deputy sheriffs. The coming of the district attorney, the grand jury and the county commissioners to Lowell simultaneously on Monday was nothing unusual but after they had gone away the following story echoed through the corridors of the court house. An innkeeper in a small town, some miles from Lowell has been "doing a little business" without the formality of a liquor license with impunity, and apparently immunity, for some few years being a close friend of a high county official who it is said had assured him that everything would be all right and that if anything should happen he would be warned rather than molested. A short time ago a couple of innocent-looking gentlemen appeared at the inn and made a purchase and then informed the proprietor that they were deputy sheriffs and had come from the district attorney's office to investigate the place in search of violations of the law. The proprietor in great alarm, hot-footed to the telephone and called up his friend, the county official. The latter made haste to the inn and bade the deputy sheriffs chase themselves or words to that effect impressing upon them that he was some shucks in the beautiful county of Middlesex and that his friend was "right" and not to be molested. But the deputy-sheriffs were not to be chased and it is understood they made a complaint against the offending innkeeper. Then the county official went to the district attorney or his assistant, presumably at Lowell, last Monday, to demand an explanation; and he got it, right off the hat; and the court will do the rest. Times have changed in good old Middlesex since, by the contributory power of the Bull Moose, the democrats have gained the ascendancy in certain quarters.

Will He Resign?

While license commissioners, like another class of officials, seldom die and never resign, there is a report about town to the effect that License Commissioner Hanson may soon resign, possibly to give Commissioner Brown an opportunity to make good his promise to vote for a French-American candidate for the position; and therefore the French American "delivering" committee of 15, which, while it delivered the vote to Mayor Murphy last, fell failed to deliver Mr. Manseau from the embarrassment of an empty honor last week, should not be down-hearted as there is yet a chance. It would be well, however, for the committee to dig up some new candidates inasmuch as Messrs. Parthenais, Manseau and Goyette failed to impress even Commissioner Brown whose love for the French-American voter some time ago was unbounded. Rumor hath it that Ellie H. Laporte will be the lucky man to carry the banner but then there is his father, Damase H. Laporte, the "Mayor of Little Canada," to be considered. Speaking of "mayors," the Centralville social club would probably come forth with Edmund Traversy, the "Mayor of Centralville" as a likely candidate in the event of Mr. Hanson's resignation and then there is Henri Barry, the popular fami-

NEW $10,000,000 PLANT

UNITED STATES STEEL CORP. TO BUILD IN CANADA—IT SEEKS TO CONTROL PRODUCTS IN DOMINION

MONTREAL, May 29.—The United States Steel Corp. will erect a $10,000,000 plant in Canada at the earliest possible moment, was the statement made here yesterday by a representative of the United States Steel Corp.

The corporation has already laid aside a reserve fund amounting to $10,000,000, and it is only a question of where the plant will be located. The action by the company was only decided upon at a very recent date, and as a result of the recent tariff legislation passed at the present session of the Canadian parliament.

The plant to be erected will easily be the most costly and modern in every respect of any steel plant in Canada. The ambition of the corporation seems to be to gain the same control of steel products in Canada as they now have in the United States.

BOY OF 11 DROWNED

BOSTON, May 29.—James Morson, 11 years old, whose parents live at the rear of 188 Bennington street, East Boston, was drowned in a pond back of the Meade Morrison company's plant at Orleans and Prescott streets, East Boston, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Harry Perlmutter, 6 years old, of 326 Bremen street, East Boston, who also fell in, was rescued and revived after first aid remedies had been applied nearly an hour and a half. They slipped off rafts on which they had been paddling.

ALL CLOGGED UP? HERE'S QUICK RELIEF

A Simple Remedy to Correct Constipation Before it Becomes Chronic

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases. It is true, but the good effect is soon lost, and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants and yet it is so compounded and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact, among the greatest endorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mr. H. W. Fenstermaker, Smethport, Pa. He says he has had wonderful results from the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, that, in fact, he has never found a remedy so good, and he is glad to recommend it. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant-tasting, mild and non-griping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

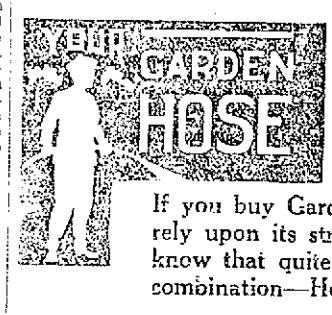
You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The three size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington st., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.



Keep the garden looking fresh and your lawn looking green.

LOWELL BILLS PENDING

Textile School Bill is Modified to Apply to One Year—Other Measures of Interest to Teachers

The committee on ways and means of the house of representatives to whom was referred the resolve to provide for the maintenance of the Lowell Textile school, report that the same ought to pass, but not as originally submitted.

The original proposition was $60,000 for a period of ten years, as filed by the textile school authorities and reported by the committee on education. The new draft as submitted by the ways and means committee reads as follows:

RESOLVE

To Provide for the Maintenance of the Lowell Textile School.

Resolved, That there be allowed and paid out of the treasury of the commonwealth, from the ordinary revenue, to the trustees of the Lowell textile school, the sum of forty-five thousand dollars, to be expended under the direction of the corporation for the maintenance of said school from July first, nineteen hundred and fourteen to June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and fifteen, and for additional equipment of said school the further sum of fifteen thousand dollars. The city of Lowell is hereby authorized and directed to raise by taxation and pay to said trustees such sum of money, not exceeding ten thousand dollars, as may be necessary to provide for evening instruction in said school for residents of Lowell.

Exclude School Superintendents

It was stated this morning that an attempt would be made to amend the act relative to the tenure of teachers and superintendents of public schools by eliminating the superintendents of schools referred to in section three, part two, as follows: "A superintendent employed to serve at the discretion of the school committee shall suffer no decrease in salary, without his consent, until at least one year after the school committee has voted to reduce the salary of the superintendent of schools."

Section two of the act provides that the school committee may dismiss any teacher or superintendent from employment by a two-thirds vote of the whole committee and the amendment, if passed, will make it one-half instead of two-thirds vote.

Non-Tidal Section of Merrimack

Under a legislative act, now pending a third reading in the house, provision is made for the care and supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river. This bill provides substantially that all supervision over the non-tidal section of the Merrimack river shall be vested in the state board of harbor and land commissioners. This board is empowered to make all necessary surveys, examinations, investigations and to perform such work as may be believed advisable for the protection of the river. Further power vested in the state board by this bill is for authority to grant wharf and pier locations.

Old Marriage Licenses

Any persons having old, unused marriage licenses about the house are in danger of being fined under a new law which goes into effect today.

Under the new law any clergyman who marries a couple whose marriage license was issued more than six months before the date of marriage, is liable to a fine.

The law also provides that holders of marriage licenses that have been issued for more than six months are liable also to a fine. Those who take out marriage licenses and do not use them must return the licenses to the place from which they were issued.

SOME KNOWN FACTS ABOUT RHEUMATISM

There are many things that are still unknown about rheumatism. The treatment of it is still far from satisfactory. Doctors realize this but nobody is more fully aware of it than the sufferers themselves.

A tendency to rheumatism once established, the pain often returns with every change of weather, showing that the poison is still in the blood awaiting favorable conditions to become active and cause trouble.

One fact is known and acknowledged by all medical writers and that is the rapid thinning of the blood when the rheumatic poison invades it. Building up the blood is the best remedy for rheumatism as the enriched blood is able to overcome or throw off the poisons of the disease. For this reason rheumatic sufferers should be interested in the success which Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have had in the treatment of this painful disease.

A book, "Building Up the Blood," will be sent free on request by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. It contains directions regarding diet, baths and hygiene for rheumatic patients.

tor of the C. M. A. C. who was "considered" for the position by "Former "Mayor" Brown, in 19-0-9, just before the latter appointed David Parthenais. While a recent comer from Nashua, Editor Louis A. Biron of L'Etoile might fit, and in the spirit of fairness the committee might also consider H. O. Girard of Le Supplement, Joseph Payette and Arthur Lavoie, president and secretary of the "delivering" committee might take the place if some one would suggest their names. Then there are E. S. Desmarais, Charles Bourret and Joe Harvey, all possessing the rare qualifications of being plumbers and there's Frank Ricard, who withdrew his candidacy for commissioner, sacrificing his own ambition in the interest of Dr. Mignault. There's plenty of good timber from which the committee may make a selection despite the fact that they may have to go some to reach the high standard of qualification set forth by Mr. Drapeau in his endorsement of Tommy Goyette.

Now, they tell me that Commissioner Brown has found a way to get back into the good graces of the French-American voters by getting a club license for the Club Citoyens-Americains through his friend, Commissioner Hanson.

Another Term For Mayor Murphy

When Mayor Murphy's admirers are not talking him up for congress they are suggesting that he run for a second term, and it is proposed by some of them to circulate papers at the proper time for a popular request that he run again. These papers, it is said, will be circulated right and every voter will be called upon to sign his own name. Private Secretary Cull is an ardent supporter of the second term proposition despite the mayor's modesty regarding his own tenure of office. The secretary is in a position to know the amount of work and study that the office of mayor necessitates and undoubtedly believes that with the experience of two years behind him, His Honor will be of even greater value to the citizens and taxpayers than he is at present, if retained in office for two years more. The secretary also, profiting by his own experience of two years, can give greater service if retained for another term. Of course there are many who do not understand and who will resent such a proposition, saying that if it was wrong for the former mayor to have two terms it is equally wrong to give the present mayor more than one. But it is only after a man gets into office that he can appreciate the value and importance of settled conditions. A man running for office on a one term platform may have the best intentions in the world for he doesn't know any better. After he has been in office for a while and thoroughly understands the position he holds, he begins to see that the one term policy is a grievous mistake and feels that in justice to the people he represents he must confess his mistake and in the interest of all continue in office as long as possible. By circulating papers asking him to try again, his friends relieve him of any embarrassment as the result of his mistake. The public should not be harsh toward an officeholder who, through inexperience, makes a mistake as to the value of continuity in office. Take the case of Commissioner Hanson. After six years' experience he came to the conclusion that the city's interests would be best conserved by his retention in office rather than by the upsetting of conditions which would result from the election of an inexperienced man. The public owes Mr. Hanson a debt of gratitude for consenting to serve for another long period. Of course he had six years in which to think the matter over while His Honor has only two, but then some men, especially lawyers with trained minds, think more quickly than others.

Grand Jury at City Hall

The grand jury visited city hall last Monday and thus far none has been able to figure out what the purpose of its visit might have been. Some aver that it went there to see if the building had been left by the past administration; others thought perhaps it wanted to get a peek at that paint bill in the commissioner of streets' office; some suspected that the purpose of its trip was to see if Jim Dunfey got in on time in the morning, while still others are of the opinion that it wanted to get a line on the appearance of the purchasing agent's horse. Whatever its purpose might have been, it was present. One of the jurors got quite talkative with a reporter until he discovered the latter's identity and intimated that the jury was out to "get" someone. That's the rub. The attention of the grand jury originally was called to the alleged violation of the charter by the commissioner of streets but since then and up to the present certain influences at city hall and elsewhere have been exerting themselves to have all of last year's government indicted, though it is not probable that they had any particular desire to "get" Commissioner Donnelly. Former District Attorney Higgins "ducked" the issue. A little incident that occurred during the visit of the probers to the municipal building that undoubtedly had no particular significance but which caused much comment among the excited habitues of the hall happened shortly after District Attorney Corcoran and his party entered. Commissioner Brown upon recognizing the district attorney approached him and proffered his hand. At the same moment City Solicitor Hennessy, who is an old friend of the district attorney, stuck out his hand. The district attorney accepted Sir Joseph's hand, turning his back to the commissioner, as it were, and immediately the tongues began to wag.

Candidates for Commissioner

With the thermometer at 88 in the shade, as it was when this was written, one feels compelled to offer an apology for talking about a campaign that doesn't materialize until next fall but as already there are two fledged candidates in the field and several "prospects," I must say something lest someone gets the opinion that I hadn't heard the news. Ex-Representative Marchand is a candidate for the municipal council and he doesn't care who knows it. John J. Dalton, the well known singer, has succumbed to the importunities of his friends and has allowed the use of his name as a candidate. If someone should ask Perry Thompson to run there is little doubt that he would be unkind enough to refuse. There may be something behind Mr. Marchand's early announcement. For some time Representative Henri Achin has shown a preference for a public office that doesn't entail so much car riding. Henri is perfectly willing to give his services to his country, state, or city, but if the public has no objection he would rather apply them locally having been running back and forth to Boston for a few years. With several French candidates in the field that overworked "delivering" committee of 15 will have to get busy again and select the right ones to be the candidates. Ex-Representative Marchand appreciates the fact that the early bird gathereth the worm, and hence his flat-footed candidacy, while Representative Marchand is still awaiting the psychological moment. Commissioner Brown will be a candidate again and already has been looking to his fences. Commissioner Donnelly has not stated whether or not he will be a candidate, most likely he will be. His candidacy, however, will have no effect on that of Mr. Dalton, who, his close friends state, will be a candidate in any event. The voters who supported Mayor Murphy on the one term proposition still adhere to their policy of last fall, things will not look bright for Commissioners Donnelly and Brown, who have served one term of one year and one of two years, but there is a strong element of the Durham mascot in that one term talk.

Hickey on Deck

An unduly alarmed citizen has written The Sun to complain that Mayor Murphy has appointed a relative to succeed Supt. Thomas Connors, at the city woodyard. If he has, the relative is working for his health for his name does not appear on the city payroll. At the present time Mr. Hickey, the hard working assistant to the former superintendent, appears to be sawing wood and saying nothing, all by his lonesome, as it were, though he is thinking deeply that it would be only fair and in accordance with the rule of all big corporations that he be promoted to the superintendent's position and have the mayor's relative or whoever may enter the department take the subordinate position, despite the fact that a departure from this rule was made in the selection of a sealer of weights and measures. The objection to a man's employment because he is the relative of the mayor or any other commissioner doesn't seem entirely fair. In this particular case the fact that the alleged appointee is a relative of the mayor doesn't impair his ability to saw and split wood and drive a horse. John D. Rockefeller's son probably could chop wood when not teaching Sunday school if circumstances ever made it necessary for him to do so.

Committee on Claims

It has been announced that the municipal council has voted money with which to liquidate certain claims against the city, recommended by itself, acting as a committee on claims. Among the claims awarded are John J. Mahoney, $150, and Friend Bros. $100, the latter amount in two awards, one being charged against the water department. Mahoney lost an eye, while Friend Bros. lost a plate glass window. The award of $100 for a plate glass window is undoubtedly a fair one for plate glass costs a lot of money and Friend Bros. are entitled to whatever the loss sustained might be and they are far too big and too honorable a concern to attempt to put anything over on the city. But if a plate glass window is worth $100, it would seem that a human eye should be worth considerably more, even if the city is hard pressed for money.

All Up for Shedd Park

The friends of Shedd park are as tickled over the election of Tom McKay to the park commission as are the friends of Ireland over the passage of the home rule bill, for Mr. McKay resides across the street from Shedd park and it is expected he will start something at once in the interest of the development of the Oaklands breathing spot. Tom Beane, the "defeated candidate," was the most surprised man in Lowell when he read of his candidacy in The Sun. It seems that John Greene, of oil and otto fame, who is a staunch admirer of Mr. Beane, planned a little surprise for Tom, intending to have him elected without his knowledge. He visited a majority of the members of the municipal council and informed them of Tom's candidacy, and, as was seen by the papers a day or two ago, they did the rest.

THE SPELLBINDER.

An English Miller

—a hundred years ago—thought he would gain trade and a name if he could give people WHITE BREAD instead of dark, the only kind anybody had ever known before that.

So he removed the bran from flour! This made the flour white and pretty, and people look to WHITE BREAD.

But what really happened when the miller threw out the bran-coat? The flour was robbed of practically all the MINERAL SALTS of the grain—the particular elements of most vital need for preserving normal balance of nerve and brain.

Scientists now know that this lack in white flour and products made from it is responsible to a great degree for a host of present day ills, such as nervous prostration, constipation, kidney trouble, brain fag, and so on.

Grape-Nuts

made from prime whole wheat and barley, retains ALL the mineral salts just as Nature grows them in the grains, together with ALL the nutriment of these rich food cereals. Grape-Nuts is a perfect food, long baked, easy of digestion, appetizing, and builds sturdy bodies, keen brains and steady nerves.

Comes ready to eat from the package, fresh and crisp.

A ration of Grape-Nuts with other food supplies perfectly what is lacking in white flour products.

"The souls we loved are still alive,
The names we loved are Freedom's boast;
O clasp these glorious truths, and strive
To realize what Freedom cost."

Tomorrow when you stand by and see the grizzled veterans of the Civil war moving along in parade you will find that their division of the whole pageant is the smallest numerically for as the years have gone by their ranks have fast grown thinner and only a few now remain. In order to give an idea of the truth of this statement I am republishing the roster of the Memorial day parade of quarter of a century ago. Some of the men whose names appear as present on that occasion you will see in line tomorrow, notable among them being Capt. Geo. E. Worthen, superintendent of state aid, who will never grow old, but the majority have spread their silent tents on Fame's eternal camping ground.

A New Back for an Old One—How a Lowell Resident Made a Bad Back Strong

The back aches at times with a dull indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame that to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back if the kidneys are weak. You cannot reach the cause. Follow the example of this Lowell citizen.

Mrs. Ellen Burke, 132 Shaw street, Lowell, says: "My back used to bother me constantly. I suffered from sharp pains through my loins and I was also subject to dizzy spells. I had rheumatic twinges in my right shoulder and my limbs used to be crippled up. The kidney secretions were annoying. I finally got a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. I was relieved in a few days, and four boxes cured me."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Burke had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Building enterprises are starting up here in good shape at the present writing, particularly on houses and alterations. The builders feel that there will be a boom within a short time, for it is said that a large number of depositors at the Traders National bank had planned to erect new homes this summer, but investing as their money was tied up at the bank they had delayed their plans. It is felt now that over a million dollars is being put into circulation with the paying off at the bank that business will take a great leap.

The real estate dealers are also expecting a boost in their business. One man told the writer that he had a number of sales almost closed when the news of the closing of the Traders bank reached his clients and that most of them were depositors at the said bank and accordingly the sales were not made. He hopes now that the parties will finish the business they started before the closing of the bank.

Building Operations

Demetrios G. and Vasilios Karelas have started work on removing their building located in the rear of 147 Market street. The building will be moved back about 14 feet on the same lot. A new foundation will be built and the lot formerly occupied by the building will be leveled off and beautified for the present, probably at a later date the owners will erect a modern building.

The barn of Mrs. Maude A. Hosford at 655 Westford street is being remodeled into an addition to the dwelling house adjoining. Two sleeping rooms and a bath room will be installed therein and the roof will be raised.

Work has been started on alterations in the Unitarian church building at 55 Merrimack street. The front of the store now occupied by the Alpha Shoe store will be remodeled and the basement changed over. The windows will be narrowed and the interior of the place will be refinished.

A gang of men are now busy doing general repairs at the old Belvidere woolen mill on Howe street. The place is now owned by John A. Simpson. The alterations will consist of joining together the two buildings under one roof, raise the brick mill and construct a new cement floor in the basement. Three chimneys will keep Mr. Simpson's men busy for some time.

Alfred T. Caron has started work on the erection of a dwelling house at 850 Middlesex street. The new house will contain seven rooms with pantry and bath and will be 24 by 34 and will be equipped with a steam heating system. This is the first of five houses which he is to build there.

An addition to the lumber storage shed of the Davis & Sargent Lumber Co. in the rear of 647 Middlesex street is being made and several men are busy on the job. The addition will be of wood construction and will be 25 by 75 feet.

The same company is also building another addition to its lumber storage shed in the rear of 625 Middlesex street. This addition will also be of wood and will be 8 by 60 feet.

James H. Trevors is building a piazza, 7 by 12 feet, to his building at 59 White street.

As announced exclusively in The Sun's building news a few weeks ago, Daniel Sakelarios, the young man who purchased several dwelling houses in the vicinity of Market and Dummer streets, is making extensive changes to his property. At that time it was announced in The Sun that Mr. Sakelarios would demolish the brick structure at the corner of Worthen and Market streets and erect in its stead a modern tenement house with stores. This week he called at the office of the superintendent of public buildings and took out a permit for this work, and operations will be rushed along. As soon as the new building is finished, Mr. Sakelarios will tear down the other old buildings and start work on modern dwelling houses.

Andre Belanger has taken a five-year lease on the property located at the corner of Merrimack and Decatur streets, owned by Ephrem Pelletier, and in a few days he will start work on remodelling the place. Mr. Belanger will build a store extending to the sidewalk, and it is possible that he will do considerable work in the interior of the building, which is now being used as a lodging house.

Avila Sawyer has signed the final papers for the purchase of the Hall property in Moody street near the corner of Spalding street. The property consists of a two-tenement house, a stable and a large tract of land. In the fall Mr. Sawyer will probably change over the two-tenement house into a three-tenement building and also build a six-tenement house on the spare land.

Pierre Gregoire of this city, who for many years has conducted with his wife a large millinery store in Merrimack street, has started the building of a number of summer cottages at Mountain Rock, and before the summer is over Mr. Gregoire intends to have a half dozen or more finely finished houses in that district. One of the cottages is completed and is a beauty. It contains four rooms and the interior finish is of hardwood. The other cottages will be four, five and six-room buildings. There is a great demand for summer homes in that district and if Mr. Gregoire finds it a profitable investment it is probable he will erect several more next year for he is the owner of a very large tract of land in that vicinity.

PRIEST VERY ILL

Rev. Fr. Donahoe of St. Peter's at Hospital in Boston

The people of St. Peter's parish and indeed many others in all parts of the city will regret to learn that Rev. Charles A. Donahoe, the able, energetic and popular young priest who succeeded Rev. Fr. Burns recently as head of the Holy Name society is dangerously ill at the Carney hospital with a serious brain trouble. Rev. Fr. Donahoe was stricken last Tuesday at his home in Cambridge and was taken from there immediately to the Carney hospital where he lies in a precarious condition. Reports from Dr. Thomas J. Leen, who is attending him, were not optimistic this morning, and though all who knew the magnetic clergyman are hoping for the best, the outlook is not reassuring. This morning at the early mass, Rev. Dr. Kelliher, the pastor of St. Peter's asked the prayers of the congregation for Fr. Donahoe's speedy recovery or happy death.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. William Everett Adams of Chelmsford and Miss Ethel Helena Scoble took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Scoble, in Chelmsford last evening. The occasion also marked the anniversary of the birth of the bride, and the wedding was largely attended by relatives and friends of the happy couple. The clergyman was Rev. E. A. Robinson, who was assisted by Rev. L. L. Greene. The ushers were David E. Scoble and Adelbert E. Adams, brothers of the bride and bridegroom, respectively. The couple will spend their honeymoon in the middle west and upon their return on Oct. 1 will make their home in Chelmsford.

20 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

We are not only storekeepers, but growers, having the largest area of glass and nursery devoted to the growth of everything worth growing that there is in New England. I feel that if anyone can give satisfaction I am prepared to do so, and I only refer to the many thousands of customers of the past to verify my statement.

I have a splendid stock this year, as usual, in my houses, and I would like to have you investigate.

Didn't Break Its Neck

The old Sun has the following on underground wires:

"At a meeting of the directors of the New England Telegraph and Telephone company Wednesday a sum sufficient to construct the underground system in Lowell was set apart for that purpose. The management say that they will soon commence construction, and Lowell aerial telephone wires inside the central district will soon be a thing of the past. It is not probable that the company will break its neck hurrying the wires underground."

The Sun, as ever, was right. The telephone company didn't break its neck and ere the wires got underground the overworked editor of The Sun had ground out editorials in volumes on the danger of the overhead wires while it had become the popular custom when a fire started from an origin that wasn't certain to attribute it to electric wires. But the wires in the down town district finally went under where they at present repose.

Dr. Reilly's Benefit

Lowell has never been at a loss for good singers, male or female, and a quarter of a century ago the late Dr. William B. Reilly, a tenor who made his mark in grand opera was at the height of his popularity, in this city. The old Sun gives us the following account of a benefit performance in honor of the doctor which was presented by local talent:

"At Huntington hall, Wednesday evening, Dr. William B. Reilly, Lowell's best tenor, was given a complimentary benefit. A comfortably well-filled house listened to the music of the opera, 'Billie Taylor,' and gave expression to its appreciation of the performance by frequent outbursts of applause. Dr. James Reilly of Boston held the baton over the orchestra and he succeeded in making the chorus, soloists and musicians work in perfect harmony, an unusual happening at amateur performances. The singing was remarkably correct and the acting was all that could be expected. Miss Mary E. Brady, the 'Phoebe' of the opera, was careful in her acting and sang the difficult music with great spirit. Miss Katie L. Gallagher's 'Arabella' was well done in every particular. Miss Sarah T. McCaffery made a comely and sweet voiced 'Susan.' Dr. Reilly as 'Billie Taylor' was perfect. Michael J. O'Connell as 'Captain Frapper' showed off to the best possible advantage. Jos. G. Duffy drew considerable melody and got a little fun out of the character of 'Christopher Crab.' Frank J. Doherty as 'Ben Barnacle' and Thomas A. McCaffery as 'Eliza' did the comedy business in fine form and sang their solos smoothly. Zeph R. Pinault as 'Sir Mincing Lane' was well up with the other actors. The chorus was strong and positive and the performance as a whole was very good, and reflects credit on every person connected with it."

Mary E. Brady of 25 years ago is now Mrs. Peter Kelly of Los Angeles, Cal., where her husband who in those days was a clerk for J. L. Chalifoux, is now a leading merchant. No Lowell persons who visit the City of Angels should miss looking up Mr. and Mrs. Kelly, for the many who already have been their guests give glowing accounts of their hospitality and the latch-string is always out for anyone from the Spindle City. Miss Katie L. Gallagher is now Mrs. Israel B. Sternberg, wife of the inimitable "Ikey," formerly of the Lowell News, and president, vice president and secretary of the famous "Shut club" of days gone by. He would also have been the treasurer, but the club was so constituted that it didn't need one, its motto being "ways without means." Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg from the day of their marriage have been one of the happiest, merriest and most hospitable couples ever joined in matrimony. Together they share each other's joys and sorrows, but not their avoirdupois, for "Stern" is "hog-fat" at 115, while Mrs. Sternberg is—well, buxom. Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg are now residents of Revere, Mass., where "Stern" holds down a responsible position with the Suburban Heat, Light and Power Co. They are frequent visitors to Lowell. Columns might be written about the annals of the "Shut club," but it was not only a limited corporation, but also a secret society. Joe Duffy is a well-known printer, now of Boston, who formerly was employed on the old News and who lived in Tewksbury and subsequently in the Oaklands, while Zeph. Pinault, who before entering into business for himself at the corner of Central and Middle streets, was employed at Talbot's. He is now in business in New Bedford.

The Musical McCafferys

If you should ever meet anyone named McCaffery hailing from Belvidere, make a bet that he or she can sing and nine times out of ten you'll win. Miss Sarah McCaffery who 25 years ago made a very youthful "Susan" is now Mrs. Terrence F. Cox and is frequently heard in solos at the Immaculate Conception church. "Tom" McCaffery is her brother and "Tom" is right there with the voice as yet, though he is now a resident of the state of New Jersey, having been here on a visit only a short time ago. Tom and Mrs. Cox are cousins of the late Margaret McCaffery who was one of Lowell's leading singers up to the time of her death and also cousins of Dan McCaffery, who after leaving Lowell sang himself into popularity in Lawrence, where he now holds down the job of city store-keeper. Whenever Commissioner Paul Hannegan of the down-river city gets down-hearted he sends for Dan to sing to him and his troubles immediately vanish. Dan in his younger days was with the Boston Opera company and played a prominent part in the original production of the Irish opera, "Shamus O'Brien." It is seldom that one runs across a first-class quartet made up of sisters and brothers, but the McCaffreys of Lowell had such an organization and it had the goods. The members were Miss Margaret McCaffery, soprano; Miss Katie McCaffery, contralto; Mr. Dan McCaffery, tenor and Mr. John McCaffery, baritone.

The Clerk Gets His

The Sun of a quarter of a century ago had the following little story:

"In the early days of Gen. Benj. F. Butler's practice, he was required to give some legal notice in a suit in which he was engaged. The judge asked him to name the newspaper in which he desired to have the advertisement inserted. Butler was at that time an ardent northern democrat, and the Lowell Advertiser, a journal entirely ignored by most of the community, was the only organ of his party in the judicial district.

"In what paper?" asked the clerk, contemptuously, when told to insert the notice in the Advertiser. "I don't know such a paper."

"May it please your honor," Butler replied, "I trust the clerk will not interfere with the proceedings by attempting to tell us what he doesn't know, because if he does, we might as well adjourn until after the day of judgment."

A Butler Story

Speaking of Gen. Butler brings to my mind the time when he defended Mr. John H. Harrington, the proprietor of The Sun, in the famous Morrison libel suit. I have heard Mr. Harrington tell the story several times, but this is the first time it has been printed. It shows us one phase of Butler's character and his adroitness as a lawyer, as well as his well known admiration for a little dash of fighting blood in any man, be he client, friend or adversary. This story, I have no doubt, would have been printed before but for Mr. Harrington's well known aversion to printing anything about himself in his own paper, and perhaps when he sees this in print I may lose my job, but I will take the chance, for the story is really too good to keep.

It seems that the late John Henry Morrison, a prominent and successful lawyer, who was very sensitive to criticism, took exception to something that appeared in The Sun, and immediately brought suit against the proprietor of the paper, placing the damnum at the enormous sum of $100,000. This was the first serious libel suit brought against Mr. Harrington, and he proceeded without delay to secure the services of

Gen. Benjamin F. Butler, who at that time was unquestionably the most conspicuous and brilliant member of the Massachusetts bar.

Sheriff Henry G. Cushing was then in office and served the writ through one of his deputies, placing a keeper in charge of The Sun plant with instructions to let nothing out of the premises. The law, which has since been amended, did not in those days afford a publisher fifteen days in which to file bonds, and Mr. Morrison purposely made the attachment on a Friday with the obvious intention of preventing The Sun from being issued and distributed on the following day, which was its regular publication day, the Sun being then a weekly.

Realizing the seriousness of the situation, Mr. Harrington felt that he would make no mistake in meeting this crafty move by employing Gen. Butler, who had more tricks up his sleeve than all the sheriffs and lawyers in this section of the country. The general was at home when Mr. Harrington called and, as was his custom, he began chewing the end of an unlighted cigar while Mr. Harrington told the particulars of the case. He would take the cigar out of his mouth every little while to ask a question, and then shake his head, close his eyes and begin chewing vigorously on the diminishing cigar. When he got the entire matter fixed in his mind, he turned to Mr. Harrington and said: "That article is not libellous, if it is true. You say it is true, but the burden is upon you to prove that it is true. Can you prove it?"

"I can," said John H.

"But you know it costs money to go into court and prove anything," said Ben. "Now, what do you want me to do? Will I fix this thing up and make the best settlement possible, or will I go ahead and fight it?"

Of course everyone knew that Butler's fees were enormous. It was not a question of dollars but thousands of dollars to retain the services of Ben Butler at that time. Mr. Harrington knew this and knew that he probably would have a handsome bill to pay before Ben Butler would be through with the case, but, nevertheless, he turned to Butler and said: "General, I know that I never libelled Mr. Morrison. I printed only the truth about that case, and I did it for a good purpose. He is taking me at an unfair advantage and trying to stop the publication of my paper from pure spite, and Sheriff Cushing is helping him because he is sore over The Sun's exposure of county ring methods and its opposition to his re-election. I don't want you to settle the case, general. I

and I want you to fight it to the limit, and what is more, I want you to fight Cushing and Morrison to a standstill; and when you get the last drop of blood in both of their bodies, send me your bill and I will pay it, if I can."

Mr. Harrington in his excitement gave the arm of the general's chair a whack with his fist as he finished and the general, pulling the cigar from his mouth, lifted his heels and stamped them on the floor and shouted: "Good for you, my boy, good for you. If you will only fight them like that, they will soon let you alone. Now I will take that case with a great deal of pleasure, and if I don't make Morrison and Cushing eat a peck of dirt before this case is over you may conclude that Ben Butler has lost his cunning."

He shook hands with Mr. Harrington and said he would send junior counsel to take care of preliminary matters next morning, but he would be at his house any time the following day if needed.

That evening Charles Howe, Esq., was selected as junior counsel and he made several offers to provide a satisfactory bond to dissolve the attachment, but Morrison would not listen to it. He was determined to stop one issue of the paper at any cost, and Cushing stood by him like a brother.

The next day the press started about noon on the edition and the keeper tried to stop it and in doing so nearly lost his life. He finally made up his mind to allow the workmen to print the papers, provided they didn't remove any of them from the premises, and there he sat until the entire edition was printed and ready for the carriers.

Meanwhile The Sun was overdue on the streets and Morrison was chuckling and telling his friends that there would be no Sun that day.

Mr. Harrington, seeing that the situation was desperate, drove to Butler's house and told him of his dilemma.

"Well," said Ben, "you have, as I understand it, a composing room on one side of the building and your press-room is on the other side. Dividing these two rooms is a public corridor which all the tenants of the building use." The building in question was the old Card Co. building in Shattuck street and the corridor was neutral ground between the two departments, and practically the same as if it were out-of-doors.

"Now," said the general, with a cunning twinkle in his eye, "don't you think you could induce that keeper to stop into the corridor for a moment and if he does, don't you think you have a man strong enough to lock the press-room door and hold it there until you get the edition out of the window?"

"I think I can do it," said Mr. Harrington.

"Be sure you don't lay hands upon the officer of the law, for then you would be liable for a criminal assault; but if he goes out voluntarily," said the general, with another sly wink, "he will have to make another attachment in order to get in again."

"I understand you thoroughly," said John H., as he jumped into the buggy and was driven to The Sun press-room on Shattuck street at breakneck speed.

Rushing through the corridor and opening the door of the press-room, Mr. Harrington shouted in a loud voice to the keeper: "Are you going to allow people to steal my type in the other room? Are you not responsible for the safety of my property in the composing room as well as in the press-room?"

With a look of terror on his face, the keeper left the press-room and rushed across the corridor into the composing room to catch the imaginary thieves.

Quick as a flash John H. jumped through the press-room door and locked it, putting two sturdy men up against it with instructions to "hold the fort."

When the keeper found he was fooled he returned and knocked at the door, commanding that he be admitted, in the name of the law, but he was politely requested by the pressmen on the inside to go to a place where newspapers cannot be printed on account of the heat.

Meanwhile the edition of The Sun was being sent down the back stairs and through the window, over the passageway, where the newsboys received their papers and started through the city to deliver them about an hour behind time.

The first boy was instructed to present a copy to Mr. Morrison and another one to Sheriff Cushing, with Mr. Harrington's compliments, and when they received the papers they were in hot consultation with the humiliated keeper, whose hair was standing up with excitement over the tongue-lashing which Morrison and Cushing were giving him for his asinine stupidity.

A return trip in the carriage to Butler's house resulted in

in which the general joined, and laughed louder than anyone present. The Sun was out and it was an easy task to adjust the matter of bonds the following week.

Butler then prepared to start proceedings against Sheriff Cushing and his bondsmen, declaring he would hold them responsible for all loss or damage sustained through the unwarranted proceedings of the previous Saturday, and he vowed he would have Morrison up for disbarment before he got through with the case.

Butler maintained from the first that the article was not libellous, if the facts were as represented by The Sun and he furthermore insisted that he would have no difficulty in disproving any presumption of malice against the proprietor of the paper. The only mal-

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT

During a long debate in the legislature last Wednesday it was said that recently at Albany Governor Glynn of New York declared the workmen's compensation act of Massachusetts to be the best in the country. This is a high tribute coming from such a source, especially when it is considered that the workmen's compensation act of this state is scarcely out of the experimental stage. The debate in the legislature followed the introduction of a bill which provided that an employer of labor might file a bond with the industrial accident board to meet any of his obligations under the workmen's compensation act, without doing business through an insurance company. The bill would mean a great advantage to employers of labor, but evidently the legislators considered that it would be a dangerous innovation, for after detailed and intelligent discussion it was rejected. At first sight it is not apparent that the bill would interfere with the rights of either employers or employed, yet its rejection at the present time was wise for the tendency to amend laws and to supplement them with new provisions before the old have been fully tested, is hardly commendable, though the Massachusetts legislature frequently errs in this direction.

In one form or another compensation acts either have been or are being adopted by all progressive states. The Eccles mine disaster has been the means of drawing national attention to the workingmen's compensation act adopted by West Virginia a little over a year ago and put into effect last October. Under this act the state will pay $2200 a month during the coming year to those made widows and orphans by the Eccles mine tragedy. Each widow will receive $20 per month and each child under fifteen will receive $5 a month. The state has also borne the cost of funeral expenses. West Virginia is one of the five states having state managed compensation systems; its fund is managed by the public service commission and maintained by assessments upon employers, contributions from workmen and subsidies from the state to cover the administration cost. All other industries are included as well as mining.

In all, 23 states have clearly defined compensation acts at the present time, and seven or eight others have them in one form or another. Still others are agitating them with every prospect of speedy success. Their provisions vary necessarily owing to different labor conditions in different localities, for a law affecting those who work in mines for instance would scarcely be applicable to those who work in the textile industry. Wherever such acts have been accepted and placed on the statute books, they have been the source of benefit to workmen and to the state, though undoubtedly in individual cases, they do not work as satisfactorily as did the old system of private compensation. Viewing the matter in a broad light, anything which would impair the efficiency of the Massachusetts act should be frowned on by the legislature until the principle of the law is too well established to be hurt by innovation or amendment.

UNGRATEFUL REFUGEES

Interests in press and public opposed to President Wilson and the administration in general are striving to arouse condemnation of the government's Mexican policy, owing to revelations of refugees who escaped from that country or who were ordered out during the blockade of Vera Cruz or immediately afterwards. Many of these were treated with great indignities and suffered many privations, and quite naturally they resent such treatment and think that an army should have gone into Mexico at the time and protected them in every particular. But this is a case where the welfare of the individual must be weighed against the welfare of the nation, and most unbiased people will conclude that in this respect at least the government could not have acted other than it did without serious consequences.

In the first place, the humiliations and insults heaped on American citizens were not at the command of any Mexican government representative, but were the natural growth of mob spirit, inflamed by false rumors. The Mexican rabble really supposed that war was on, and every American was to them the embodiment of foreign aggression. Believing this, they did what probably many Americans would do if the case were reversed, allowing for the baser spirit of Mexican civilization or the lack of it. It is very strange that there were not many more serious outbreaks and loss of many American lives.

Would matters have been remedied had the government threatened to bombard every Mexican port and send armed forces over the border? And such happened, many of the refugees who have lived to rail against their government would be very silent at present. Instead of a score of dead we would probably be counting the victims in hundreds, and the situation would not be a whit better than at present. It was unavoidable that there should have been some rioting, but those who have escaped with their lives have far greater reason for gratitude than for complaint.

It has also been commonly asserted that other governments such as England and Germany, got a greater degree of respect for their subjects than did America. They have every opportunity to do so, for if war should break out in Mexico against any foreign enemy at the present time, it is America which should do the heavy share of fighting, under the Monroe Doctrine. Hiding, then, behind American responsibility, other nations were undoubtedly able to speak with more authority than this country which sought conciliation from the first. The Mexican situation has been a bad mess, but it is not difficult to see how it could have been made far worse. It is lucky for the future of the country that the government is not guided by jingo arguments such as are used by many of the refugees who feel that the army and navy were instituted for their special benefit.

MEMORIAL DAY

Year by year we grow farther away from the wars of earlier days, and year by year the ranks of the veterans grow thinner, mowed down by a more implacable foe than they faced on the battlefield. Yet while even one remains, something noble will link the America of the present with that of the past, for the prosperity and prestige we now enjoy among the nations of the earth has been made possible largely through the efforts of the brave men, some of whom will visit the soldiers' graves tomorrow in loving remembrance of those who fought with them side by side and preceded them into the land of everlasting peace. Many of our older people need no reminder of the duality of Memorial day, for their hearts are linked in family love or in the closest bonds of friendship with someone who ranks with the veterans or who sleeps under one of the little memorial flags in the cemeteries. Those who were so associated with the veterans by personal bonds know the heartaches, the pain and the triumphs of glorious victory. Bonded with the cries of Rachael mourning for her children, refusing to be comforted. Some of our citizens—also like the veterans themselves, growing fewer yearly—saw them go out in the flush of their manly pride, saw them come home victorious, and will see them tomorrow decorating the graves of the departed with tear-dimmed eyes. To such Memorial day is a sacred day, sacred in its appeals to the higher patriotism.

It is a duty we all owe to the veterans and to the country, to explain the significance of Memorial day to the young, for not to understand it is to miss something ennobling. Tomorrow we should review the story of the past wars with their bravery, their sacrifice, their glorious culmination. We should tell our children the meaning of the various services in all the cemeteries of the city, the salutes, the prayers, the soul-lifting memorials. We should impress on them the necessity for honoring the thinning ranks of the veterans before whom Columbia bows in silence. Soon the time will come when the veterans of the Civil war will no longer go to honor their comrades on Memorial day, for all will have answered the final reveille. Yet their memory shall not die. The beautiful custom of commemoration has been taken up reverently by civic organizations, and through the ages the memory of our veterans will be kept green to point the way for the men of the future.

ABOLISHING GRADE CROSSINGS

A contemporary after reviewing some statistics concerning the number of grade crossings in some sections of the country comes to the conclusion that the railroads are making a grave mistake whether regarded economically or from the humane point of view in permitting so many crossings to exist despite the universal condemnation which they evoke, the many deaths and consequent lawsuits, and the constant menace at points of heavy traffic. It says that within the limits of greater New York alone there are no fewer than 147 of these crossings which a year ago were designated as dangerous. Such a designation was backed up by an official statement a year ago which declared that no less than 100 persons were killed and 150 injured at such crossings within the limits of New York. Commenting on these facts, the newspaper in question says: "That the situation is so serious is a discredit to the railroads and the state and city authorities, for it can easily be remedied."

Luckily our crossings have not claimed a heavy toll of life, but prevention demands that they be eliminated, aside from the claims of progressive business such as one might expect in a city like Lowell. When conditions have existed for years people are apt to grow apathetic, but one fatality would awaken a spirit that could not easily be quelled. Far better that the Middlesex crossing and the other more dangerous ones be removed before some shocking accident awakes the public to the seriousness of the situation.

ENGLISH GRAFT

The recent court cases in England involving army officers who admitted having accepted bribes from representatives of trade concerns calls attention to the fact that America has not a monopoly on political graft by any means, though one who has discussed English politics with some Englishmen undoubtedly has been told that the methods of crooked American politics are unknown in the old country. Indeed the cases that came to trial recently are but indications of a condition in the English army that is widespread. At the present time there is a feeling against army arrogance among the British masses that the graft case will not tend to diminish, and one of the reforms of the near future is a thorough cleaning out of the undesirable elements, whether among the army heads or among the rank and file.

Mayor Curley of Boston has humanely arranged with the chairman of the Boston park and recreation board that during the hot months the city bath houses shall be thrown open and that people shall be allowed to sleep on the commons and parks. Unfortunately we have no bath houses, but the second part of the order might be advantageously copied locally when the hot spell returns.

ice in the case he declared was on the side of Morrison and the sheriff, both of whom he charged with being in collusion, not for the purpose of obtaining damages, but for wreaking vengeance upon the publisher of The Sun, by attempting to stop the circulation of his paper in a needless manner.

The sureties offered by Mr. Harrington were signed by some of the wealthiest and most responsible business men in the city and were amply sufficient to satisfy any reasonable plaintiff, and would undoubtedly have been approved if Butler saw fit to present them to any superior court justice in chambers or even at the judge's house, which is often done by lawyers in an emergency. But the general didn't want to do this, preferring to allow Morrison and Cushing to go the limit, even to the extent of stopping the circulation of that edition, in order that he might have them on the defensive and be able to dictate his own terms, in case the question of settlement or the amount of damages should ever come up. The fact that the edition came out in spite of them left both plaintiff and the sheriff in just as bad a predicament as if they had succeeded in stopping it, and it is plain that Butler by this piece of strategy killed two birds with one stone and became master of the situation.

The sureties on the bonds represented property aggregating over half a million dollars and the fact that they were not accepted, Butler declared, would be sufficient not only to imperil Morrison's standing as an attorney, but would result in the removal of Cushing from office. On this point the general was very emphatic and as a result Morrison became alarmed and retained a prominent attorney who, in consultation with Gen. Butler, was reminded of the fact that property under attachment was in the custody of the sheriff, and if there was any liability of it being destroyed or reduced in value while in his possession he and his bondsmen would be responsible. Butler cited a case where an officer attached a quantity of hides in a vat at a tannery and kept them in the vat under attachment until they were destroyed. This officer was held liable for the value of the hides regardless of the merits of the case, and in the final accounting he and his bondsmen were obliged to make good to the tanner who was subjected to this

To attach a lot of newspapers and hold them for even two hours after the usual time of publication, would destroy the value of the edition. They were worth nothing then, but the price of old paper, whereas if distributed on time they would be worth five cents apiece, which was the price of The Sun in those days. Had they allowed the papers to be sold and held the money subject to the order of the court, they would have had the law on their side. But they had no right to hold the papers, particularly as they had all the machinery, type, presses, tools, engravings, etc., under attachment, which were worth many times the value of the papers. The intent to work needless and irreparable damage to Mr. Harrington and his paper was too glaring to be denied.

This alarmed the sheriff and his bondsmen and they, together with Morrison, decided that they had made a mistake and overtures for a settlement came, not from the defendant's side, but from the plaintiff. The result was that Mr. Morrison withdrew the suit, paid the costs and wrote a letter to Mr. Harrington in which he stated that he was satisfied that there was no intention on the part of the proprietor of The Sun to injure him, and if there was any malice it came from some of his employes who, according to Mr. Morrison, had not been on very friendly terms with him.

In short they had to eat their peck of dirt as Butler predicted they would do and in consideration of the humiliating gastronomic performance, Butler suspended hostilities against both Morrison and the sheriff. It was a glorious victory for The Sun, but the question in Mr. Harrington's mind was how much was it going to cost him. Hiring Ben Butler was no child's play and Mr. Harrington knew it. In due time he wrote a letter to the general, asking for an appointment to consider the question of counsel fees, etc. The general replied that he would meet him at his house in Belvidere a few evenings later, and accordingly with some trepidation and a mental calculation of the size of his insignificant bank account John H. took his way to the heights of Belvidere and was invited to await the general in the sitting-room.

The old warrior came in with a smile on his face and commanded the trembling publisher of The Sun to be seated. After congratulating him on the glorious ending of the bloodless battle, Butler settled himself in his chair and indicated that he was ready to hear what his visitor had to say.

"I came, general," said Mr. Harrington, "to learn how much I owe you for your services."

"Well," said the general, "that's very proper. Of course you understand I usually get a pretty fair-sized fee for a case of this sort."

"I know it," said the anxious publisher, as his tongue stuck in his throat and thoughts of a mortgage loan on his plant were flitting through his brain. "I know that very well, general, but I would like to know the worst as soon as possible."

The general looked at him for awhile and said: "I have made up my mind just what I am going to charge you." (Another chill in the region of the publisher's heart and a slowing of the editorial pulse.)

"Very well, general, what is it?" the visitor gasped.

"Well," said Ben, with a squint at John H. that added to his terror, "you remember I asked you if you wanted that case settled?"

"I do," said Mr. Harrington.

"To settle a case like that would cost a certain sum of money, but do you remember when I asked you if I would settle it or fight, you said: 'General, I want you to fight to a finish, and I want you to get the last drop of blood in those fellows' bodies, and when you get it I will pay the bill, if I can?'"

"I remember that very well," said Mr. Harrington.

"Well," said Old Ben, "when you said that I liked it so well, and

I LIKED YOUR PLUCK

and your spirit so well, Mr. Harrington, that I then and there determined that I would not charge you a cent, and that I would see you through to the end without a nickle for my services."

This was too much for the young publisher of The Sun. A big lump came up in his throat that nearly choked him, and it was fully a minute before he could speak.

"General, do you mean that?" he said with his handkerchief up to his eyes.

"I mean every word of it," said the old war horse with a smile, that Mr. Harrington declared made his wrinkled face look handsome. "You don't owe me a cent and I am glad to be of service to a young man with your pluck, and if you continue to stand up when you know you are right and fight for what you believe to be right, you will come out on top."

"Now," said he, handing Mr. Harrington a letter, "I want you to go up to see Col. Dimon, who is agent of the cartridge works, and take this letter to him, and he will tell you what it means.

After an exchange of courtesies and an assurance from the old general that he might call upon him in any emergency, Mr. Harrington, with a light heart, took his departure and the next day handed the letter to Col. Dimon. When the colonel opened and read it, he smiled and said: "Do you know what this letter contains?"

Mr. Harrington said he did not.

"Well it is an order from Gen. Butler for me to give you a portion of the printing of the labels and advertising work of the United States Cartridge Co., such of it as you can do at a reasonable and satisfactory price."

This second manifestation of the old general's kindness had a great effect on Mr. Harrington. The result was that for many years afterwards, and as long as he continued to run a job printing plant, a liberal share of the work of the U. S. Cartridge company was done in the Sun job office for which he received many thousand dollars.

Mr. Harrington had frequent occasion in after years to consult with the general on legal as well as political matters, but the grand old man would never permit him to pay a cent for his services.

Butler died in Washington and his remains were carried to Lowell. At the urgent request of the city government and citizens in every walk of life his family permitted the remains to be taken to old Huntington hall, where they lay in state with a military guard of honor day and night until the day of the public funeral. People came in drover to view the remains, and were obliged to get in line and pass by the bier and through a side door as rapidly as possible. It might have been noticed by some of the attendants that one man came down the line many times before the body was finally taken from the hall, and he delayed so long each time to look at the face of the dead general that the guards requested him to move along that others might see. They didn't know that he had a reason, neither did they know as he passed out the side door why he put his handkerchief up to his eyes just as he did that night in the general's house.

President of Canadian Pacific Co. Says Disaster Most Serious in History of St. Lawrence Route

MONTREAL, May 29.—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railroad Co., today issued the following statement on the sinking of the Empress of Ireland:

"The catastrophe because of the great loss of life is the most serious in the history of the St. Lawrence route.

"Owing to the distance of nearest telegraph or transportation stations from the scene of the wreck there is an unavoidable delay in securing official details.

"From the facts as we have them it is apparent that about 2 o'clock this morning the Empress of Ireland, when stopped in a dense fog, was rammed on the port side by the Norwegian collier Storstad, in such a manner as to tear the ship from the middle to the screw, thus making the watertight bulkheads with which she was provided, useless.

"The vessel settled down in 14 minutes. The accident occurred at a time when the passengers were in bed and the interval when the ship went down was not sufficient to enable the officers to arouse the passengers and get them into the boats where there were sufficient to accommodate a very much larger number of people than those on board, including the passengers and crew.

"That such an accident should be possible in the St. Lawrence and to a vessel of the class of the Empress of Ireland with every possible precaution taken by the owners to insure safety for the passengers and the vessel, is deplorable. The saddest feature of the disaster is, of course, the great loss of life, and the heartfelt sympathy of everybody connected with the company goes out to the relatives and friends of those who met death in the ill-fated steamship."

VESSEL WAS BOUND FOR LIVERPOOL WHEN RAMMED AND CUT WIDE OPEN

RIMOUSKI, Que., May 29.—The twin screw Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Ireland, carrying nearly 1300 persons, passengers and crew, sank in the darkness before dawn today in the St. Lawrence river near here, with a loss of perhaps 1000 lives. Early estimates of the dead varied from 678 to more than 1100.

The vessel was bound from Quebec for Liverpool with 77 first, 206 second and 504 third class passengers, was cut wide open by the collier Storstad and sank within 20 minutes in 19 fathoms of water. Of those saved the majority appeared to be members of the crew or from the steerage. Many were badly injured and 22 died after being picked up.

Weinerauch, Montreal, second cabin; W. Heller, W. T. Burroughs.

Crash at 2 O'Clock

The crash occurred about 2 o'clock this morning off Father Point, Que., a village brought into prominence when Dr. Crippen, the London murderer, was caught. The collier, bound for Quebec, struck the Empress of Ireland on the port side about the middle of the ship. She literally tore her way back almost to the liner's screws, leaving a rent through which the water poured in such a deluge that she sank before many of the passengers were aware of what had happened.

350 Survivors Picked Up

Brief wireless calls for help, sent out by the Marconi operator, were heard by the pilot boat Eureka here 10 miles from the scene, and the Eureka, followed by the Lady Evelyn, a mail tender, put on forced steam and made all speed for the spot. It was these two boats that found afloat what few lifeboats that were launched from the stricken ship and picked up the survivors they contained. Three hundred and thirty-nine were saved by the Lady Evelyn and 60 by the Eureka. Among those saved was Capt. H. G. Kendall of the Empress.

Noted English Lawyer Perished

Most of the first class passengers apparently perished. Among those in the first cabin were Sir Henry Seton Karr, a noted English lawyer and big game hunter, and Laurence Irving, son of the late Sir Henry Irving, and his wife, Mabel Hackney. Of a party of 140 Salvation Army members on board only 20 were rescued. They had left Quebec yesterday bound for the army's international conference in London.

Survivors in Night Clothes

So quick did the Empress sink that those passengers fortunate enough to get into the lifeboats found themselves garbed only in their nightclothes. No baggage was saved. The condition of the survivors was pitiable. Some had broken arms and legs and all had suffered terribly. Le Josselin, a prominent lawyer from Montreal, saved himself by clinging to a raft. When the rescue ships docked here the station platform was converted into a hospital and the townspeople, bringing food and clothing, united in a common effort to aid the sufferers. Twelve bodies with faces covered lay side by side on the wharf. They had made the lifeboats only to be fatally hurt.

Bodies and Wreckage

Wreckage strews the St. Lawrence for many hundred yards near the spot where the Empress sank. The sun shone brightly during the forenoon and though the water is still icy, the temperature today was not low enough to increase the suffering of the survivors.

The vast majority of the saved were members of the ship's crew. Early estimates here indicated that not more than 60 passengers were saved. Besides Captain Kendall, the first and second engineers and the ship's surgeon were rescued.

Captain Kendall Overcome

The captain was too overcome to give at first any extended account of the disaster. He had sent a wireless to his line after the vessel was struck, saying "Ship gone."

Huddled in Life Boats

The residents of Rimouski, numbering only 3000, came silently to the dock where the dead and exhausted living were being landed and under the direction of the mayor, H. R. Fiset, gave aid wherever possible. Every doctor in the town was on the scene and many of the injured were taken to private homes. From cedar chests and closets the townsfolk brought garments of all descriptions for those who had lost their belongings. Two headquarters were established at the wharf and at the station of the intercolonial railway. At the station those injured and not removed to homes were cared for.

The rescue boats Eureka and Lady Evelyn found everything on the spot where the Empress sank a scene not unsimilar to that which greeted the liners which rushed to the Titanic's aid.

They found the ship sunk and the surface of the water fortunately calm dotted with lifeboats and littered with floating debris.

In the lifeboats were huddled the survivors, dazed and moaning, some of them dying of injuries sustained in the rush of leaving the sinking steamer.

Hysterical Accounts

Few could give anything but incoherent, almost hysterical accounts of what had happened. J. L. Black and Mrs. Black of Ottawa said they had jumped together into the river. They had been roused by the shock of the collision and unable to get into a lifeboat had made the leap. They were picked up by a boat from the Lady Evelyn. Another survivor was Mrs. Patten of Sherbrooke Que.

Every effort is being made to secure correct lists of the rescued.

Explosion in Engine Room

The water poured into the ship's engine room, caused an explosion and this forced many to jump. Ernest Hays, an assistant purser, told of leaping from the upper promenade deck. He climbed into number three lifeboat. The boat maneuvered about the wreck for a time and found Captain Kendall clinging to a piece of wreckage. He had jumped just before the Empress went down. W. Davis of Montreal, one of the few survivors able to talk coherently after first landing said he and his wife had not been awakened by the impact of the collision and knew nothing of the accident until water began to rush into their stateroom. He helped his wife to the boat deck but the big ship had already listed and it was impossible to launch a boat. Together they crawled on their hands and knees up the sloping deck of the liner. The vessel was rapidly sinking. His wife was swept from his grasp. Both were carried by the suction into the river. They clung to a piece of wood and were rescued. The wife was unconscious.

J. W. Longley, a rancher at Canford, B. C., calmly sat on the deck rail and went down with the sinking ship. He held his breath, came up, grabbed the side of a lifeboat, held to it and was rescued by the Eureka.

William Measures, a Salvation Army bandsman, crept along the rail of the promenade deck and stepped in the water. He swam to a lifeboat and was rescued.

Steamer Valued at $2,400,000

The Empress of Ireland was valued at $2,000,000 and with her cargo valued at $2,500,000 was fully insured.

At low tide now the tops of her funnels could be seen. She is lying in the channel. It is thought by navigators here that it may be possible to raise her. At present the wreck is a menace to navigation.

In the partial list of survivors available at 1 o'clock this afternoon there appeared the name of only one salon passenger, that of G. W. Henderson, address not given.

Collier Also Went Down

The collier Storstad, earlier reports said, also sank soon after the accident. She was a steamer of 6023 tons, commanded by Captain Anderson and plied between Sydney, Que., and Montreal. Her crew numbered about 50 men.

The Empress of Ireland, in command of Lieutenant Kendall, Royal Navy reserve, sailed from Quebec at 4.30 yesterday afternoon for Liverpool. There were 77 first, 206 second and 504 third class passengers, which with the crew made over 1200 souls on board. Among the names on her passenger list is Sir Henry Seton-Karr, a barrister, whose travels and big game shooting have taken him into many corners of the world.

First news of disaster reached Quebec shortly before three o'clock this morning. It came from the Marconi station at Fathers Point to the marine department agent here and announced that the Empress of Ireland had collided with an unknown ship 30 miles east of Father Point and was sinking. The Marconi station had heard the "S. O. S." signals of distress and reported that the Canadian government steamer Eureka and the mail tender Evelyn which were at Father Point had been despatched to the rescue. The wireless people reported that they had been in communication with the Empress of Ireland but a short time when the messages suddenly ceased. This led to fears that the steamer had sunk and this afterward proved true.

Nearly an hour after the first messages were received Father Point reported that it was the Hanover of the North German Lloyd line which had been in collision with the Empress of Ireland and that probably both steamers had been lost. This added gravely to the disaster as the Hanover was known to have over 1300 immigrants aboard bound from Rotterdam for this port.

More Than 800 Missing

The report about the Hanover, however, fortunately proved to be an error and at Father Point it was announced that it was learned that it was the collier Storstad that collided with the Empress of Ireland and that both vessels had gone down soon after the collision.

At six o'clock this morning reports that survivors were being landed at Rimouski were received here. It was stated that the Eureka and the Lady Evelyn had landed 350 persons but that more than 800 were probably drowned.

TRADING WAS NORMAL

AT OPENING OF MARKET—WENT LOWER LATER IN DAY—CLOSED STEADY

NEW YORK, May 29.—There was an air of quietness when the market opened for business this morning and trading was of a nominal nature. Of the various shares offered, the railroad stocks appeared the weakest, several leading issues dropping fractions to a point. Otherwise there was little fluctuation in prices during the first hour of trading.

Although there was no pressure to sell, stocks moved towards a lower level as the session advanced. St. Paul softened in connection with its news financing and the weakness of New Haven, New York Central and Baltimore & Ohio. Of all the better known issues Reading alone held fairly steady, despite weakness in Lehigh Valley, its affiliated property. More gold for Europe was under negotiation. Bonds were easy.

Conditions were unchanged during the mid-session except for substantial gains in a few specialties, including Beet Sugar, which rose two points on reports of an advance in the raw product. London sold moderately but persistently here, chiefly of steel, total sales aggregating perhaps 1000 shares. Forecasts indicate a fairly large loss of cash by local banks for the week.

The market closed steady today. Such insignificant changes as occurred were in the final dealings when prices of leading issues rose to their best.

The Parochial Schools

At all the parochial schools throughout the city, a special program has been arranged for today in honor of Memorial day, including songs, recitations, patriotic sketches, and other exercises of a national character. As is usual at such times there is great rivalry between the various grades, and in some cases prizes will be awarded for special excellence. The principal feature of the Memorial day observance in the parochial schools is an address on the occasion, its meaning and its lessons, by one of the clergymen connected with the respective parishes.

At St. Michael's, which always makes Memorial day memorable to the pupils, "In Memoriam" and "O Glory Waves" will be sung by the children of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and other songs will also be rendered, including "Flag of the Free" and "Our Loving Dead." There will be many recitations, including "Our Heroes" and "Heroes of '61," and there will be a flag salute by all the pupils of the various grades. Rev. Francis J. Mullen, superintendent of the school, will make an address, and the occasion will be brought to a close by the singing of "America" by the entire school.

At the other various schools exercises were also held, the programs being appropriate to Memorial day.

CONSTIPATION IS DANGEROUS

Pinklets, the New Laxative Really Do Correct It.

The sufferer from constipation is distressed after eating, gas forms on the stomach, the abdomen has a feeling of pressure and weight and is hard and distended.

The blood soon absorbs poisons that should have been expelled and loss of flesh shows that the body is being poorly nourished. Headaches become frequent, the patient is drowsy, irritable and sometimes faint.

Pinklets, the new laxative pills, do not wear out their effect before accomplishing their work of correcting constipation, because they do not stimulate the bowels to over-exertion. They assist nature so gently that the action is regular and thorough, yet without griping. Pinklets put the liver, stomach and bowels in harmonious, perfect working order.

A short trial of Pinklets will convince you that they are the ideal laxative. Every druggist can now supply you with Pinklets at 25 cents per bottle. Write to the Dr. Williams Co., Schenectady, N. Y., for a Pinklet book telling all about the treatment of constipation.

Famous Dancer Gives Complexion Secrets

I've learned the secret of Dolores' entrancing beauty—the wondrous charm that has dazzled the courts of Europe and captivated vast audiences everywhere. The famous dancer abhors rouges and cosmetics. Yet, despite the strenuosity of her life, she retains the incomparable complexion best described as "indescribable." An intimate friend tells me the secret is regularly used on her face what druggists know as mercolized wax. This is applied at night in the manner cold cream is used and washed off in the morning. It absorbs the dead particles of skin which daily appear, and a fair, soft, fresh, girlish complexion is always in evidence.

Dolores' skin is not marred by a single wrinkle, not even the finest line. She wards these off by daily bathing the face in a solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half-pint witch hazel. As your druggistores keep these ingredients, as well as mercolized wax (one ounce of the wax is sufficient), no doubt your readers will welcome this information.—Aileen Moore in Beauty's Mirror.

PARK COMMISSIONER M'KAY

Formally Qualified at City Hall This Forenoon

He Speaks Interestingly of Parks in European Countries

THOMAS F. McKAY

Thomas F. McKay, the recently elected park commissioner, qualified for office before City Clerk Flynn today. Mr. McKay was elected at Tuesday's meeting of the municipal council, receiving all of the five votes. He will succeed Herbert H. Russell who resigned before attending a single meeting of the board. Mr. McKay would have qualified for office sooner but for the fact that he was at Hampton beach putting his property in order for the summer.

Mr. McKay is engaged in the wholesale biscuit business and resides at 170 Rogers street. He has traveled a great deal and has always taken a great interest in park systems. He talks very interestingly of the parks in England, Ireland, France and Germany. A majority of the foreign countries, he says, take a great deal of pride in their parks and playgrounds. He says it is his earnest intention to try and devise some scheme for the development of Shedd park which he believes can be made one of the city's beauty spots. He thinks it a shame that nothing has been done there. He believes there ought to be a ball ground and recreation field at Shedd park for the enjoyment of the boys and girls of that section of the city. Mr. McKay has never before held public office.

Five new members were admitted and two applications for membership received. Considerable important business was transacted. GEN. CARRANZA TO SEND ENVOY TO CONFERENCE

Rebel Leader Notifies Mediators That He Will Send Representative to Niagara

NIAGARA FALLS, May 29.—Juan F. Urquidi, private secretary to Rafael Zubaran, the constitutionalist agent at Washington, arrived here today bearing a communication from General Carranza to the mediators saying he is willing to send a representative to the mediation to discuss international differences between the United States and Mexico.

Mr. Urquidi said he came merely as a messenger to deliver a communication and not to discuss issues.

When he arrived at the hotel Clifton he sent his card to Ambassador Da Gama, who sent down word that he was "busy" but did not say whether or not he would receive him later in the day.

Although Mr. Urquidi declined to make public the contents of the communication it is understood that Carranza reiterates his original declaration that he accepted mediation in principle on the condition that international questions alone should be discussed.

General Carranza is unwilling that the question of a new provisional president should be discussed at any international conference. He holds that the occupation of Vera Cruz which directly gave rise to the mediation proceedings concerns all Mexican factions as well as the Huerta government.

When the mediators learned of the arrival of the constitutionalist agent, it was said, the negotiations had proceeded to a point where the constitutionalists no longer could hope to have a voice in them.

Conferences have arrived at a standstill awaiting replies from the Washington and Huerta governments on the plan of the mediators for the settlement of the Mexican question which is now before them.

Mr. Urquidi later wrote a note to Ambassador Da Gama saying he was the bearer of a communication from General Carranza and that his mission was solely to deliver it. The ambassador immediately went into conference with the other mediators.

After their conference the mediators sent to bring Mr. Urquidi to the meeting.

MR. LAVINSKI SENT TO JAIL FOR TWO MONTHS FOR ASSAULT

When a crowd assembled in the rear of a house on Front street shortly before midnight, Saturday night, they made too much noise for Frank Lavinski and as a result a lively fight occurred between a part of the crowd that gathered to watch the fire and the Front street tenant, Mr. Lavinski. The affair was aired in court this forenoon when Lavinski was charged with assault and battery upon Stanislaw Capeik and Lawrence Bimlo. Bennett Silverblatt for the complainants and George H. Allard for the defendant.

It seems that a number of men who were watching the fire objected to being ordered away from the property by the defendant and when they found out that he was persistent in ordering them off, three of the men picked up stones and bottles and threw them at the windows.

The complainants allege that Lavinski rushed out of his house and assaulted them with a sharp instrument of some kind. It is claimed that Bimlo sustained a cut on his right shoulder and a bruise on the forehead while Capeik received a cut on the back, scratches on the right arm and ribs and a cut on the top of his head.

The defendant claims that he was sitting in the kitchen of his house at 75 Front street when a stone was thrown through a window. He claims that he then rushed out in the yard and hardly had left the steps when he was struck on the back by someone who disappeared in the darkness. Lavinski said that he had nothing to do with any of the complainants that night.

After reviewing the evidence Judge Enright found the defendant guilty and ordered him to spend the next two months in the Lowell jail.

Other Cases

Frank Berry, who claims to have come here from Lawrence yesterday afternoon, was arrested last evening while attempting to solicit money on the street. He was released on condition that he leave Lowell for foreign fields immediately.

John J. Donohue made his second appearance for drunkenness within a week but vowed that he would take the pledge if allowed to go on a fine. A fine of six dollars was imposed and he was given four weeks in which to pay it.

Francis J. Gallagher, aged 18 years, pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with being a stubborn child. The boy's mother testified that he had not stayed at home since last July. He was placed on probation for three months.

Luke P. Pier was given one more chance to live a good life and support his family and he was given a suspended sentence to the Lowell jail. John J. O'Malley was asked to pay a fine of $15 within the next six weeks.

APPOINTED RECEIVERS

L. B. FARMER AND T. B. GREENHALGE RECEIVERS FOR FIRM OF GAY & STURGIS

BOSTON, May 29.—Lewis B. Farmer and Frederick B. Greenhalge, attorneys of this city, were appointed receivers for the brokerage firm of Gay & Sturgis by Federal Judge Morton today. Thomas J. Berry, counsel for [illegible] of Houghton, Mich., told the court that he had been informed by [illegible] Greenhalge, who was the attorney of the firm, that collateral given by his client could not be found. Other [illegible] stated that collateral belonging to their clients apparently had disappeared.

SMALL FIRES

The fire department responded to [illegible] for insignificant fires early this afternoon. Shortly before 2 o'clock a telephone alarm was sent into the Central fire station for a fire on the Centralville bridge which probably started from a carelessly thrown cigar or cigaret butt. The members of the protective were soon on the scene and quickly extinguished the blaze.

A grass fire in a field off Parker street gave the firemen a short battle but no damage was done.

Thousands of Them Distributed in Brooks and Ponds Today

Another big shipment of baby fish arrived in Lowell today and today's shipment was probably the last until the fall. There have been more baby fish come to Lowell this year than for the last twenty years, and there's a reason. The Lowell Fish and Game association came into being only a short time ago and despite its youth it is one of the most progressive associations in the city. It has a membership of over 300 and every man connected with it is interested either in fishing or hunting, or both.

There were two shipments of fish today and the first to arrive were a number of cans containing 36,000 fingerlin trout. These were sent by the state fish and game commission and were distributed in brooks in and about Lowell. They arrived here at 11.45 and the following ones with automobiles and teams distributed them: Frank Hanchett, Bert Hall, Ernest Chambers, Ephraim Livingstone, George Pearson, Fred Davis and L. A. Derby, president of the Lowell Fish and Game association.

Another shipment of 60,000 white perch arrived about two hours later from New Hampshire and they were planted in Long pond. The perch were supplied by New Hampshire's fish and game commissioner, F. J. Beal. The reason New Hampshire's commissioner contributed so generously is because part of Long pond is in New Hampshire and the Massachusetts and New Hampshire commissioners have agreed upon a plan to stock the pond.

Fish and Game Warden

POPULAR CENTRALVILLE CLUB

The Ponies of Centralville, one of Lowell's most prominent organizations held their second annual banquet at their club rooms last night and from all accounts it was one grand success. The principal speaker of the evening was President J. J. Hart. He took for his topic "The Club," and at the end of the speech was roundly applauded. After President Hart's address a fine musical program was given.

SHOWER TO MISS COUGHLIN

A great many of the friends of Miss Grace Coughlin gathered at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. M. Burns on Westford street last evening and tendered the young lady a miscellaneous shower. Presents consisting of silverware, cut-glass, etc., were showered upon her. Refreshments were served and the rest of the evening was spent in a delightful musical entertainment. The party broke up at a late hour, wishing the young bride-to-be much future happiness.

AN UNKNOWN SUICIDE JUMPED FROM BRIDGE

An unknown man committed suicide shortly before 7.30 o'clock this morning by jumping from the railing on the west side of the Centralville bridge while several persons who were on their way to work watched him strike the water and then attempt to swim to shore, but the current proved too swift and after struggling for about five minutes he disappeared and was not seen again.

None of the many persons who saw the man leap from the bridge into the cold water could give a very good description of him. It is said that he appeared to be about 27 years of age, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. In what direction he came onto the bridge is not known. One of the first to discover the man in the water stated that he climbed onto the top of the railing and jumped into the stream with all of his clothing on, including a derby hat. When he struck the water he undoubtedly changed his mind about committing the rash deed and made an attempt to reach the shore. Although he was apparently a good swimmer the stream was very swift and the young man was carried under the bridge and sank with several people watching him, unable to assist him to shore. The matter was reported to the police, but up till noon no one had made any inquiries about the man.

The swift stream will probably carry the body several hundred yards down the river and it will be difficult to recover it.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

Musical comedy in an atmosphere which is most decidedly different from that on the streets these warm days, is the feature at the B. F. Keith theatre. The thermometer has shown right along a difference of 20 degrees between the theatre interior and the outside. "A Movie Girl" is the little piece which is proving successful this week, and it is being put forward by an excellent company. Eighteen song hits are given, and these are provided with splendid ensembles. The chorus of 12 young women is lively and good to look upon. Altogether it is an admirable performance. The occupation of Vera Cruz by Gen. Funston's forces is shown in a good Hearst-Selig picture. Seats may be ordered in advance for Memorial day. 'Phone 28.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

Although there are few followers of stock attractions who have not witnessed a performance of "The Ironmaster," fewer indeed are those who will not be pleased to learn that Manager Carroll has at last succeeded in securing this wonderfully interesting French drama for the attraction by the Merrimack Square theatre players for the week commencing with Monday matinee, June 1. This play is recognized as one of the very best ever translated from the French and the mere fact that for a generation it has invariably won distinction as a leading stock offering, should be sufficient evidence of its real worth. It deals with a love of a man for his wife, and of an apparent indifference on the part of the woman for her husband. The piece opens with a happy couple enjoying the many good things in life. There suddenly appears an enemy, cloaked in supposed friendship, and the woman falls a victim of his polished and winning mannerisms. The discovery by the husband drives him to desperation, and after a most interesting scene in which the woman attempts to defend herself, he orders her from the house. Future circumstances that arise tend to bring the pair together again and the closing scenes show the man and wife once more united and everything pointing to a prosperous and pleasant future. Mr. Weeks and Miss Malvern will appear in the leading roles and there is little doubt but that both will rise to the demand of the wonderful dramatic situations which the play offers. Mr. Stevens, whose acting has always been of the finished type, will be seen in one of his best parts while Stewart Wilson will again contribute largely to the success of the piece. The women of the cast are to wear wigs that will correspond in color to the costumes worn. This is a real novelty to local theatregoers and will be used for the first time in Lowell theatrical circles next week. For the sacred concerts on Sunday afternoon and night Manager Carroll has secured some of the newest and most novel features in vaudeville, as well as the best photo-plays. Secure your seats for next week's performances in advance. Telephone 2053. It costs no more and will save you trouble.

THE OWL THEATRE

We all like the summertime, with its sunny skies, but above all we like to keep cool. The keeping cool part of it is what worries most local theatre men. They are not in a position to give their patrons the desired coolness. However, the Owl managers had this in view when the theatre was built, and the result is surprising. It is cool. The sliding roof is an innovation that keeps the cool air in and chases out the warm currents. The concrete floor has a lot to do with it also. The show contains the following bookings. "False Evidence," a Warner three-reeler, with Gene Gauntier. "Freckles," a two-reeler. "The Mutual Girl's" weekly adventure, a Keystone comedy, and many other that we have no space to mention. Jack Dalton will sing, and an extra good show will be the result.

TERRIBLE ITCHING HUMOR ON FACE

Pimples Like Small Blisters. Kept from Sleep. Suffering Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

Sterling, Mass.—"My humor commenced first with a small spot of little white pimples with red surface. The pimples looked like small blisters. They disturbed me after retiring and kept me from going to sleep. The spot spread to quite a good size and being on my face it began to alarm me. The suffering from its itching was terrible. It caused disfigurement.

"I tried a remedy which did not help. It was less than a month after it broke out that I commenced to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used to put the Cuticura Ointment on when going to bed and used the Cuticura Soap. The help they were doing me was seen right from the start and soon my skin was all smooth. I was cured." (Signed) W. H. Beurwell, May 20, 1913.

"Why should I use Cuticura Soap? There is nothing the matter with my skin and I thought Cuticura Soap was only for skin troubles." True, it is for skin troubles, but its great mission is to prevent skin troubles. For more than a generation its delicate, emollient and prophylactic properties have rendered it the standard for this purpose, while its extreme purity and refreshing fragrance give to it all the advantages of the best of toilet soaps. Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

☞Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 29.—Justice Joseph R. Lamar of the United States supreme court is the dominant figure in the A. B. C. peace conference. Justice Lamar has from the first taken the leading part in attempting to straighten out the tangle affairs of the shot riddled republic. If peace prevails it will be due mostly to his able methods of dealing with the delicate situation. He has been quoted as saying he had every reason to believe the negotiations would prove successful.

MAN REPORTED MISSING DISAPPEARED RECENTLY

After leaving home at 8 o'clock last Saturday morning while his parents slept, David Suprenant of 87 Cushing street, aged 22 years, has not returned and his parents and other relatives are anxious to learn of his whereabouts as it is feared that he might die of starvation, not being able to work, since the sudden disappearance. Detective Drury of The Sun building, who is working on the case, has learned that the young man spent a few days in West Centralville, near the banks of the Merrimack river, but no further clue can be found.

About two years ago, while working in one of the local mills, Suprenant was struck on the head by a freight elevator while looking down into the well and since that time he has been unable to work, and at times showed signs of being temporarily deranged, although he has seldom left his home in Cushing street.

Last Friday night he retired at the usual hour and, it is said, about 3 o'clock the next morning rose and left the house dressed in a black suit. It is not believed that he wore any hat and his parents are in doubt as to whether or not he wore shoes or outside shirt. The young man is five feet and five inches tall and quite heavily built. His complexion is dark and his hair was cut very short.

A resident of Lakeview avenue states that Sunday morning about 5 o'clock he saw Suprenant lying on the grass near the Aiken street bridge with a coat pulled over his head, but at the time he did not know of his disappearance and thought nothing of it. Detective Drury has also learned that on Tuesday the young man was seen in the same section walking from tree to tree, and at times would sit in the shade for several minutes and then would get up and go to another shady spot. A report from the Navy Yard states that a man answering the description of Suprenant was seen out there Wednesday but nothing more has been heard of him.

The parents of the missing man state that he often acted as if in a melancholy mood and never would answer anyone who addressed him on the street or in a house. He had no money when he went away Saturday morning and it is not believed that he would go searching for work or food. The banks of the Merrimack river have been searched by Detective Drury in the hope of securing some clue as to his whereabouts but all efforts have been futile and any information about the young man will be gladly received by Mr. Drury at his office in The Sun building.

THE KASINO

Memorial day will find thousands of people at the Kasino. Afternoon and evening Miner's orchestra will play concert programs appropriate to the day, and all who enjoy the good old war songs will be on hand. Dancing will follow the concerts with people present from all parts of the Merrimack valley. All roads will lead to the Kasino.

THEATRE VOYONS

One of the best detective stories ever released is being shown at the Voyons today and tomorrow entitled "The Detective's Sister." This is about a crook who falls in love with an invalid. Her brother is the detective who arrests the crook. When she is dying she calls for her lover and with his arms around her she dies. This scene is one that will be long remembered by those who see this picture. After she dies he turns over a new leaf and lives an upright life. Hearst's Selig with new scenes and happenings from the Mexican war zone is also shown. Another two-reel feature "The Grip of Circumstances," should please and there are two comedies and two songs at each show.

AUTO SCARED HORSE

AND EXCITING RUNAWAY RESULTED—AGENT RICHARDSON'S HORSE ON RAMPAGE

Famous Marathoner, Winner of Recent B. A. A. Race, to Run at U. S. Bunting Meet Tomorrow

Jim Duffy, winner of the recent Boston Marathon race, of the Yonkers, N. Y., Marathon, of the Toronto Ward Marathon, two-time winner of the Hamilton Herald classic and holder of the world's record for 19 and 20 miles, arrived in Lowell yesterday after a 20-hour journey from his home in Hamilton, Ontario. The famous athlete, who was accompanied by his trainer, Tom Thompson, will strive to defeat a big field in the 10-mile handicap race to be run at the Bunting Cricket club grounds tomorrow afternoon.

Duffy will take a short workout on the Bunting track this afternoon. Last Saturday at Hamilton he breezed over a government measured course of five miles in 25 minutes and 40 seconds. He was unpaced.

The young Irish Canadian has a most prepossessing appearance. Weighing 153 pounds, his five feet nine inches of bone and muscle are evenly distributed. In carriage he is extremely erect and he walks along with the lithesomeness of a natural born athlete. To judge from his friskiness and general appearance he is on edge for the fastest race of his life tomorrow afternoon. Last Decoration day, in a broiling sun and wilting atmosphere, he defeated a field of over one hundred of the fastest American long distance runners in the annual Yonkers, N. Y., Marathon race. This was the third in a string of five successive Marathons which he has won. He holds the world's record for 19 miles, 165 yards, having covered that distance at Hamilton in 1912 in one hour forty-six minutes and fifteen seconds. He is also the five and ten mile record holder of Scotland, while in the international cross country championships in Paris three years ago he finished third in a field of several hundred.

Although he is naturally at his best in races of 20 and 25 miles, Duffy expects to lead the field in the short 10 mile race tomorrow. Mr. Thompson has been working hard in putting plenty of "pep" into his stride so he should show great speed as well as his well known endurance.

Unlike many former champions with awkward action, Duffy lopes over the ground with a long, velvety, tireless stride. With each contraction of his muscles he leaves behind him approximately seven feet of space. So easily does he cover the ground that it would seem to the observer that running is as easy as breathing.

Duffy, who was born in County Sligo, Ireland, 24 years ago, is a stonecutter by occupation. Two years ago he went to Hamilton from his home in Scotland and in that city he became the athletic sensation. Outside of his work and running, the Marathon champion likes to do just two things, read and fish. In this latter recreation he has few equals along the shores of Lake Ontario for he is as persevering in angling for the elusive bass and perch as he is in winning a Marathon race.

At the New American house, where he and Mr. Thompson are staying, Duffy is resting quietly for tomorrow's race. He is of a jolly disposition and the honors that have come to him have left him as they found him, a modest, quiet, young gentleman.

The young Hamiltonian will leave Lowell Saturday night for his home town and on Wednesday he will journey to Kingston, Ontario, where he is to meet Fabre, the French Canadian runner whom he defeated in the recent Boston race.

RAY SCHALK FORGES AHEAD OF SCHANG FOR CATCHING HONORS

Last season it was a neck and neck race between Wallie Schang of the Athletics and Ray Schalk of the White Sox for premier backstopping honors. The opportunities in the world's series gave Schang the edge, and he was generally acknowledged the best in his league. The sudden rise to fame seems to have affected him somewhat this season, and his Chicago rival is playing the game of his life. Ray has the handicap of a much slighter build than Schang, but uses his head quicker and to better purpose.

ATHLETES AND ATHLETICS

Well, it was a good game yesterday even if we did lose it. Of course there were several places where the local players could have improved upon their judgment. For instance when DeGroff was on third and Stimpson on first in the sixth inning poor baseball shut off Lowell's chance of tieing up the score. Stimpson started for second (there were two men out) and deliberately waited to draw Hayden's throw to Bowcock. Instead of the Rube making a dash for the plate as the play should have been worked he stuck to the third cushion and Stimpson was an easy out.

"Shorty" Dee was right on hand with his bludgeon yesterday and three clean singles bounded off his bat. "Shorty" crossed up the Portland fielders when he singled into short right field in the eighth. As a rule the Lowell shortstop hits to left efild and his blow to right was unlooked for.

Stimpson once more smote the horsehide for a brace of safeties. The left fielder seems to have gotten the habit of getting two hits in a game. If he keeps up the pace he is going now he'll hand up a new league batting record.

Two more stolen bases were chalked up yesterday to Greenhalge's discredit. Dowell's steal in the first inning would never have been executed if the Lowell catcher's throw had not been wide. It looks as though "Pete" Wacob would be doing the bulk of the work in this department if "Snubber" doesn't take a brace.

Mike Hayden's arm was greatly in evidence yesterday as several local base runners learned to their sorrow. The only Lowell runner to trifle with his whip and get away with it was Mathews, who pilfered second in the seventh, but died there when Kelley flied to Burns and Smith grounded to Williams.

The game tomorrow morning between Lowell and Lawrence at Spalding park will start promptly at 10.15 o'clock. The two teams will commence hostilities at Lawrence in the afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Jimmy Duffy certainly looks the part of a distance runner. His build is ideal for his specialty and he eats up the miles with a long, easy stride that is deceiving. Duffy should beat Lilly and Faber easily in tomorrow's ten-mile race.

Jesse Burkett and Jimmy Duffy had a regular pow-wow at the hotel at which both men were stopping this morning. Jesse played ball up around Hamilton when he was a youngster (that's some time ago) and the distance champion knew many people on Burkett's list of acquaintances.

It will be a rare fight for premier honors between Penn, Cornell and Yale in the intercollegiates tomorrow at the stadium. There is hardly any choice between them now, although on paper Penn would seem to stand out ahead in the track events. Just what the field athletes do tomorrow will decide where Yale and Cornell fit.

GRAND JURY PROBE

WITNESSES STILL BEFORE THE JURY AT THE COURT HOUSE IN GORHAM STREET

The grand jury probe into municipal affairs was resumed at the court house in Gorham street this morning. Former Alderman Andrew E. Barrett was one of the witness. Mr. Barrett was called yesterday afternoon but upon arriving at the court house was told that he would not be required until today. Other witnesses today included Alderman Brown and City Auditor Paige. Grand jury witnesses, of course, are not telling what happens inside the jury room walls, but the impression obtains that District Attorney Corcoran has planned a thorough investigation of the charges alleging that members of the municipal council exceeded their appropriations in 1912-13. It is barely possible that the investigation may be completed today and in that event a report might be expected within two weeks.

Dowell then stole second, Greenhalge throwing high. Lonergan foul-flied to Greenhalge, retiring the side. One run.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Portland went out in order. Hickman hit to Burke, who made a swell play, knocking the ball down one hand and making a beautiful throw to first. Merrill flied out to Stimpson. Hayden hit an easy grounder to Lohman and died at first. No runs. For Lowell, it was one, two, three. Greenhalge sent a hot one to Lonergan and ... out at first. Fifth Inning

Hayden with three and two on him doubled to left field. Williams struck out. Hayden went to third on Clemens' infield out, Burke to Kelly. Burns closed the inning with a fly to Stimpson in short left. No runs.

For Lowell, Kelly hit an inside ball on the handle to Lonergan and got first on Lonergan's error, the first misplay of the game. Smith popped up an easy fly to Bowcock. Kelly was caught on first by Williams and run down the line and was put out. Lohman sent up a high fly that the wind carried foul and Hayden caught it. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Sixth Inning

Bowcock, the first man up in the sixth, sent a single into left between Burke and Dee. Dowell sacrificed him to second, Kelly taking the grounder and Smith covering the bag. Bowcock went to third on Lonergan's infield out, Dee to Kelly. Hickman smashed a hard grounder to Kelly for the third out. No runs. For Lowell, Dee sent a single to left centre. DeGroff made a single to centre, Dee going to second. Burke sacrificed both men along on a bunt to Hickman. Stimpson hit to Williams and Dee was out at the plate. Dee attempted to slide under Hayden and both men rolled in a heap. Bannon ruled him out; DeGroff went to third. Stimpson attempted to get to second and was caught between the bases and went out, Rube not attempting to complete the play. It was certainly one b-u-m play. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Seventh Inning

Merrill hit a long drive to right for two bases. Hayden flied to Stimpson in deep left. Williams flied out to Matthews in deep centre, Matthews' quick return holding the runner on second. Clemens went out on a grounder to Dee, Shorty's throw just getting the former outfielder at first. No runs.

Greenhalge opened the lucky seventh with a grounder to Hickman and was out at first. Matthews hit the first ball pitched to left centre for a single. Burns took Kelly's fly in short right centre. Matthews stole second. Smith closed the inning with a grounder to Williams. No runs.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Eighth Inning

Burns met Lohman's fast one for a single to right. A fast double play shut off Portland's chances to score. Bowcock hit to Lohman; Burns was forced at second on Lohman's peg to Dee and Bowcock was thrown out at first on a close play. Dowell was easy for Lohman and Kelly. No runs.

Lohman struck out. Dee got his third hit of the game when he singled to right-centre. DeGroff sent up a high foul-fly near the grandstand which Hayden made a nice catch of. Dee attempted to go to second after the ball was caught but he was the victim of Hayden's throw to Bowcock.

Score: Portland 1, Lowell 0.

Ninth Inning

Bannon called Lonergan out on his grounder to Kelly amid yells of protest from the Portland bench.

Burke ran up in front of the plate and took Hickman's fly. Merrill grounded out, Smith to Kelly. No runs.

Burns made a nice catch of Burke's fly over second.

Stimpson singled to right.

Greenhalge flied out to Burns.

Rudolph Dupont, aged seven years, of 9 Wille avenue, fell from a tree on the North common last evening and was picked up by friends in an unconscious condition. The ambulance was summoned and he was removed to the Lowell hospital where it was learned he sustained internal injuries.

According to Mr. Dillon, a member of the Boston park commission, this city had a display of tulips earlier than any other city in Massachusetts, this spring, and Mr. Dillon came up from Boston to look over the display. The bulbs have all been taken up by employees of the park department, and will be saved for planting this fall.

Permanent grading on the westerly side of the South common is going on daily now, and, with the arrival of a carpet of grass, this portion of the common will present an unusually attractive appearance. A gravel walk has been constructed running from Summer street to a point opposite the entrance to Hood's laboratory in Thorndike street. Much difficulty has been experienced in keeping people from walking on the newly graded part and it has been necessary to wire off a portion of it.

The dancers at the pavilion at Lakeview last evening had the rare experience of dancing for two hours practically in the dark. The high tension system, which supplies the power for the incandescent electric lights, became short-circuited early in the evening. What is technically known as the "booster" was called into play, but this furnished only enough power for the electric cars and no surplus for lighting the dance hall. A few lanterns were secured and lighted. These were placed upon the stage for the benefit of the orchestra, while the dancers whirled in the waltz and tango in the semi-darkness.

About fifty friends of Miss Delia Breton met at the home of Miss Laura Tucker, 36 Orleans street, last evening and pleasantly surprised the former with a linen shower. She received many useful pieces of linen. Although greatly surprised, she responded in a fitting manner. Solos were rendered by the Misses Bessie Monorszynski, Rosalin Labrie and Ella Corkey, Misses Janet Campbell and Catherine Conlon played a piano and violin duet; and Misses Mary Gordon and Helen Rochette were very pleasing in humorous readings. Miss Tucker served dainty refreshments.

TODAY ENDS BIG SALE

NOT ANOTHER CHANCE TO GET REFERENCE WORK AFTER CLOSING TODAY

The reopening sale of People's Cyclopedia this week has been as great a success as was the original distribution last week, and the J. L. Chalifoux Co. has been thronged with customers eager to get this wonderful set before the sale ends at closing time today.

There's no time to lose now, for the supply is rapidly diminishing and no more sets can be had after these are gone. So it's "good-bye" to the offer after today.

People's Cyclopedia is the most useful set of books on earth. It consists of five octave volumes, bound in English cloth, magnificently illustrated throughout and regularly sells for $12. Today $1.98 will get the complete set. Surely this is an unusual book bargain.

See the announcement elsewhere in this issue and present the coupon at the store of the J. L. Chalifoux Co.

FEDERALS CAPTURED BY CONSTITUTIONALISTS AT TEPIC WERE SHOT TO DEATH

NOGALES, Ariz., May 29.—Thirty-five federal officers captured by the constitutionalists at the city of Tepic were executed May 24, according to a message received here yesterday from Gen. Alvaro Obregon, the constitutionalist commander.

Gen. Obregon's message says that Rear Admiral Howard, the American naval commander on the Pacific coast, telegraphed to the German consul at Tepic to intercede for the lives of the federals "for the sake of humanity," but Obregon answered that the execution of the officers was necessary to prevent them making trouble in the future.

The federals were taken to the cemetery and shot in squads.
